WELLSTON POLICE ON GUARD AT STORE FACE GEM
THEFT INQUIRY

Some Officers Took
—Place Robbed of Jewelry, Several Hundred Dollars.

St. Louis county authorities have launched an investigation to determine whether any Wellston policeman participated in the theft of at least several hundred dollars and some jewelry from a department store being guarded by Wellston officers last spring, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Maj. William Duggan, head of the Wellston police department, said some policemen were hired on a private basis by Bailey's department store to guard the place after it was badly damaged by a fire last March 14, and that the burglary apparently occurred two or three days later.

The store was at 6204 Easton avenue at the time, but reopened in another location. Duggan said the loss was discovered when salvage workers pulled a safe from the ruins and saw that the combination had been knocked off. He added that the management was asked to make a report of its loss in the burglary, but said it never did so. Therefore, he said, his department made no further investigation in the case.

Safe, Cash Register Looted.
The money was reported to have been taken from the safe and a cash register, and some jewelry also was said to have been missing.

In a related phase of the inquiry, authorities were checking a report that about 1600 pairs of shoes, not damaged by the fire, were taken from a store next door to Bailey's. This was the Turner Shoe Co., which did not reopen at 6204 Easton.

Donald Turner, the owner, said a Wellston policeman came to him the day after the fire and said, "Don't worry, we'll be on guard." The following day, he said, he missed 200 pairs, and within a week 1600 pairs had been taken. Most of the stock was "cleaned out," with shoes remaining only in the show windows, he added.

"Vague" About Shoes.
Wellston police recovered several pairs of the stolen shoes some time later but were "vague" when asked where they were found, Turner said. He recalled also that in the year up to the time of the fire there were six or seven burglaries at the store, with no evidence of forced entry.

The president of Bailey's Department Store, Inc., David N. Grosberg, declined to comment on the burglary there, saying: "I don't want to make any statement reflecting on the Wellston police department or tending to implicate anyone in any way."

The Post-Dispatch was told that whoever broke into the safe obtained cash only from an outer compartment and did not succeed in getting into an inner portion that contained more money and jewelry than the outer one.

Hired Police as Guards.
Authorities had a report that Grosberg had seen the incident as late as March 16, two days after the fire, when he employed policemen privately as guards. He was said to have been "amazed" when he saw that the safe had been broken into. The police guard continued until March 23.

A general investigation of activities of the Wellston police department will be continued tomorrow by the St. Louis county grand jury, with a number of unidentified witnesses scheduled to testify.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz planned to proceed with the inquiry with his own

Executive Dead

EDGAR E. RAND

EDGAR E. RAND
DIES OF HEART ATTACK ON TRIP

International Shoe Co.
Head, Civic Leader
Stricken in Chicago—
There for Convention.

Edgar E. Rand, president of International Shoe Co., and a St. Louis civic leader, died unexpectedly today of a heart attack in Chicago, where he was attending a national shoe convention.

Mr. Rand, 50 years old, was stricken at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. He had left St. Louis Sunday to attend the convention, and was expected to return home tomorrow.

Mr. Rand, a native St. Louisan, was the eldest son of the late Frank C. Rand, founder of International Shoe Co., and its board chairman at the time of his death in 1949.

Became President in 1950.
The son became president of the shoe company in 1950, when he was 44 years old. He had served with the company since 1927, except for the period of World War II when he held a number of government positions with the Office of Price Administration and the War Production Board in Washington.

Mr. Rand was active in many civic, charitable and educational organizations. He was a member of Civic Progress, Inc., and was a vice president of the United Fund, currently conducting a community-wide drive for health and welfare purposes.

A former president of the Big Brother Organization of St. Louis, Mr. Rand was treasurer of the St. Louis County Bond Issue Committee which backed the proposed $44,370,000 public improvement bond issue campaign in 1953-54.

He headed the 50-man committee named to raise $2,200,000 here for the Pius XII Memorial Library at St. Louis University. Like his father, he served as a member of the boards of trustees of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and of Barnes Hospital.

He also was active in business affairs in St. Louis, being a director of Mercantile Trust Co., Columbia Terminals, American Investment Co. of Illinois, Frisco Railroad and Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, Inc.

Mr. Rand attended St. Louis public schools and studied at Webb University, and in Switzerland before entering Vanderbilt University. After his graduation from the university in 1927, he started to work for International Shoe as a leather sorter. Two years later he became a leather buyer for the firm.

He became a director of the firm in 1939, but resigned when World War II began and entered government service.

Mr. Rand, who lived at 50 Overhill drive, Ladue, was divorced by his wife, the former Miss Sarah Frances Moore of Hillsboro, Tenn., in 1951.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Owen H. Mitchell Jr., Mrs. Donald Stephen Wohlman and Miss Helen Rand; three brothers, Frank C. Rand Jr., of New York; Henry H. Rand, a vice president of International Shoe Co., and Norfleet H. Rand, and two sisters, Mrs. Gale F. Johnston and Mrs. William Orthwein Jr.

The Navy took some friends to an Army football game last Saturday and thereby irritated several hundred other fans who traveled on an excursion steamer.

Three destroyer escorts that carried the Navy party delayed the commercial steamer for an hour from picking up its 800 paying passengers after the game.

The Navy guests were 433 members, families and friends of the Navy League of New Jersey who boarded the destroyer escorts at Bayonne, N. J., paid $3 for lunch and dinner and bought their own tickets for the football game.

The West Point authorities had given permission for the three destroyer escorts to remain tied up, three abreast, at the pier until 6 p.m.

The Hudson river Day Line's understanding was that the ships would pull out 20 minutes after the end of the game, permitting the steamer Peter Stuyvesant to pull in and pick up its passengers.

The passengers stamped their feet to keep warm while they waited. They heckled the Navy crews. Somehow through the cold and annoyed crowd spread a tale that the Navy's guests were living it up at Army cocktail parties. The crowd gave a "Heil Hitler" salute to what were described as some "sauntering" Navy officers and Waves.

The Navy said it knew nothing about cocktail parties—it just told people to be back at 6 p.m.

TRANSIT UNION STARTS VOTING ON WAGE RISE
OFFER OF P.S. CO.

Session Are for Its Rejection, Leader Says—Second Group to Act Tonight.

Approximately 700 night-shift bus and streetcar operators voted today on a new contract offer submitted by Public Service Co. in a wage dispute that began last December and was marked by a strike of three and one-half days earlier this month.

Results of the vote will not be disclosed until after the day-shift workers ballot under a similar procedure this evening at the same place, Carpenters Hall, 3006 Cozans avenue.

At least 10 union members, interviewed by a Post-Dispatch reporter after the meeting, were unanimous in predicting the offer would be rejected.

Arthur East, union president, said he and other officers explained the offer to the men, but refrained from taking a position on it. He said about five speeches were made from the floor and that all five were in favor of rejection.

Vote by Secret Ballot.
Voting was completed in about 20 minutes after the men approved the use of a secret ballot by a voice vote. East said the ballots were locked in the box in which they were deposited by the members, and would be guarded by six men until the full membership has voted.

The offer called for a 13-cent hourly increase in steps, with 5 cents retroactive to last March 1 when the old contract expired, 4 cents effective Jan. 1, and 4 cents next July 1. Memorial day would be an additional paid holiday and the offer would include back pay for that holiday this year.

Drivers instructing students would receive 20 cents an hour above the regular rate instead of 10 cents, and a one-hour Sunday pay allowance would be made for selling weekly permits. There would be certain reclassifications for maintenance men and the contract would run from last March 1 to Feb. 28, 1957.

Maximum hourly rate under the expired contract was $1.87 for operators and $2.12 for certain maintenance employees. The union, Division 788, AFL, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, had asked for a 26-cent increase.

Replies at House Hearing

By DAVID R. WALLIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—James S. McDonnell, president of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., defended today his company's "housekeeping" practices in reply to Navy testimony that sloppy procedures at the plant had resulted in damage to jet engines.

McDonnell and H. Earl Moore, quality control manager for the McDonnell company, testified before the House Military Operations subcommittee which is investigating Navy plane procurement. The subcommittee is especially interested in the difficulties experienced with the Westinghouse J-40 engine in the McDonnell-built F-101D jet fighter.

Damage to jet engines by the passage of foreign objects was described by McDonnell and Moore as "an industry-wide problem."

When new planes are cleaned with an industrial type vacuum cleaner, the foreign objects picked up range from safety pins to screw drivers, McDonnell related. An article frequently found loose in a new plane is a tool used in the riveting operation.

U.S. Secretary of State
Pledges 'Necessary

GENEVA, Oct. 26 (AP)—The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia and France gathered in Geneva tonight for tomorrow's opening of the Big Four conference, with Middle Eastern problems suddenly coming to the fore.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived by plane from Paris, preceded by Russia's V. M. Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan. French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay was en route by train.

Dulles Comment.
(The United Press quoted Dulles as saying on arrival in Geneva: "We will seek the necessary conciliation to achieve the constructive elements of a just and durable peace.")

Dulles was accompanied by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Charles E. Bohlen, United States ambassador to Russia.

Germany was the No. 1 problem on the agenda of the Geneva meeting, but before leaving Paris, Dulles and Macmillan had daylong talks with Middle East leaders on the developing crisis caused by Arab-Israeli friction and Egypt's decision to buy arms from the Communist bloc.

Israeli Premier and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett said Dulles and Macmillan.

Talks With Turk.
Before Dulles finally left the embassy residence in Paris to go to Orly airport for the flight to Geneva, he had a 20-minute talk also with Fatinah Zorlu, interim foreign minister of Turkey.

"Brief discussions" scheduled between Sharett and Macmillan and between Sharett and Dulles in both instances lengthened into talks of more than an hour.

"We had a fair and full discussion," said Sharett on emerging from the United States embassy residence. Asked if he had made any progress in getting promises for arms to balance the shipments of arms from Iron Curtain Czechoslovakia to Egypt, Sharett smiled and said there was nothing definite to report.

"We will meet again in Geneva," he said.

The conference with Sharett made Dulles late for his plane and he took time as he left the residence only to tell reporters that he had had a "full talk" with the Israeli leader and that he had discussed "Middle East affairs in general" with Zorlu.

Earlier Sharett had a long talk with Macmillan but gave little hint of progress. "I got a lot off my chest," he said.

Unable to See Pinay.
Sharett also saw French Premier Faure but was unable to get a conference with Pinay, who pleaded lack of time. Members of his staff said he would see Pinay in Geneva.

Besides his talk with Macmillan, Sharett and Zorlu today, Dulles had a conference with Henry Byroade, United States ambassador to Egypt, and Edward B. Lawson, ambassador to Israel. Officials in Dulles's party said Byroade probably would go on to Geneva, but only for a brief stay before returning to Cairo.

Sharett arrived in Paris Sunday night openly demanding arms from France, Britain and the United States to counterbalance the shipment of arms to Egypt by Czechoslovakia under Russian guidance.

WOOD, INDICTED IN PAY-OFF, SAID TO HAVE HELPED WOMAN GO FREE

2 True Bills Charge Bribery and 3 Perjury — Dowd Makes Accusation on Released Prisoner.

Police Cpl. George R. Wood, named in five indictments voted yesterday in the police pay-off inquiry, reportedly helped arrange the release of a prostitute in 1954 after she was arrested by the morality squad, Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd said today.

Dowd said he had evidence indicating Wood intended to charge the woman's behalf with a high-ranking police officer, who ordered her released from custody.

At the time, the woman worked for Mrs. Ethel Clift, brothel operator. Wood is charged in two indictments with accepting bribes from Mrs. Clift, a key figure in the pay-off investigation. The other three indictments charge perjury.

The basis for two of the perjury indictments in his testimony before the grand jury was that he did not see or visit the prostitute in the Magnolia avenue police station following her arrest Oct. 21, 1954.

"A desk sergeant, a turnkey and a former policeman said they saw Wood talking to the woman in the station," Dowd told the Post-Dispatch.

Bought Food for Her.
"We were informed she got word to Wood following her arrest, and although he was off duty, he went to the station, his automobile, spoke to her, went out and bought sandwiches for her and later arranged for her release."

"As a matter of fact, she dressed him down in the station because he did not testify before the grand jury that he had seen or visited the woman who had been picked up with her."

The Post-Dispatch reported Friday that Dowd's office was looking into the part played by the high-ranking officer in release of the prostitute.

Cpl. Frank Burns, one of the policemen who arrested the woman and later received a telephone call ordering her release, gave a detailed account of the incident to his superiors.

The police officer who gave him the order was neither the morality squad nor attached to the Magnolia avenue district.

False Testimony Charged.
In the third perjury indictment against Wood, the policeman is alleged to have testified falsely that he did not see Mrs. Clift's woman employee Oct. 1, 1954, at the brothel operator's establishment in the 4300 block of Chouteau avenue.

Dowd said witnesses have said they saw Wood make the visit.

In the bribery indictments, the policeman was charged with taking $50 from Mrs. Clift as a pay-off in October and again in December 1954.

Dowd said he had been told Mrs. Clift had just moved into the house on Chouteau avenue from an address on Keokuk street when Wood appeared and said:

"I hear you are back in the district. It will cost you $50 a month."

Mrs. Clift formerly lived in the Magnolia Avenue District, but had moved away for a time, the circuit attorney said.

Pay-off arrangements were made through telephone calls made by Wood to Mrs. Clift at her home, where she later gave him the money, Dowd stated.

He said the policeman also met her on occasion in a nearby drug store.

Wood, who joined the police department as a prison guard at the Magnolia station in 1943, was suspended immediately following the voting of indictments yesterday.

When Wood appeared at Central District to be booked at 5 p.m. yesterday, he appeared considerably upset. To reporters he said: "I have no statement to make at this time other than I am innocent of any wrongdoing."

He is 46 years old and lives at 6203 Alabama avenue. He became a probationary patrolman in the latter part of 1943, and later was named a special officer in the Magnolia district.

BAR ON PARKING ON PLAZA GROUND

Authority Ousting Autos for 'Psychological' Reasons.

For psychological reasons, parking in the Plaza redevelopment area will be terminated at the end of this month.

Although the ground on which 1100 apartments are to be erected will not be sold to a private redeveloper until next March, at the earliest, operators of three parking lots in this area have been notified to vacate next Monday.

The primary reason, it is understood, is that commissioners of the city's Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority believe it would be "bad psychology" to have automobiles parked month after month on a tract designated for an entirely different purpose.

Back in 1933, they recall, a $7,500,000 bond issue was voted to cover the city's share of the cost of a Jefferson National Expansion Memorial. But after 40 blocks along the riverfront were cleared, nothing happened, and the tract is being used as a parking lot.

Two years ago, the voters passed a $1,500,000 bond issue for redevelopment of the Plaza area with a public park and a private housing project. Now that eight and one-half blocks have been cleared for the undertaking, city authorities do not want anyone to get the idea that this may be a repetition of the riverfront story, so no parking.

There once were 29 parking lots in the Plaza redevelopment area, but only three are left, operating under temporary leases and paying the city rents totaling approximately $600 a month. One is at Fifteenth and Olive streets, another at Fifteenth and Pine, the third at Seventeenth and Pine. When they close, 200 all-day parkers will have to go elsewhere.

His promotion to corporal came in 1953.

He was freed on $7500 bond, provided by Raymond Salami, professional bondsman.

The penalty for conviction under the perjury and bribery charges is two to seven years in prison.

Five witnesses were heard by the grand jury yesterday—two before the indictments were voted and three afterwards—but Dowd would not disclose who they were.

The jury met again tomorrow, but the circuit attorney's office is not expected to seek indictments against other policemen then, the Post-Dispatch was told.

Bribery indictments were voted yesterday against Detective William Greenspan and Police Lt. F. Lyman Davis.

The investigation into reported pay-offs to some St. Louis policemen by brothel operators began following the murder of Mrs. June Alma Lutz, who was shot to death on the street April 21. Her employee, Pauline Klein, told police Mrs. Lutz often complained of being forced to make pay-offs to continue operating her establishment at 308A North Theresa avenue.

ASSERTS HE PAID COOPER $100,000 EXTRA FOR CARS

Lebanon (Mo.) Dealer Testifies for U.S. in Perjury Trial of Burger Associate.

Government witnesses continued their testimony today in the perjury trial of Carlisle Cooper, business associate of wealthy automobile dealer Adolph C. (Andy) Burger, before a jury in the court of United States District Judge George H. Moore.

The charge grew out of an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service of the income tax returns made for Burger and Andy Burger Motors, Inc., for 1945 through 1948. Cooper is alleged to have lied in a sworn statement when questioned about reported premiums paid by automobile purchasers in the postwar shortage period.

Elbert Montgomery, Lebanon, Mo., automobile dealer, a witness yesterday, testified his firm, the Montgomery Motor Sales Co., paid Andy Burger Motors, Inc., approximately $100,000 in cash premiums for 445 "used" automobiles in 1945-1948.

$200 on Each Machine.

These cash payments, usually about $200 on each machine, were paid to Cooper personally, Montgomery testified.

"We paid in cash above the invoice price in all but one or two cases in that period," the witness told the jury. "We made the payments to Mr. Cooper, with whom we dealt," Montgomery added.

A previous Government witness, Robert M. Fendorf, a special agent of the Internal Revenue Service, told the jury that Cooper, in a sworn statement, said the automobiles sold to Montgomery Motor Sales Co. were at invoice prices. Cooper insisted there were no actual cash payments, Fendorf testified.

In his opening statement Assistant United States Attorney Charles Rehm said the Government would introduce evidence of other cash payments, above invoice prices, of $300 on each machine. Rehm said Cooper, vice president of Andy Burger Motors, Inc., denied specific premium payments about which he was questioned.

Druggist Testifies.
Joseph Steinback, who has a drug store at 2523 Woodson road, Overland, testified that in 1947, he advised his brother-in-law, Robert J. Ellis, and Jerome Malevan, a certified public accountant, that they could get new automobiles from Andy Burger Motors by paying $300 over the OPA ceiling price.

Ellis said he gave a check representing the ceiling price to Cooper, then paid him $300 in cash.

Cooper and Burger were indicted jointly in December 1953 for allegedly evading income taxes of the Andy Burger firm. St. Louis Crocker, vice president of Community Motors, Inc., of which Burger is president, was charged with perjury in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury last January.

The indictment charged he made 10 false statements under oath in an Internal Revenue Service investigation of himself. These charges are pending.

INCREASE SOUGHT IN AIR SERVICE TO OTHER CITIES

St. Louis Ranks Low as Aviation Center, Metropolitan C. of C. Says.

A program to obtain improved airline service between St. Louis and major cities throughout the United States has been launched by the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, its transportation commissioner, Lee K. Mathews, announced today.

Addressing a luncheon of the 300 Plus Club at the Missouri Athletic Club, Mathews said St. Louis, although recognized as the second largest rail and truck center of the nation, ranks eleventh or seventeenth as an aviation center, depending on the type of indicator used.

One of the serious needs, he said, was for more service between Boston and St. Louis. Surveys made in March and September 1954 showed that 53 per cent of the passengers between the two cities had to rely on multiple plane service, he said.

Mathews cited the recent Civil Aeronautics Board decision authorizing TWA, American and Eastern airlines to provide competitive non-stop service between Louisville, Ky., and New York City. That market involved only about 50,000 passengers a year, whereas St. Louis generates at least twice this amount of traffic to and from New York and is dependent for the only non-stop service now being furnished.

The Chamber, he said, is supporting an application of Eastern and American airlines before the CAB to provide competitive non-stop service between here and New York.

Further need exists for service between St. Louis and Cleveland and Detroit, he said, and between St. Louis and Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash., Mathews asserted.

While St. Louis lacks even single-carrier service to those cities, an officer of the CAB has recommended that Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit be given competitive non-stop service to those cities through United Airlines in addition to that type of service now given by Northwest Airlines, he said.

Another case being supported by the Chamber is an application by Ozark Air Lines and Central Air Lines to provide single plane service between Fort Smith, Ark., and St. Louis by way of Fayetteville and Harrison, Ark., and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Mathews said.

"The CAB apparently is in a receptive mood to establish additional service between major cities," he concluded. "We intend that St. Louis will not be by-passed."

KILLED WHEN HIS CLOTHING IS CAUGHT IN CORN PICKER

Martin Kueter, a farmer living near Albers, Ill., 30 miles east of St. Louis, was killed yesterday when his clothing became entangled in a corn picker he was operating with a tractor on his 160-acre farm. He was 61 years old.

His body, badly mangled, was found by two carpenters when they went to the farm to work. Investigators said the accident apparently occurred when a trouser cuff was caught by a drive shaft as he stepped from the tractor to the picker. Kueter was not married.

30 Extra Employees Changing Tax Assessments in County

Record Books Being Revised to Reflect Blanket Valuation Increase Ordered by State.

The county assessor's office has hired 30 more employees and has work under way on changing tax record books to reflect the recent blanket reassessment ordered by the State Tax Commission. It was announced today by August Rumping, chief deputy clerk in the office.

The additional employees are working in two shifts, Rumping said, in an effort to make the necessary 250,000 record changes by the end of the year. The record changes are preliminary to a parcel-by-parcel revaluation of county real estate, which will be undertaken by the assessor's office.

Funds totaling $20,000 for a start on the project were transferred last week in Assessor Phil G. Deuser's account, with the approval of Supervisor Luman F. Matthews. The money previously was earmarked for contractual services outside appraisal firms for the reassessment job.

Work on changing records to show the new valuations of property began Monday, Rumping said.

Deuser previously has said that he thought his office could get the job done for less than $850,000, the figure listed in the proposed contract with the outside firms.

Matthew's action in approving the use of the money by the assessor's office was criticized by County Councilman James H. McNary, Second District Democrat, and member of a council committee studying the reassessment program, who charged Matthews had "overstepped the committee in failing to discuss his action with the group."

SHOOTING BY FBI MAN RULED JUSTIFIABLE

Crippled Ex-Convict Killed by Agent as He Resisted Arrest.

A coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned today in the death of Leo F. Johnson, a crippled former convict, who was fatally shot Sunday when he resisted arrest by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in a third-floor room of 2205 Arsenal street.

Johnson, sought on two charges of interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, was shot twice by Frederick Harris, one of four FBI agents who went to the house after receiving a tip that he was there.

The agents testified Johnson barricaded himself in the room and shouted threats that he would kill them if they tried to arrest him. FBI reports concerning him said he was dangerous and probably armed. It was testified.

Johnson, 45 years old, flourished a bed slat, which agents at first glance thought was a rifle, it was testified. Harris said that when he rushed into the room, Johnson lifted the slat and shouted, "I'll kill you." Harris then fired, one shot striking Johnson in the right arm and the other in the chest.

The ex-convict, who used the alias of Leo Frank Conwell, wore an artificial leg and his left arm was missing.

The agents said they were given permission to search the house by Johnson's wife, Doris, who said he was not there. However, while they were on the second floor, they heard a noise on the third floor and went up to investigate, they said.

Byron H. Dunbar, one of the agents, testified he pushed the door of the room open slightly and saw Johnson crouched behind a bureau he was using as a barricade. One end of the bed slat appeared at a glance to be a rifle butt, he said.

Harris testified that when he entered the room he thought Johnson was armed with a rifle. He did not see that the weapon was a bed slat until Johnson was preparing to strike him with it, he said.

INMATE RAKING LEAVES LEAVES THE WORKHOUSE

James L. Cochran, a City Workhouse prisoner assigned to rake leaves on the grounds, went a step further yesterday and took leave himself, Warden Harold L. Baynes announced today.

The 18-year-old prisoner, sentenced June 28 to six months for operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, was hauling the leaves to the quarry and dumping them. Five minutes after a guard had spoken to him, he was missed.

"If men with less than two months to serve can't be trusted with this outside work, what kind of prisoners can you use?" queried Baynes a bit sadly.

4 FINED $200 EACH IN KINLOCH POLICE BEATINGS

Three Former Police-men and Ex-Commissioner Plead No Contest in Case.

Three former Kinloch police officers and a former police commissioner were fined $200 each by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper today when they pleaded no contest to charges they violated civil liberties statutes by beating two prisoners.

The defendants, all Negroes, were Milton L. Crenshaw, the former commissioner; Cornell McGee, former captain, and Willie Kincaid and Roosevelt Thomas, former patrolmen.

Judge Harper gave them until Dec. 1 to pay the fines and costs.

The four were charged with having violated the constitutional rights of prisoners Roosevelt Wilder and John J. W. Willis, Negroes, both 19 years old, last Feb. 26, after Wilder and Willis had been arrested in investigation of a burglary.

Trial of the civil liberties case had been set for next Monday, but the defendants came into court today to plead no contest. Assistant United States Attorney Forrest Boecker outlined the government's case.

Boecker said Willis and Wilder, following their arrest were taken to police headquarters at Kinloch. There, he said, they were ordered to remove their clothing and told to bend over a desk. He said they then were beaten with a brass-ended rubber hose and a rope.

For the defense, Walsh called Judge Harper's attention to the fact that all four of the accused were part-time municipal employees who worked full time at other jobs. He said all were married, owned their own homes, and had excellent employment records.

Walsh said Wilder had become very abusive and had cursed the police officers. The beating was administered, the defense attorney said "for the purpose of forestalling further misconduct by Willis and Wilder, and to uphold the prestige of the police department, especially among the teen-age element in Kinloch."

In imposing the fines, Judge Harper noted that the case involved no serious physical injuries but said there was no excuse for mistreatment.

KILLED AS AUTO HITS FLARE, COLLIDES

Clarence O. Simmons Dies in 3-Car Crash on Lindbergh.

Clarence O. Simmons, a construction worker, 2043A Sidney street, was killed yesterday afternoon on Lindbergh boulevard a mile north of Gravois road when his automobile struck a highway flare and swerved into the path of another machine.

Simmons, 51 years old, hit one of eight lighted flares set up at a construction barricade, St. Louis county police said. His southbound vehicle then struck a northbound automobile driven by Patrick H. Long, 1145 Wilshire avenue, University City.

Long's car was knocked broadside on the highway by the impact and was hit by a third machine, also northbound, driven by Mrs. Josephine Rice, of the Blue Haven Motel, 10000 Highway 66, police reported. Simmons was dead on arrival at St. Louis County Hospital. Long, who suffered abrasions of the scalp and right leg, was treated and released.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26 (AP)—Wind and rough seas left four men stranded aboard a barge off Godier island, 60 miles southeast of here, but a Coast Guard helicopter carried them to safety yesterday.

Surface vessels had failed in earlier attempts to rescue the men, who had been without food and dry clothing for 24 hours.

The barge became stranded while the four men sought to salvage a fishing vessel which sank in Breton sound Oct. 10. The Coast Guard identified the men as James J. Waldron, Edward Hebert and William Jenkins of Biloxi, Miss., and Carl Woleben of Gulfport, Miss.

BRITISH SALES TAXES BOOSTED BY 20 PER CENT

Butler Cuts Down on Installment Buying, Eliminates Building Subsidies.

LONDON, Oct. 26 (UP)—The government had bad news today for Britons—higher sales taxes, less installment buying and no more housing subsidies. The reason—to combat inflation.

Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler announced the news in the House of Commons when he presented a mid-year emergency budget.

The budget left income taxes unchanged, but on clothing and jewelry with a present sales tax of 25 per cent, the tax rate will go up to 30 per cent. Goods now taxed at 50 per cent go up to 60 per cent. Those taxed at 75 per cent go to 90 per cent.

Household goods, Butler said, will be subject to the lowest tax rate—30 per cent.

Butler announced scrapping of a long list of government building projects, including plans for new British embassy offices in Washington.

He said the government "was not justified in spending some 1,000,000 pounds ($2,800,000) on new offices in Washington."

He also announced that housing subsidies would be abolished and government lending to local authorities curbed.

Some telephone and postal rates will go up.

Capital expenditure on projects such as hospitals and post offices will be eliminated in the economy wave.

In cutting funds for public structures, Butler said the government of Prime Minister Eden had looked "particularly closely at plans for government buildings overseas." These drain the supply of foreign currencies which Britain needs.

Imports from January to September this year were 11 per cent above the same period last year, Butler said.

"Home demand and home spending are not only sapping the competitive power of our exports, but are also drawing in a larger volume of imports than we can afford," he said.

The credit squeeze applied earlier this year on bank loans and installment buying will "now be reinforced by further and more direct measures designed to restrain demand," Butler said.

On housing aid, he said: "We intend to abolish as soon as possible the exchequer rate for housing subsidies. The government are leaving it to local authorities to see which of these projects can be delayed."

"Let us be clear at the outset that the problems we are facing are not problems caused by a slack or enfeebled economy," Butler said. "We are moving on the tide of a vigorously growing expansion which is outstripping the resources available to maintain its strength."

"There is a general high level of well-being and activity in the country. Industrial production has been between 5 and 6 per cent above the corresponding period of last year."

"For every individual unemployed there are now more than two vacancies notified to the employment exchanges."

U.S. LAWYERS STUDY MORGENTHAU DIARIES

They Seek to Determine if Disclosure Would Harm National Interest.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—Government lawyers are examining diaries of Henry Morgenthau Jr., former Secretary of the Treasury, in an effort to decide if disclosure of their contents by Senate investigators and others would be "prejudicial to the national interest."

A spokesman for the General Services Administration told last night of this study by GSA and Justice Department attorneys. He did so after Morgenthau, who served under Democratic Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman, announced he had left it up to GSA to decide whether any government officials, including congressional investigators, should have access to his diaries.

The GSA spokesman said the Senate internal security subcommittee had subpoenaed Morgenthau's diaries several days ago. He said the group apparently was interested in certain "specific documents."

In his statement, Morgenthau indicated the subcommittee is asking for photographic copies of some 400 documents covering about 4000 pages. Subcommittee Chairman Eastland, at his Mississippi home, declined comment.

Morgenthau, reporting that a growing number of Government offices had asked to see and publish certain documents, said some of the material in his diaries contains statements "which, casually spoken, might gratuitously embarrass foreign nations or foreign statesmen."

He said his diaries now are part of the United States archives and that a decision on disclosure should be made "by those who have continuing governmental responsibility."

The internal security subcommittee has been interested in the Morgenthau diaries in the past in connection with its investigation of what influence the late Harry Dexter White may have had on Government policy. Attorney General Brownell and Eastland have said White was a Soviet spy. White, a former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Morgenthau, died in 1948, a few days after he had denied before the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he ever was a Communist or engaged in espionage.

able to move on to Geneva with any indication that he had marshalled the Big Three ministers on his side. His failure to see Pinay also was welcomed by diplomats of other powers who expressed themselves privately. They did not intend to permit any atmosphere to develop which would put Russia in a position of championing the Arabs against the Israelis and the West.

Sharett said he also expects to see Molotov in Geneva, but there has not yet been a formal agreement on a meeting. The Big Three plan to take up the Middle East question with Molotov, although as a side issue and not as a part of the conference program.

Sharett has warned that the shipment of Red arms to the Middle East was a forerunner of Soviet penetration into the area which could reopen the Israel-Arab war.

Among themselves and with close friends Israelis talk freely of an atmosphere in Israel that might permit a preventive war in the event they get neither new arms nor defensive treaties.

Molotov flew from Berlin in a silver Soviet transport plane with an American Air Force navigator at the controls. He was met at the airport by Wang Ping-nan, Communist China's Ambassador to Poland; Andre Domence, Swiss Government chief of protocol, and other Swiss officials.

He wore a black overcoat over a gray, neatly pressed suit. This is Molotov's third Geneva conference in 18 months.

Speaking into a loudspeaker system after he strode from his special plane, Molotov said:

"After the Geneva conference of the chiefs of government, we have often heard of the spirit of Geneva and it is our understanding that any action in the spirit of Geneva signifies a collaboration tending toward an improvement of international relations and a reinforcement of peace."

"One expects from the participants of this conference that they will make every effort toward finding agreeable solutions to the questions which interest everyone to bring about the success of the conference."

People sincerely hope that it will put an end to the cold war and contribute to the improvement of relations between nations.

"The Soviet delegation on its part will do all in its power to see that the conference achieves positive results corresponding to the aspirations of the peoples."

Macmillan said: "We have the chance of doing good work together and I pray that under providence we may succeed."

WELLSTON POLICE

facilities and those of the county police, headed by Supt. Albert E. DuBois, despite a suggestion by Mayor Leo Hayes of Wellston that some other authority be brought in to help.

Hayes and Duggan, head of the department, have emphasized that they will be available as grand jury witnesses whenever they are wanted, but Hayes has made no secret of his displeasure over the way county authorities have handled the matter.

Two Wellston patrolmen and a civilian previously charged in warrants were indicted by the grand jury yesterday and arrested again last night.

They are John P. (Jack) Graham and Carl Howell, the policemen, and Quentin R. Stewart, Graham and Howell were indicted on charges of second-degree burglary and larceny, and Stewart on a charge of receiving stolen property — the same as in the warrants.

They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Phil K. Moeller as they were leaving an attorney's office.

The indictments were returned shortly before the grand jury went into a session that lasted nearly six hours, ending at 8 p.m., in which it heard five witnesses.

The witness who testified longest was Mayor Hayes. He was in the room 2 hours and 15 minutes. Just before going in, he handed reporters a six-page statement in which he suggested that the grand jury obtain the help of Attorney General John M. Dalton or other outside assistance in this inquiry.

Hayes said someone else should learn "why the county officers, Mr. Garnholz and Mr. DuBois, have pursued such an erroneous policy in this matter."

Wellston Inquiry Witnesses

MAJ. WILLIAM DUGGAN, head of Wellston police department (left), and WELLSTON MAYOR LEO HAYES waiting to testify before grand jury in courthouse at Clayton yesterday.

PATROLMAN C.J. O'TOOLE MRS. GLORIA MCPHERSON should learn "why the county officers, Mr. Garnholz and Mr. DuBois, have pursued such an erroneous policy in this matter."

The mayor stated that last Wednesday, when he first told Garnholz and DuBois a burglary ring was under investigation, "each of them stated that they knew of these things going on in Wellston for three months."

Garnholz said: "The first I knew of it (the burglary ring) was when Hayes came in last Wednesday and told me about it."

The grand jury foreman, Elmer Wagner, said he had "no plan" to ask for outside assistance. "Hayes did not make the suggestion to me," he said.

Three so-called "secret" witnesses had been scheduled to appear before the grand jury yesterday but only one of them testified. That witness was recognized by reporters as Mrs. Gloria McPherson, a former bookkeeper for the city of Wellston, who was indicted in November 1954 on charges of forging 11 checks totaling about $3000.

Garnholz said the other two would be heard later, and attached no significance to the fact that they were not called as at first scheduled.

All are "scared," he said, and requested secrecy. Mrs. McPherson arrived and left in the company of a county police sergeant, and told reporters she had been directed—by whom, she did not say—not to comment on the investigation. She testified for one hour and 40 minutes.

Other witnesses, heard more briefly, were Duggan, Wellston Patrolman Charles J. O'Toole, who is a former captain and former head of the department, and a man who was not identified.

As Hayes left the grand jury room he said he still planned to have all Wellston policemen fingerprinted, "but we may have it done by the FBI instead of the county police department."

Leonard J. Jewson, a Wellston city councilman who was defeated by Hayes in a mayoral election in April 1954, told the Post-Dispatch the council has no hand in control of the police department. He said the mayor is authorized by an ordinance passed about three years ago to do all of the hiring and firing of policemen.

BOMB TOSSED INTO BUS
IN LITTLE ROCK STRIKE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 26 (AP)—A bomb that didn't explode was tossed into a bus and the home of the bus company president was fired on in a new outbreak of violence against the struck Capitol Transit Co. last night.

Nobody was hurt in either of the incidents—the first reported in more than a month in the four-month-old strike of AFL drivers and mechanics against C.T.C., which operates intracity busses in Little Rock and in North Little Rock.

James Darby, one of the non-union drivers hired to replace striking employees, drove the bus more than a mile through downtown Little Rock, taking on and letting off passengers and then called police. Police found the bomb under a seat and disposed of it in the Arkansas river. They said they didn't know why Darby, who said the bomb was tossed through a window, delayed reporting the incident.

Across town at about the same time C.T.C. president P. E. Askey said three shots were fired at his house. No one was injured.

ON NORTH BROADWAY PAVING

A low bid of $100,261 for the paving of North Broadway between Wall street and River-view boulevard was submitted by Fred Weber Contractor, Inc., the Board of Public Service announced today.

The project, authorized in the bond issue approved last May 26, calls for a nine-inch-thick concrete paving 62 feet wide. The right-of-way in this section of North Broadway is 80 feet.

The city's estimate of $115,000 for the job was close to the average of the nine bids submitted. They ranged to a high of $143,000.

M'Donnell Denies Negligence

job, he told the subcommittee, "is dealing with some 3000 suppliers and subcontractors."

Harrison testified that as deputy chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics he signed "as a matter of routine" various contract terminations. He said he "probably had opposed" an earlier termination of the Westinghouse J-40 contract in discussions in the bureau.

Accounts of damage to jet engines at the McDonnell plant through what the Navy regarded as negligence were given yesterday by Capt. C. H. S. Murphy, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics representative at the plant for about two years, and his successor, Capt. C. Park Sager, the present representative.

Shortly before his tour of duty ended Capt. Murphy notified the company it was held negligent in the cases of two engines which were damaged when foreign objects passed through them. He said the company was assessed $25,688 by the Government for necessary repairs to the engines.

"Numerous Instances."

Capt. Sager said the money apparently was not paid and that loose housekeeping practices persisted. As a result, he said, he notified the company last June that he had found "numerous instances" of damage to jet engines by passage of foreign matter through them, and that the frequency was increasing. It involved an excessively high mortality of engines, his letter said.

The McDonnell management replied that it considered the problem of prime importance. Capt. Sager continued, and promised to take steps to correct it.

Thirty-two engines were damaged by foreign objects of various sorts, only part of which could have been drawn in while engines were lying on the ramp surface, Capt. Sager told the subcommittee. In other cases, he added, the objects may have been bolts, tools, or other metal parts which came from the fuselage or which had been left lying in air intakes or ducts by mechanics.

Of the 32 engines damaged, he said, 14 had to be returned to the manufacturers for overhaul and repair. They included 10 Pratt & Whitney J-57 engines used in the new Air Force F-101 fighter; three Allison J-71 engines for the F3H-2N; and one J-40-22 for an F3H-1N.

Improper Handling.

In addition, Capt. Sager said, three J-71 engines were damaged since last May 31 through improper handling by plant personnel. This involved using lifts of 2000-pound capacity to raise the 5000-pound engines, and fork lift trucks of 4000-pound capacity to carry crated engines weighing 8000 to 10,000 pounds, he explained. Liability for the damage is still in the process of negotiation between the company and the Navy, he said.

Capt. Murphy told the committee that, despite the tone of the correspondence, it was "an extremely rare situation" when a given problem was not worked out with McDonnell. "The relationship and co-operation between the company and the Navy was excellent," he observed.

For nearly two hours yesterday, following completion of the Navy's formal presentation to the committee, McDonnell and three assistants told of the Demon's underpowered performance.

Warned Navy in Letter.

In regard to the performance of the J-40 engines, McDonnell read into the record a portion of a letter written to the Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics in April 1952 about substitution of the lighter-powered J40-22 engine for the originally scheduled J40-10.

"The loss in performance resulting from substitution of this engine will seriously reduce the plane's combat effectiveness and result in a seriously underpowered combination," the letter said. McDonnell pointed out to the committee, however, that hostilities were in progress in Korea at the time and the matter of supplying a substitute engine was a "major problem."

There always were some J-40 engines on hand because of reduced plane production, McDonnell testified. However, he said, there were not always enough of them, nor were they always in a "condition of reliability to make them safe to fly."

In June 1952 the Navy notified McDonnell by letter that the prohibitive cost of a new engine program dictated that airframe production rates be reduced until a better engine than the J40-22 was available. Five months later the Navy agreed to eventually substitute the Allison J-71, which is being installed in planes now coming off the production line at Lambert-St. Louis Field. These planes are designated the F3H-2N.

Cost $50,000,000.

The J-71 development cost at least $50,000,000, McDonnell said, and the engine did not pass its 150-hour test for operation without a failure until last summer. He said he felt the Navy was justified in trying to get the troubles worked out of the J-40 series, but that he thought it would have been wise to have another engine available as "a backup."

R. J. Baldwin, chief McDonnell systems engineer, told the committee the thrust of the prototype of the J40-22 engine was adequate until the Navy ordered the F3H-1 redesigned as a heavier plane for all-weather use.

"When the plane had been enlarged, we were furnished the J-40-22 model of the engine by the Government, instead of the planned J-40-10 model," Baldwin said. "Performance was definitely less than had been expected of the plane. Another factor was reliability of the engines. The reliability was not satisfactory, and this was a major point."

Representative Chet Hollifield (Dem., California, subcommittee chairman, questioned McDonnell as to workings of a relatively new Navy procurement program designed to eliminate future expensive losses of the type incurred in the F3H-1N and J-40 program. It involves a slow buildup to production rates until enough test planes had been flown to prove them acceptable.

McDonnell said that under this system it would take about 18 months to reach substantial production rates, and that through it the loss to the Government in case of a bad airframe or engine, or a combination of them, would be smaller than previously. Money could have been saved on the F3H-1N project in the form of tooling, material and equipment costs through that system, McDonnell said.

"Would we be trading a delay in production, possibly in time of need, for a saving in money?" Hollifield asked. McDonnell replied: "We will have finished planes in the same time, but they will not be in quantity."

He added that the entire investment in the F3H-1N and

J-40 program was not a loss, since it resulted in "a production line in being," and a good deal of flight experience that is being applied to the F3H-2N program. He said deliveries of this plane to the fleet are anticipated in the near future as a result.

"I feel that, in the F3H-1N program, the persons concerned in the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., and in the United States Navy, with whose efforts I am closely familiar, have labored long, hard and in good faith, under great difficulties, in their effort to achieve urgently needed fleet-ready airplanes," McDonnell said.

"I feel that the Navy was right on top of the situation all the time. The Navy was intimately acquainted with the continuing difficulties, and step by step the Navy slashed production schedules of the airplane as each major setback arose."

The Armed Services subcommittee has been looking into the entire aircraft program, both Navy and Air Force, it was learned. Staff work has been in progress for some time, and public hearings could begin in about two weeks, subcommittee sources indicated.

Between $7,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 is being spent annually for planes by the Navy and the Air Force. The House subcommittee wants to make sure as little as possible is being wasted. It also is expected to look into profits of the manufacturers.

HIGH COURT UPSETS SCHOOL RULINGS IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 26.—Rulings by the St. Clair county circuit in two cases involving title to school land were reversed today by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court ordered that clear title be given to Community Consolidated School District No. 70 in the case of the Batdorf and Hertel school sites.

School authorities had brought suits to have declared invalid any claims that might have existed under deeds by which the land had been acquired in the 1890s. The circuit court ruled invalid a 1947 legislative act which said such claims could not be made after 50 years. The Supreme Court, however, upheld the act.

PRESIDENT VOICES HOPE FOR BIG FOUR GAINS AT GENEVA

accordance with our Geneva directive, tackle concretely these problems for which our nations have responsibility and which, if unresolved, create tension and danger.

"Tomorrow the four foreign ministers meet at Geneva to resume where we left off last July. They will seek solutions which are possible if that new spirit is real. Foremost among these measures is the reunification of Germany within a framework of European security.

Proposals Reviewed

"Secretary Dulles and I think alike with respect to these matters; we have often discussed them and twice within the last two weeks he and I reviewed together the positions and the proposals which will be made at Geneva by the western nations. These will be designed for the promotion of peace, of justice, with increased security and well-being for all. They will reflect a genuine spirit of conciliation and accommodation. If the Soviet Union responds in a similar spirit, much progress can be made. That is my personal hope, as I am confident it is the hope of the American people.

"We shall all of us follow with eagerness the developments at Geneva, for they will go far to demonstrate whether the 'spirit of Geneva' marks a genuine change and will actually be productive of the peaceful progress for which the whole world longs."

Walks Unassisted Again.

Continuing his improvement, Mr. Eisenhower walked unassisted in his room for the second day today, and the distance was increased, a hospital bulletin reported. Mr. Eisenhower sat up unassisted in bed, then walked to his easy chair, the bulletin said.

Hagerty said the easy chair was placed "six or seven" steps away from the bed, and Mr. Eisenhower walked from bed to chair and back "several times." Yesterday, when the President took his first real steps, the chair was only one or two steps from the bed.

Hagerty said it was the first time Mr. Eisenhower has raised himself unaided from a prone position in bed. Previously the front part of the bed had been elevated to help him up.

Later in the morning, Mr. Eisenhower was wheeled onto the sundeck adjoining his room, where he remained, enjoying the bright, warm weather for 45 minutes. He had one social visitor this morning, George E. Allen, Washington (D.C.) business man and confidant of several Presidents.

Hospital Bulletin.

The hospital bulletin said: "The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications. After an excellent night's sleep of 8½ hours, the President awoke feeling refreshed and cheerful."

Mr. Eisenhower conferred for a short time with his chief assistant, Sherman Adams, on Government business. Adams will leave for Washington tomorrow afternoon to attend a cabinet meeting Friday, then return Saturday with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

Benson will see the President on Saturday with a discussion of the steady drop in farm prices expected to have high priority. Summerfield, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, will confer with Mr. Eisenhower next Monday. Hagerty denied that politics would be discussed, however.

The President conferred with Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay for 25 minutes yesterday.

Afterwards, McKay told reporters the Administration would resubmit the controversial upper Colorado river storage basin project to Congress at the new session in January.

The billion-dollar multiple-purpose project was authorized by the Senate in the last session, then died in the House after its most controversial feature, the proposed Echo Park dam, was deleted.

McKay also said he would press for Senate confirmation of former Representative Wesley A. D'Ewart of Montana as Assistant Secretary of the Interior in charge of land management.

D'Ewart, a Republican now serving in the Interior Department job under a recess appointment by Mr. Eisenhower, has been sharply criticized by some Democrats, who have described him as a leading architect of Republican "give-aways" of natural resources.

Opposed by Murray.

Senator James E. Murray (Dem.), Montana, chairman of the Senate Interior committee, has announced he will oppose the D'Ewart nomination when it comes before his committee. D'Ewart unsuccessfully sought Murray's Senate seat in 1952 in a campaign marked by considerable bitterness.

McKay defended D'Ewart strongly, saying he had recommended the appointment. He described D'Ewart as "the best qualified" man for the job.

D'Ewart, McKay said, served on the House Interior committee during his entire 10 years in Congress and has had experience as a forest ranger.

Democrats have concentrated their fire on D'Ewart's House sponsorship of a "stock grazing bill" which would have permitted cattlemen to graze their herds on public land.

D'Ewart also was criticized for his backing of a bill to permit lumbermen to exchange their timberlands for timber in national forests. Both measures were defeated.

Polish Boxer Asks Asylum.

HERFORD, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP)—Josef Pietron, amateur heavyweight boxing champion of Poland, has asked West German authorities for political asylum, police here reported today. The 21-year-old pugilist was touring West Germany as a member of the Polish national boxing team.

OVERFLOW CROWD GREET'S HENNINGS IN CLAYTON VISIT

An overflow crowd of St. Louis county Democrats attended a public reception yesterday for United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. at county Democratic headquarters, 7807 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton.

Hennings, who is expected to be a candidate for re-election next year, spent almost three hours shaking hands and visiting with members of the county Democratic committee, party workers, Democratic county officials and friends.

Ralph L. Devereaux, chairman of the county committee, estimated about 2000 persons attended the reception, the largest meeting ever held at the party headquarters. He said the turnout was "surprisingly large" because the gathering had been quickly arranged after Hennings said he would like to meet with members of the county committee and friends.

TELLS OF WORK FOR U.S. AND HIS OWN FIRM

Peter A. Strobel Tells House Group Two of Company Clients Did Jobs for GSA.

(Related Article on 1-B.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—Public Buildings Commissioner Peter A. Strobel said today he has retained his interest in his New York engineering firm, devoted some work to it, and continued to share in its profits since taking his federal position.

Strobel said also that since he took federal office on July 1, 1954, two New York clients of his firm, Strobel & Salzman, did some work for the General Services Administration of which his agency is a part.

Strobel testified before a House judiciary subcommittee which is seeking to determine if there is "any conflict of interest" between his personal business and his governmental duties.

Duties of Agency.
The Public Buildings Services is charged with the construction and maintenance of governmental buildings. Strobel said that at the present time it is constructing 26 projects worth $91,000,000.

Before taking office, Strobel said, he was "given the understanding" that he could retain his interest in his designing and consulting engineering firm while performing his duties as public building commissioner.

He said this assurance was given to him by a friend and adviser, Harry Smith, a New York business man.

(The Associated Press said Strobel firmly denied that his 90 per cent interest in the engineering firm has created any conflict of interest with his official duties.)

In reply to questions by subcommittee counsel Herbert Maletz, he conceded he may have told Maletz last month that Smith said he would check on the matter with Attorney Herbert Brownell Jr. and Thomas Stephens of the White House staff.

But he insisted that he has no recollection now that Smith ever told him he checked with Brownell and Stephens.

S. W. GSA Administrator.
He said also that he talked over his connection with the engineering firm with GSA Administrator Edmund Mansure and was told it was proper for him to continue his interest in the firm.

The Danish-born Strobel, who spoke with a slight accent, said that he felt he would be unable to accept government employment if his engineering firm was not permitted to continue to operate as before.

But he said that when he took office he gave up "active management" of the firm and that he laid down a set of rules forbidding the firm to take on any new clients with contracts with the Public Buildings Services.

Job Cost Him Gain.
"I did not come to Washington for personal gain," Strobel said. "This has been borne out by the fact that the net earnings of the firm fell in 1954 to half of what they were in 1953."

He identified the two clients of his firm who have done some work for GSA since he took office as Serge P. Petroff & Associates and Chapman, Evans and Delehanty, both New York architectural firms.

"The fact that these firms happen to be clients of Strobel & Salzman had nothing whatever to do with their retention by GSA," he said.

There has never been any secret about the fact that I have an interest in the firm of Strobel & Salzman and that I of Strobel & Salzman on Government time," he said. "I have not used Government stationery for my private business, nor have I in any way used or sought to use my official position to further the interests of the firm."

Before the hearing began, subcommittee Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, forecast "some very startling developments" in the Strobel case.

Excusing Strobel from further questioning, Celler told the witness:

"I agree there may not have been any violation of the conflict of interest statute. But there is a question of delicacy here on whether or not you ought to have disqualified yourself."

11 BAIL OUT OF B-29 BEFORE IT CRASHES IN ENGLAND

KENDAL, England, Oct. 26 (AP)—Westmoreland county police reported today all 11 crew members of a United States air force B-29 bailed out before the plane crashed a few miles south of here.

"All of the crew have been found and all have been taken to the county hospital with slight injuries," a police spokesman said.

The four-engine plane was on a training flight from the American base at Burtonwood when it developed engine trouble over the Irish sea.

FBI RADICATED ATOP CIVIL COURTS

Building of Suitable Art Commission Advises Board of Estimate.

The Board of Estimate joined the growing list of organizations which have been denied permission to install short-wave radio transmission facilities atop the Civil Courts Building.

Application to make such an installation was denied by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the Municipal Art Commission advised the board that the building is not suitable and that other adequate sites are available in the St. Louis area.

Seven requests to erect antennas for the symbolic griffins, the apex of the pyramidal roof structure were rejected in the past by the Art Commission. Previous applications included the Army Corps of Engineers.

The Board of Estimate asked Circuit Attorney Edward L. Ward to appear before it to explain his request for three marked, radio-equipped cars to assist his staff in its investigations. The board also asked him to explain his request for an additional $10,000 to carry on the police pay-off investigation.

Comptroller Milton Carpenter presented a report showing that municipal expenditures for the first six months of the current year had increased by $1,175,000 over expenditures in the same period last year, or from $23,379,000 to $24,554,000.

During comparable periods, income had increased by $509,000, from $13,680,000 to $14,189,000. Income is always low in the first six months of the year, before real estate and personal tax payments are due.

FUND CAMPAIGN KEEPING AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Donate 42 Pct. More
Up 31 Pct.

Returns from several divisions in the United Fund campaign indicate that contributions are continuing to be substantially above those of last year, the agency reported today.

Employees of the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. have already donated $26,400, a 42 per cent increase over the amount given to United Fund organizations last year, it was reported. This total, to which another $1000 is expected to be added, already exceeds the unit's quota by 24 per cent.

The Kroger Co. and its employees have reported a total gift this year of $30,800, an increase of 31 per cent above the amount contributed to the participating United Fund organizations in their drives last year. Of the sum, $31,000 was donated by employees.

Employees of Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co. reported a 28 per cent increase in pledges with their campaign still unfinished. They gave $5174 this year, compared with $4654 last year. This is an average pledge from the 350 employees of $14.78.

Comptroller Milton Carpenter announced yesterday that the city will permit United Fund payroll deductions for city employees for the first time for any charitable fund. He urged that city workers give $13 a year.

In the solicitation of householders, the first district to report exceeding its quota is that of Mrs. Paul Guadagni, 2623 Brannon avenue. She said her group had doubled its $293 quota.

First team to report exceeding its quota for household solicitation is that of Mrs. J. D. Cockman, 3224 Russell boulevard. The team, with a quota of $893, has already raised $1097.

W. B. McMillan, chairman of the large firms division of the United Fund, termed these initial returns excellent, especially in the face of the fund's request for a general increase of 11.7 per cent in all gifts to meet the needs of 114 United Fund agencies.

Plans for a special United Fund campaign among members of the Associated General Contractors and their employees, to begin Nov. 3, were announced yesterday. Chairman of the group is Eldon DeCosted.

Other members of the committee handling this work are Earl BeMiller, Van Demson, P. T. George, Herb Jones, Fred Luth, R. E. Adams, R. W. Murch, S. P. Shafsky, A. E. Elserman, John H. Lever, R. E. Salveter and J. F. Winkler. They will be assisted by Henry Till.

The drive, for a total of $8,245,925, will continue until Nov. 22.

UNITED AIR LINES JET TRANSPORTS TO SPAN U.S. IN '59

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (UP)—United Air Lines announced yesterday that it has ordered 30 jet airliners and will begin jet service between principal United States cities by November, 1959, cutting flying time from Los Angeles to New York to 4 hours and 30 minutes.

The jets, which United said will be the first in operation on domestic airlines, will cost about $175,000,000 and will be built by Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, Calif.

Flying at between 550 and 575 miles an hour, the jets will cut more than three hours from the present schedule of 7 hours and 40 minutes from Los Angeles to New York and will make it possible to fly between Chicago and New York in 90 minutes.

Pan American World Airways announced 12 days ago that it was purchasing 45 jet-powered airliners for its world-wide service.

55,000 AT WESTINGHOUSE NOW OUT; UE JOINS IUE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 26 (UP)—Some 11,000 members of the Independent United Electrical Workers union joined C. I. O. International Union of Electrical Workers in a strike against the Westinghouse Electric Corporation today, increasing to 55,000 the number on strike in a nation-wide walkout.

The U. E. members walked out at 10 plants at midnight after union officials accused the company of demanding a "five-year blackout on collective bargaining." Company spokesmen said union members began picketing plants here and at Derry, Pa., at the strike deadline.

When the company-wide strike call came, about 7,600 U. E. members already were off the job at South Philadelphia and Jersey City, N. J., plants. They had walked out Oct. 14 in protest against an alleged company plan to cut wages, reclassify jobs and demand incentive work at day work rates.

HOT WEATHER INCREASES ERRORS BY STENOGRAPHERS

CHICAGO (UP)—A survey during an August heat wave here showed that stenographic errors increased when the temperature rose from 78 to 96 degrees. Among typists, errors went up from 11 per hour to more than 95.

According to medical research, there's a simple explanation for the reasons behind the figures. The heart rate increases as the temperature and humidity go up, and fatigue and lowered output result.

U.S. MISSIONARY AIDS OKINAWA IN LAND RENTAL ROW

SAHA, Okinawa, Oct. 26 (AP)—A United States missionary told a congressional subcommittee yesterday the program of acquiring land here for military use "does not present a pretty picture."

The missionary, Darly Downs of Boston, told the seven-member subcommittee headed by Representative Melvin Price (Dem.) of Illinois that Okinawans whose land has been taken are unable to support their families on the rents. He urged that substitute land be provided.

Downs said Okinawans have an "almost religious devotion to the land."

Okinawa leaders and two farmers opposed a military plan to expand the base. They also urged higher rents for areas already under military control.

As the hearing ended, Price said no conclusions had been reached. "We feel, however, that there probably is room for some adjustments in the rents being paid," he said.

BENSON CANCELS TRIP ABROAD DUE TO FARM SLUMP

Says He Will Remain in U.S. to Prepare Recommendations to Coming Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson today canceled a trip to Europe next month in order to direct plans for improving the farm situation.

Benson's decision was announced after a visit to the White House. It was understood that Vice President Richard M. Nixon had been there at the same time Benson visited.

The cancellation was announced amid signs of growing discontent among farmers and members of Congress about sagging farm income and low prices for farm products.

Benson said in a statement he would remain here "to direct the continuing preparation of recommendations to Congress designed to strengthen, improve, and refine the present agricultural program."

Benson said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz and Assistant Secretary for Administration Ralph S. Roberts will represent him at agricultural meetings in Rome.

Benson said he would again urge Congress to approve "several Administration recommendations which were not acted upon this year." Among these he listed: legislation to implement the program for low-income farmers, expansion of the non-commercial wheat area, exemption of durum wheat producers from production and marketing controls in 1956, and repeal of marketing quota penalties on farmers who produce wheat exclusively for consumption on the farm where grown.

Benson had planned a personal on-the-spot study of markets for United States commodities in Europe from Nov. 3-22, plus making a speech before the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Rome.

Instead Benson said, he will give further study to steps to improve the farm situation such as: Effective means to divert acreage not required for food and fiber to soil building and soil conserving crops; proposals to expand markets at home and abroad; emergency programs to meet specific commodity problems—as exemplified by the current pork products purchasing plan.

RESERVE SYSTEM MEMBERS' PROFITS OFF 13 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board Monthly Bulletin said today that net profits of the Reserve system's member banks fell off by $75,000,000, or about 13 per cent, in the first half of this year.

This was despite the fact that total earnings of the 6811 member banks were some $189,000,000, or about 8 per cent higher than in the first half of last year.

The decline in net profits, the report said, was due to higher operating expenses and a decline in bank profits on sales of securities in the first half of this year compared with a year before. Total earnings by member banks—which comprise less than half of the total commercial banks in the United States but hold over 80 per cent of all deposits—amounted to $2,555,000,000 in the first six months of this year. This compared with total earnings of $2,366,000,000 in the first half of 1954.

MEXICAN SENATE DEBATES $120,000,000 WATER PLAN

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 26 (UP)—The Senate opened debate yesterday on a $120,000,000 reservoir construction project aimed at bringing nearly 5,000,000 acres of untitled land in southern Mexico under cultivation by irrigation.

The project calls for building seven reservoirs along the Grijalva and Usumacinta rivers in the states of Tabasco and Chiapas.

The reservoirs would not only provide water for irrigation but would put an end to seasonal floods and provide new sources of electric power. Engineers estimate that the Grijalva, if harnessed, could furnish electric power equal to the present total consumption of the country.

RUSSIA SAID TO HAVE FREED 3000 POLES

Most Officers Were Leaders of Anti-Nazi Warsaw Uprising.

GENEVA, Oct. 26 (AP)—Polish sources here said yesterday that the Soviet Union has released 3000 Polish officers, most of them leaders of the futile 1944 anti-Nazi Warsaw uprising in which some 200,000 Poles were killed while Soviet armies stood poised outside the city. The sources said the first 700 prisoners reached Warsaw Sunday and the remainder are expected by train from Brest-Litovsk this week. The Polish sources are here for the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference opening Thursday. They gave this account: The Polish prisoners were released on the request of Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz after Moscow announced it was returning more than 9000 German prisoners. They include remnants of 20,000 Polish resistance leaders who fell into Russian hands in the Russian and Nazi invasion of Poland in 1939. The others died in captivity. None of the prisoners was listed as war criminals by the Soviet Union, but were held in work camps without any official status except that of prisoners. The Polish government ordered the public to refrain from demonstrations when the returnees arrived, and the first group was met at Warsaw's main railroad station in stony silence. The sources said the Soviet Union called the imprisonment of the officers a "mistake" and offered to reimburse the victims. They said one man, a former colonel, returned with 75,000 rubles ($18,750) in compensation. Hawk a Willing Guest. WORCESTER, Mass. (UP)—Carl Anderson's unusual pet is a broadwing hawk. Found injured, the bird was nursed back to health and now appears to be a contented member of the Anderson household.

4 PCT. THEATER TAX DROPPED BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UP)—Bloomington's three theaters will not have to pay the city 4 per cent admissions tax after Dec. 1, but the city's moviegoers get no cut in the price of tickets. The City Council voted Monday, 3-2, to repeal the tax, after the theater owners said dwindling attendance had brought a serious drop in revenues. The tax repeal will cost the city about $17,000 annually. No changes in the price of tickets are expected, theater representatives reported.

FUR WORKERS' MERGER WITH BUTCHERS OK'D

AFL Council Convinced Union Expelled From CIO Has Rid Itself of Red Influence.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 — The AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters had official approval today to go ahead with plans to absorb the independent Fur and Leather Workers Union which was one of the unions expelled from the CIO in 1949 for Communist domination.

In giving its approval to the merger, the AFL executive council in session here withdrew previous objections when representatives of the meat cutters presented evidence that an anti-Communist group was now in control of the fur workers and that certain officers of that union who were known to be Communists had been removed from office.

At one time the council had threatened the meat cutters, who have been affiliated with the AFL for more than 60 years, with expulsion through convention action if they persisted in taking over the 45,000 fur workers.

Membership of 300,000.

The meat cutters now will be able to go into the new unified labor movement next month with a membership in excess of 300,000. Most of the fur workers are from this area and in Canada. For all practical purposes the merger has been accomplished, although it must be ratified by the meat cutters' 1956 convention. The merger agreement between the two unions contains escape clauses making it possible for either group to withdraw by 1960.

In the St. Louis area the meat cutters are enrolled in Local 88, headed by Nicholas Blassie. In announcing decision of the council yesterday to give the butchers the green light to organize the furriers, George Meany, president of the AFL, emphasized that the federation was not establishing a precedent in taking in a union that had been kicked out of the CIO for Communism. He said that the council would keep "a watchful eye" on the amalgamation to make sure there is no recurrence of Communist influence.

Others 'Knock at Door.'
Meany disclosed that several other unions which were expelled from the CIO, including the United Electrical Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, had vainly sought affiliation with the AFL.

"They have been knocking at the door," Meany said, "but have been given no consideration at all." Officials of the meat cutters, who presented evidence that 29 left-wing officers had been removed from office in the furriers, and that a summer camp thought to have been used for Communist propaganda had been closed, were elated over the council's approval.

In a joint statement, Earl W. Jernerson of East St. Louis, president of the meat cutters, and Patrick E. Gorman, secretary-treasurer of that union, said:

"We are grateful to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor for its approval of the Fur and Leather Workers' merger into the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen. We are extremely pleased by the expression of confidence shown in the efforts of the Amalgamated to rid the Fur and Leather Workers of objectionable leaders and to bring these 45,000 men and women back into the main stream of the American labor movement. We sincerely promise that the results of this merger will always be such as to benefit the nation and the American labor movement."

Air Lines Pilots Rebuked.

In another action, the council rebuked the Air Lines Pilots Association, an AFL affiliate, for alleged strike-breaking pertaining to the strike of flight engineers against United Air Lines. It directed Clarence N. Sayen, president of the pilots, to appear before it and "explain if you can your reasons for the actions of your organization in this particular instance and also the persistent policy of your organization of organizing unions dual to existing AFL affiliates in the airline industry."

Primary consideration of the council at this meeting is working out final details for the merger of the AFL and CIO scheduled to be effectuated here at a joint convention Dec. 5. The unity committee from the two bodies, which includes Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO, and Meany was in session here today.

Meany pointed out that there were so many details to be considered that representatives of the two organizations "may meet up to the last minute before the merger," but said that no serious obstacles have arisen.

SPEAKER'S GESTURES DUE TO ANT BITES, NOT EMPHASIS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Police Chief Elmer Jansen never made so many gestures during a speech before.

He was standing under a hot sun before a microphone at the police range speaking prior to issuing certificates to 51 police recruits who had finished their training.

He began swatting at his legs with his speech script. Then he batted his arm. Then his neck. His shoulder started itching. Finally he finished his talk and sat down. Then he discovered he had been standing on top of a good sized ant hill.

U.S. 'POINT IV' LIKE HIS, DOUGLAS SAYS

Senator Asserts President's Plan Is Similar to One Offered in July.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, who is something of a New Deal Democrat, was both pleased and astonished at a recent bit of news from Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver.

Emerging from a conference with President Eisenhower on Monday, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told reporters the convalescing President had approved a "Domestic Point IV" program under which the Federal Government would establish a new agency to provide economic and technical assistance to so-called depressed areas in the United States.

"Doctor," a reporter said to Burns, "do you think some people might say this smacks of New Dealism?"

"The essence of this plan really is to help communities to help themselves," the economist replied in part.

That sounded a bit familiar to assistants of Senator Douglas. They dug into the files and came up with a mimeographed handout by the Senator last July 27. The document described a bill introduced by Douglas and seven other Democrats to establish a depressed areas administration to help relieve chronic unemployment in areas of substantial labor surplus.

"The purpose of the bill," Douglas said on July 27, "is to help distressed areas to help themselves."

Calling attention to this yesterday, Douglas said he was "greatly pleased."

LIVE TV SPANNING OCEANS PREDICTED BY HEAD OF NBC

TOKYO, Oct. 26 (AP)—The president of the National Broadcasting Co. of the United States today predicted live television programs will be beamed from America to Europe within five years, and to Asia within 10.

"A chain of micro-wave stations spanning the oceans should make this possible," said Sylvester L. Weaver Jr.

Weaver is winding up a world tour to "see what the rest of the world was doing in television and radio."

RED ZONE CHURCH APPEALS TO BIG 4

East German Protestants Call for Deliverance From Oppression.

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (AP)—East Germany's Protestant church leaders last night defied their Communist government and appealed to the Big Four conference in Geneva to deliver 18,000,000 Soviet zone Germans from oppression.

They charged the East Germans are being "robbed" of human rights proclaimed by the United Nations.

A resolution by the Soviet zone leaders of Germany's dominant Evangelical Church, released by the church's office in free West Berlin, said the Big Four are "answerable to God for the future and the safety of the entire German people" because the Big Four insisted on Germany's unconditional surrender after World War II.

The resolution did not specifically mention East Germany, but the inference was clear that it referred to East Germany and not West Germany.

The Soviet Union insists an all-European security pact must be created before Germany can be unified. Assailing this standpoint, the church leaders said: "The best security pact would be endangered if the split in Germany is permitted to remain. . . . Give the German people the right to shape their own life in a reunified Germany."

The church office said the resolution has been delivered to the Bonn embassies of France, Britain and the United States, and to the East Berlin embassy of the Soviet Union.

CITES ESSENTIALS OF GOOD EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE TIES

A sense of humor and a sense of proportion are the most important ingredients of good employer-employee relationships, Edward McFaul, a Chicago industrial consultant, said here yesterday in the first of eight meetings of the Executives' Forum sponsored by the Downtown Y.M.C.A.

McFaul, addressing 170 persons at the Downtown branch, 1528 Locust street, said each side in employer-employee negotiations must retain a respect for the other man's point of view. Yesterday's meeting marked the opening of the fourteenth season of the forum.

MT. VERNON AREA BURGLARS GET 2 TRUCKS, CASH, CHECKS

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP)—Two trucks and more than $3500 in cash and checks were taken Monday night in a series of break-ins and safe burglaries in Mount Vernon and the Randolph county town of Baldwin.

In Mount Vernon, a safe owned by the Southern Illinois Equipment Co. reportedly was robbed of $500 in cash. Authorities said apparently the same burglars then moved to the nearby Dare Implement Co., took a safe containing $15 in cash and hauled it away in one of the firm's pickup trucks.

In other Mount Vernon break-ins, thieves took more than $100 from a gasoline station register and $12 from a tire company office.

At Baldwin, burglars entered the Hartmann Farm Implement Co. and carried off a safe containing about $500 in cash and $2300 in checks. Authorities said a late model half-ton truck owned by the company was reported missing and was believed used by the burglars to haul out the safe.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Administration Is Beset By Labor Troubles—President Seizes the Coal Mines—Drastic Legislation Proposed.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.
TWENTY-EIGHTH ARTICLE

THE labor unrest that developed during the closing months of the war and mushroomed into violence during the early period of my administration presented one of the most difficult and persistent of all the domestic problems I faced as President of the United States.

My attitude toward labor had consistently been one of sympathy and support. This is evident in my voting record in the Senate over a period of ten years. And later, as Vice President and then as Chief Executive, I was deeply aware of the serious problems that were certain to confront labor when the war came to an end and during the period of industrial reconversion that followed.

With the return of millions of servicemen to the ranks of labor, the workers in industry and business were faced with redeployment of manpower, with reductions in overtime pay, curtailment of wartime production and the consequent threat of competition for jobs. Questions of seniority rights came to be involved with the rights of veterans returning to their jobs. And under these new conditions many disputes arose—many of them legitimate—regarding wage increases commensurate with increased profits and with rising costs of living in the postwar period.

I always favored pay increases and other benefits where they could be effected without raising prices and encouraging inflation. I worked to restore to labor the free collective bargaining process of which it had been deprived during the war years. But it was also my responsibility, as Chief Executive, to see that the public was not injured by private fights between labor and management or among the unions themselves. I intervened in these disputes only when it became apparent that the economic welfare or security of the nation as a whole was jeopardized.

Such action on my part was first made necessary just eighteen days after I took the oath of office as President when, on April 30, 1945, John L. Lewis ordered 72,000 anthracite coal miners out on strike after efforts to obtain a satisfactory contract with the mine operators had failed. As Commander in Chief, I viewed any stoppages in any of the basic industries as direct threats to the war effort and the national security. On May 3 I issued an executive order placing the affected mines under the temporary possession and control of the Department of the Interior.

The coal strike in May of 1945 was only the beginning. Even though Lewis accepted a compromise agreement from the operators for a daily wage increase of $1.37½ for the anthracite miners, work stoppages persisted in the form of absenteeism and repeated wildcat strikes. By the middle of summer we lost more than twelve million tons of coal.

By the autumn of 1945 the labor situation in the United States was assuming serious proportions. Strikes were spreading once more through the coal mines until 210,000 miners were idle. The issue this time involved union demands for recognition as collective bargaining agents for supervisory employees.

In the Detroit area, labor disturbances were halting automobile production in one plant after another, culminating in the United Automobile Workers' strike against General Motors. This was the first strike of such magnitude following the war and involved 175,000 workers and plants in nineteen states. In scores of smaller industries in various parts of the country strikes were widespread and occasionally violent during the latter half of 1945.

Manifestation of Labor Adjustment.

While I realized that these turbulent conditions were largely a manifestation of labor's readjustment from wartime to peacetime economy, it was also clear to me that the time had come for action on the part of the government. I had decided long before becoming President that the country needed a national wage policy, effective mediation machinery and other remedial legislation which would protect the rightful interests of labor, of management and of the public.

I decided to invite the leaders of labor and management to meet in Washington to work out a new approach towards solving the industrial crisis.

After three weeks of deliberation, the conference adjourned without making any recommendations and I went before the Congress on Dec. 3 with a request for immediate legislation. The plan I recommended called for the establishment of fact-finding boards which would be directed to make a thorough investigation of all the facts involved in each dispute. They would be empowered to subpoena all records which the boards should deem relevant to the case. A cooling-off period of thirty days, during which strikes would be outlawed, would be required while the fact-finding boards were being named and the investigations made.

In order to avoid delay in the settlement of the automobile, oil and meat-packing strikes and to cope with the threatened steel strike before the Congress would have a chance to pass such legislation, I set up such fact-finding boards by executive order. While these did not have the statutory power I hoped the Congress would soon authorize, I felt that the American people would expect the employer and the employees in each case to cooperate with the boards as if appropriate legislation had been passed.

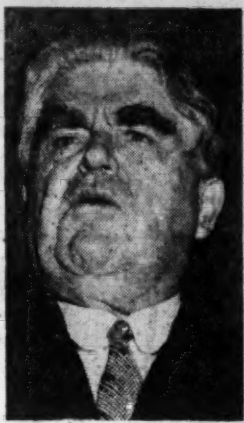

The unions—particularly the United Mine Workers—reacted violently to the plan as a restriction of the right to strike and as compulsory arbitration. It was, of course, neither of these. It was simply an attempt at peaceful mediation of labor-management disputes by eliminating the harmful effects on the public and on the national economy of prolonged work stoppages. With 500,000 coal and other workers idle in the United States at the time I made the proposal, the need for such action was obvious. Furthermore, the value of the fact-finding boards in bringing the truth before the public was proved many times. In the steel strike of January and February, 1946, the findings of the board were instrumental in bringing about a settlement even though the board's recommendations were not adhered to. Following the steel agreement, the 113-day old United Automobile Workers' strike against General Motors was concluded without this need for a meeting at the White House.

It was evident, however, that statutory authority was needed to enforce the recommendations of fact-finding boards and to forbid striking during the mediation period. In repeated messages to the Congress I asked for the quick passage of such legislation.

Railroad Unions Call Out 300,000.

On May 23, 1946, the railroad unions called out on strike 300,000 members from most of the major lines across the country. I had been conferring with the twenty unions involved as far back as February in order that every effort be made to avert a rail strike, and when it became evident that the railroad operators and the union representatives were unable to agree, I submitted a compromise proposition to the parties concerned.

Eighteen of the unions in the dispute accepted my proposed settlement, as did the operators. Two men, however—Alvanley Johnston, American people in a Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and A. F. Whitney, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen—rejected my compromise offer and refused to arbitrate the matter for their unions.

After three conferences in the White House with these men, who would not meet with the operators in the presence of the representatives of the other eighteen unions, I saw that this was no contest between labor and management, but one between a small group of men and their government. Johnston and Whitney said, despite my appeals to them, that they were determined to strike.

"You are not going to tie up the country," I told them. "If this is the way you want it, we'll stop you."

On May 24, the day following the start of the strike, I went before the American people in a nationwide radio broadcast and related the facts. I announced that unless operation of the railroads was resumed at once, I would call upon the army to assist the Office of Defense Transportation in operating the trains, and I added that I would appear before the Congress on the next day with a message on the subject.

In a joint session of the Congress on May 25 I requested strong emergency legislation that would authorize the institution of injunctive or mandatory proceedings against any union leader, forbidding him from encouraging or inciting members to leave their work or to refuse to return to work, that would deprive workers of their seniority rights, who without good cause persisted in striking against the government, that would provide criminal penalties against employers and union leaders who violated the provisions of the act, and that would authorize the President to draft into the armed forces all workers who were on strike against their government.

These were drastic measures. They were against the principles I believed in, and I proposed them only as a desperate resort in an extreme emergency where leaders defiantly called the workers out in a strike against the government.

Halfway through my message to the Congress, I was interrupted by Leslie Biffle, Secretary of the Senate, who handed me a note announcing that the railroad strike had been settled on the terms of the compromise proposal previously accepted by all except these two unions.

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon declared at the time that I had fixed the whole thing in advance, and he accused me from the floor of the Senate of putting on a "ham act." Later, however, when he learned the facts, he apologized for his statement and requested that his apology be printed in the Congressional Record. I have always held

MENZIES DISSOLVES HOUSE, AUSTRALIA TO VOTE DEC. 10

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced today the immediate dissolution of the House of Representatives and the calling of a new general election for Dec. 10. Half the Senate also will be elected.

The government's decision to shorten the normal life of the present house by 18 months had been expected ever since Dr. Herbert Evatt, leader of the opposition Labor party, had disclosed private communication with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov on the case of Vladimir Petrov, Soviet diplomat in Australia, who defected to the West and gave secret documents to the Australian government last year.

Government members believed Evatt's admissions were so damaging to labor that a government victory in an election called now would be certain.

PANAMA COURT DECLINES TO REVIEW GUIZADO CASE

PANAMA, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Supreme Court by a 4-to-1 decision ruled last night it lacks jurisdiction to review the trial of ex-President Jose Ramon Guizado.

Guizado is now serving a six-year and eight-month prison sentence on charges of being accessory to the assassination of President Jose Antonio Remon. He was convicted by the national assembly last March.

The court held the assembly had exclusive jurisdiction to try a president. It declared Guizado's petition for a review was out of order.

PEARSON GSA Official's Outside Ties Under Inquiry

Peter Strobel Said to Urge Firms' Clients for U.S. Contracts.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1955.)

WASHINGTON. A NEW conflict of interest caught in that which forced the resignation of Harold Talbot as Secretary of the Air Force has come to the surface in the Eisenhower Administration.

It involves Peter Strobel, who is in charge of the Government's multimillion-dollar buildings, including the construction of new buildings, care of old buildings, and the $150,000,000 program of leasing land and buildings from private individuals. Next to the big dam and harbor contracts of the Army Engineers, the AEC, and the big contracts of the Defense Department, he hands out the largest construction jobs in Government.

Strobel has been running an engineering consulting firm on the side. On one occasion he approached private engineers and asked them to increase the fee paid to his own personal firm. This was a contract let before he entered the Government.

He has also recommended companies doing business with his own engineering firm for Government contracts, and has also hired architects to design public buildings on the say-so of G.O.P. politicians.

When he first was appointed by President Eisenhower to this key spot in the General Services Administration, Strobel did not want to divorce himself from his firm, Strobel and Salzman. In fact, he refused to sign a standard form which states that he had no conflict of interest with any outside business firm.

Finally his chief, Administrator Edward Mansure, practically ordered him to sign. At this point, Strobel submitted an amended form, admitting his outside business, but pledging it would not conflict with his government duties.

Later, he recommended some of his firm's clients to design the new $50,000,000 Central Intelligence Agency headquarters. CIA and GSA are still disputing, however, which agency

GALLUP POLL Farmers 4 to 3 in Opposition To G.O.P. Farm Price Policies

Midwest 3 to 1 Against Administration Program—Wide Disagreement Over What Should Be Done.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
(Copyright, 1955.)

PRINCETON, N.J., Oct. 26. EVIDENCE of mounting dissatisfaction with Republican farm policies comes to light in a special poll of the nation's farmers just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

By a vote of 4-to-3, farmers across the country say they are dissatisfied with the new farm program Congress wrote into law at President Eisenhower's request.

Sentiment in the Midwest farm belt, long considered a C.O.P. stronghold, today runs almost 3-to-1 in opposition to the Administration's farm price policies.

In the same survey, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson draws a mixed reaction from farmers, with 37 per cent disapproving of the way he is handling his job, 30 per cent approving and the remaining 33 per cent expressing no opinion or withholding judgment.

The first question put to farm families: "Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the way the Republican Administration is handling the problems of farm prices and farm price supports?"

Satisfied — 43%
Dissatisfied — 37%

	Satis- fied	Dissat- isfied	Unde- cided
East — 45%	45%	31%	24%
Midwest — 20%	20%	56%	24%
South — 32%	32%	38%	30%
Far West — 38%	38%	35%	27%

Of interest is the fact that, among farmers expressing dissatisfaction with the program, there is widespread disagreement over what should be done to correct the farm problem.

The dilemma confronting Secretary Benson is compounded by the fact that dissatisfaction comes from both those who want to increase parity prices and from those who want to remove all controls.

Typical comments were: "Raise prices paid to farmers

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Home Rule Over Police

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I see that the grand jury wants suggestions from informed sources to help straighten out the St. Louis Police Department. I can't qualify as an authoritative source, but I'd like to offer a basic suggestion.

It is fundamentally wrong for a city to have no control over its own police force. I realize that some years ago the State of Missouri seized, or the City of St. Louis surrendered, control of the police force for what may have seemed adequate reasons at the time.

In spite of whatever abuses or bad administration may then have prevailed, I think that the transfer of authority should have been no more than temporary, if indeed it should have been surrendered at all.

People get the kind of government they want and deserve. A corrupt or inept city government will inevitably be reflected in its police administration. But an alert, aggressive, and untimidated press can be depended upon to expose rotten conditions before they spread, and the citizens of St. Louis can be depended upon to take appropriate action.

Under a system of home rule, the course of corrective action would be clear and direct. Under the present system of remote control from Jefferson City, the chain of command is obscure, and correction by a change of administration practically out of the question where only St. Louis is directly affected.

Surely no one will claim that the citizens of St. Louis, or their Mayor and Board of Aldermen, approve of highly placed police officers accepting earnings of prostitutes, or of officers accepting kickbacks of a dollar each from the towing fees for illegally parked cars—if these are the facts.

I venture to say that punishment and correction would come more surely and quickly under a system of home rule. The graft investigations have dragged along for too many months.

The present system of state control is working badly, and the best way to correct the situation is to return to local administration, where you can trace the responsibility through, and where you can change the administrators if they don't measure up.

The proposed home rule charter for the City of St. Louis would, I believe, return control of the police department to the city—that is now legally possible.

Prohibition Aloft

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thank you for your recent editorial concerning the serving of liquor on planes, and the hazard it has become not only for those who imbibe too freely, but to the crew and other passengers as well.

Recently our son returned by air from a trip to Europe. The plane was long overdue at LaGuardia. Later we found out that weather conditions caused the delay. We could have been relieved of some of our anxiety and we been sure that there were no drunks aboard. It would be interesting to see a list of airlines that do not serve liquor. I understand that there are some which do not.

VIOLA M. BARRETT.

Until the Heat Is Off

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Know what I just overheard with regard to the "rehabilitation program" in the Hyde Park area of North St. Louis?

The inspectors will not bother an owner with a "For Sale" sign on his property, which can be removed after the pressure is off and, with a huge asking price, he can ward off prospective buyers!

Well!

LISTENER.

Who Won?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In reporting how the top 10 football teams made out last weekend the Associated Press said the winners "shaded," "trashed," "buried," "whipped," "pasted," "upended," "trampled," "drubbed," "walloped" and "beat" the losers.

This AP man batted a thousand in finding 10 verbs for 10 games, without pulling out poor little "beat" until he got to No. 10, and without using the usually respectable "defeated" at all.

And at that he wasn't even in his second wind. Still up his sleeve were "vanquished," "extirpated," "smothered," "trounced," "nose d out," "edged," "annihilated," "overthrew," "overpowered," "prevailed over," "bounced," "whitewashed," "shut out," "victimized," "sank" and "tared."

We got a million! "Smashed," "overran," "bowed over."

DEFEATED.

Speaking of Robbery

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Omaha $145,000 jewelry theft must have furnished people in that city quite a laugh, especially when the head of the house failed to do what he usually preaches to the public, to wit: Keep your money in the bank! The jewels were stolen from his home.

As to the $3000 dog's diamond necklace that was part of the loot, thieves must have known the dog wouldn't worry about it. Thorstein Veblen's comment on that one probably would have been, "The bigger, the dumber." Omaha papers please copy.

Costly Futility in Pork

Secretary of Agriculture Benson is going to spend $85,000,000 over the next 10 months to buy pork, and the chances are that these purchases will have only the slightest effect, if any, on the price of hogs.

Why? Because Mr. Benson is using a thimble to catch a record-breaking rain. From the feedlots of the corn belt this fall the greatest volume of hogs in history is moving to the packing houses. The pork Mr. Benson will buy over 10 months represents less than one-fifth of one month's hog slaughter. It will account for less than one and one-half per cent of this year's expected pork production.

By skillful timing, Mr. Benson might be able to prevent the market from going too far below its present level. But even that is problematical, and he does not pretend to hope that he can markedly improve hog prices. For the expenditure of $85,000,000 of the taxpayers' money, very little is likely to be done to improve farm income.

Should Mr. Benson, then, be buying a lot more pork than he intends to buy, so as to affect the market more positively? We do not think so. If he bought much more, he would be unable to dispose of it through school lunches and relief. The surplus would have to be stored, and then pork would be on the same merry-go-round as butter and wheat, the surplus creating new problems of its own.

Mr. Benson is perfectly right in offering to buy only what can be consumed through the non-commercial channels open to him. But since that amount is a drop in the bucket, his purchase program, while politically necessary and socially justified, is likely to turn out, with respect to farm aid, to be an $85,000,000 exercise in futility.

It does not follow that the Government should be doing nothing at all. When pork is in surplus, buying it for consumption by school children and the needy makes sense. When hog prices drop to their present level of 65 per cent of parity, the Government cannot escape a responsibility to act. But it ought to act effectively.

Can anybody any longer doubt that we need a trial run of the production payment plan on hogs? Under this plan, a direct subsidy would be paid to hog producers to cover the difference between market prices and an agreed standard. At the present market, a subsidy of 5 cents a pound would bring the producer's return to 90 per cent of parity, and 3 cents a pound would bring it to 80 per cent of parity. At 3 cents a pound, Mr. Benson's $85,000,000 would pay the subsidy on some 14,000,000 hogs, or about one third of the number that went to market in the first nine months of this year.

It is impossible to know whether a subsidy of that amount would be sufficient to sustain a desirable level of farm income from hogs. Only a trial run can yield such knowledge. But as between spending $85,000,000 on hog purchases that can have but a negligible effect on farm income, and spending $85,000,000 on direct payments that go right into the farmer's pocket, surely the latter offers the taxpayer far more for his money.

Good Move in East St. Louis

A group of citizens in East St. Louis has exhibited foresight by forming what they call the Mid-City Improvement Association. The purpose of the new organization is to conserve residential parts of the area bounded by Tenth and Forty-second streets and St. Clair and St. Louis avenues, and otherwise work for the benefit of their community.

Looking honestly at their municipality, members of the new group say:

East St. Louis, once a city of fine and solid residents, has for several years been slipping to one of tenements and transients. Despair has replaced pride. There are far too many "For Sale" signs; too many people are leaving their homes to live elsewhere, and blight seems to have taken over.

If this is a grim report, it is no grimmer than that which would have to be written about thousands of other American cities. And it is the hard diagnosis that needs to come before corrective action can start. Let the Mid-City Improvement Association devote itself to the enforcement of zoning ordinances, regulations that prohibit the use of alleys and vacant lots for the dumping of trash and waste and other constructive measures and it may well provide a turning point for East St. Louis.

Illegal Drug Sales on the Road

There are truck drivers who violate Interstate Commerce Commission rules, company rules and common sense rules by driving longer than 10 hours at one stretch or when they are not in condition to drive. Instead of resting when fatigued they resort to the use of amphetamines, the sale of which is illegal except on prescription.

It is alarming to learn that a year of investigation by the Justice Department and the Welfare Department reveals that truck drivers are able to buy "goof balls, bennies and co-pilots" at many places with no difficulty. Illegal sales of these drugs are not confined, of course, to truckers.

Warrants have been issued against 42 individuals for selling them, generally at places such as truck stops and service stations. And Food and Drug Commissioner George Larrick asserts that there is evidence that "some truckers using the drugs have lost their lives and have risked the lives of others."

There are many other reasons for truck accidents on the highways—poor maintenance on trucks, careless driving and lack of proper safety devices, to name a few. The stamping out of the goof ball menace should help to reduce the accident rate. There is no reason for illegal sale of such drugs except profit and it is to be hoped that the Government will be able to ascertain, try and convict all those who are guilty.

Impolite Footnotes

Publication of after-thoughts on history, like those of former President Truman, Gen. MacArthur and others recently made public, are perhaps bound to provoke debate. Particularly is this true of those who are mentioned in the chronicles. The argumentation is interesting and may even be constructive as long as it is good-tempered. When it drops to bickering it can be somewhat less than meaningful—or gripping.

All this is by way of saying we wish Gen. Wedemeyer had chosen some more felicitous way of prefacing his dispute with Mr. Truman over the controversial Wedemeyer report on China than the words, "I never accuse anyone of deliberately lying . . ." Mr. Truman's comment in a speech at Chicago Sept. 9 that the report had "not a bit of common sense in it" was provocative and could also have been stated with more moderation and less heat.

Regardless of this provocation, Gen. Wedemeyer seems to have forgotten that Mr. Truman is his former commander in chief, a former President of the United States. The tone of his remarks is wanting in propriety. The exchange has added little to the public knowledge of history except that Harry Truman and Albert Wedemeyer at this point apparently do not like each other very much. And that could as well have gone unadded.

Exit Bao Dai

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem has successfully disposed of the absentee Chief of State Bao Dai as a factor in Indochina, but his country's remaining problems are much more formidable.

In the South Viet Nam plebiscite this week, voters were asked to choose Diem as chief of state "and entrust him with the mission of setting up a democratic government," or to choose Bao Dai "and reject Diem with his mission of setting up a democratic government."

These were loaded questions, but the phraseology had little effect on the outcome of the voting. Most of the voters were illiterate and marked their ballots according to pictures of the two contestants. And the voters were certainly in earnest since nearly 5,000,000 turned out for the first national election in their country's modern history.

In any case, the result was a landslide vote against Bao Dai. As a playboy puppet of French colonialism, the former Annamese emperor had done little to endear himself to his people. But Premier Diem, preparing to declare a republic with himself as president, obviously interprets the national distaste for Bao Dai as support for himself. And the United States, which made Diem its nominee, wasted not a day in recognizing the premier as chief of state.

Yet the facts of South Viet Nam permit no feeling of security. Premier Diem has been unable to restore law and order despite many skirmishes with warring sects. He has not resettled thousands of refugees from the Communist North. He has not met charges of corruption affecting his government though not himself. Above all, he has not succeeded in building a popular government, much less a representative one.

The situation is so serious that Wolf Ladejinsky, American land reform expert sent to Saigon, has stated that the most fundamental land reforms cannot even begin until the government restores security to the countryside and convinces farmers that it is here to stay.

In addition, Premier Diem has ignored American and French advice and the terms of the 1954 Geneva armistice by refusing to discuss terms for a national election with North Viet Nam. Thus he played into Communist hands by making his government appear to be the chief obstacle to national unity.

The plebiscite removes Bao Dai and makes Premier Diem appear less easily replaceable. It strengthens his hand with his Western mentors, if not perhaps with his people. Still the difficulties of securing either the Diem Government or South Viet Nam for the free world have grown no less for discarding a discredited emperor.

Higher Education Made Easy?

We do not know whether it is described as "Black Magic 1" in the university catalogue, but Brown is offering a course in conjuring. The teacher is H. Adrian Smith, a magician. He is devoting a fair amount of time to the history of magic, but practical work also is included. It could be that if a freshman worked hard on this course, he might not have any serious trouble with any other course during the rest of his collegiate career. In examinations, the student could pull answers out of a hat. But he had better not pull them out of his sleeves. That has been tried.

Patents: Help or Hindrance?

Learned Hand, retired Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals at New York, has made a startling statement about patents in this country. Testifying at a round-table discussion in Washington conducted by a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Judge Hand said that it would take "a thorough-going investigation" to determine whether the patent system followed in the United States is aiding or hindering scientific progress.

The eminent jurist is quoted by the Associated Press as saying further that the world of law and legislation is divided into two diametrically opposed groups on this subject. Without patents, says one camp, the United States long ago would have lost its supremacy in industry and technology. Because of patents, counters the other side, our development has lagged behind what would otherwise have been achieved.

Since Judge Hand has long sat on a court where thousands of patent cases have been heard, he speaks out of a long experience with the problem. Surely a question so important as this one ought to be examined sufficiently to suggest which side has the weight of evidence. Senator O'Mahoney, who conducted the important economic and industrial hearings before World War II, is well fitted to go into the patent question further. Judge Hand makes the problem too urgent to leave it hanging in mid-air.

The Phone Rings on the Farm

A lesser-known blessing which the Rural Electrification Administration has brought to the farm homes of America is its subsidiary program of telephone service. That service is based on the fact that the same wire that brings electricity to the farm can also bring the telephone. As the REA phone program passes its sixth birthday, Oct. 28, it can look back on a record of accomplishment as remarkable in its way as rural electrification itself.

In these few years the telephone has been brought to more than 500,000 rural subscribers over more than 45,000 miles of pole line. One hundred and seventy-six companies and 175 co-operatives have performed this achievement through utilization of REA loans. Right here in Missouri one of these systems alone is serving 7824 telephones—the Grand River Mutual Telephone Corp. of Princeton.

What all this has done in relieving the isolation of farm homes, only those who lived there in the days before electricity and the telephone would be able truly to tell. It has also made the farmer more efficient, conserved his time, freed him from some of the burden of distance. It has made farm life safer in event of medical emergencies. It has enlarged the horizons of companionship and information for farm families.

This is a fine example of public and private effort combined to make the lives of Americans better, richer and more enjoyable. The $235,000,000 in loans from REA which made it financially possible is being repaid. Can anyone really consider that money an expenditure, a loss from the United States Treasury, rather than an investment being recovered after being put to a remarkably good use?

Those Insufferable Brooklyn Chaps Between Book Ends

The Mirror
 Public Opinion

From the British viewpoint, those Test Matches for Rounders known here as the World Series are somewhat mysterious, but the result is clear: the Yankees and the stock exchange suffered a cruel blow, and those Bums will be more offensive than usual.

Alistair Cooke in The Manchester Guardian Weekly

NEW YORK. Brooklyn is one of the five boroughs of New York City, and according to those who have been there is full of surprising and even genteel charms. But to the well-informed the world over it is a place with only one tree under whose frowny branches huddles a sunny baseball team nursing clownish delusions of grandeur.

The baseball team is known in the record books as the Brooklyn Dodgers, just as Sixth Avenue in Manhattan is visibly marked as The Avenue of the Americas.

Both titles are embarrassing in a way that is hardly to be envied by the humble objects they describe. The Brooklyn baseball team's true name is the Bums, or—in the tribal dialect spoken south of Manhattan—"dem bums."

Manhattan on the other hand, rich and soulless though it may be, has a baseball team known, wherever men cringe in awe, as the New York Yankees. Its supremacy in the American national game of rounders is so taken for granted that its triumph since the war have added to the autumn glory as monotonous as the maples turning scarlet.

The Bums had somehow struggled up to the top of their league and challenged the Yankees four times since the war, but in 1947, 1949, 1952 and 1953 they slunk back to Brooklyn and to ridicule. This autumn the Bums again met the Yankees in the annual test matches, which in these parts carry the obscure title of world series. The winner is the one who takes four of seven games. Inevitably and properly the Yankees won the first two games. No team that lost the first two games has ever been known to win the series. Whereupon, uranium and thorium shares slumped.

A Discount on Segregated Housing

Mike McGee, Real Estate Editor, in The Memphis Commercial Appeal

"Segregation has not been abolished in the dollar market," Auvergne Blaylock, Memphis builder who specializes in the construction of Negro homes, commented bitterly.

"The money lenders, the mortgage buyers up North, should put their pocketbooks where their mouths are. If they are so interested in better living conditions for the Negro, why do they insist on showing prejudice against the Negro who wants to buy a home?"

Mr. Blaylock, by his bitter comment, brought sharply into the foreground the problem that arises every time some Memphis, or other Southern developer, wishes to provide better housing for Negroes.

Other Memphis mortgage men, who were afraid of offending "home office executives," have been even more brutal in "off the record" comment. "I wish," one said recently, "if those people are so hepped on helping the Negro, as they say they are, that they'd turn loose a little money for Negro housing. Oh, a few have gone into the Negro market, but, boy, how they discount you."

Discounting was another straw that was breaking Mr. Blaylock's back.

"As you know," he said, "I recently completed my Peter Rabbit Subdivision for Young Couples. Houses were spoken for faster than I could build them. The houses were FHA approved for mortgage insurance. They sold with a minimum down payment of 5 per cent, plus closing costs, under the FHA regulations then in effect. I had to move the mortgages at nearly 3½ per cent and the revenue was transferred to the steady investment of a Yankee victory. Just to be on the safe side, the Bums won the next three. They were reminded of their station in life by a Yankee victory in the sixth game.

On the final day at one o'clock the score was tied. This would be the deciding game, and to men who know a doubleplay from an lbw there was no doubt the Bums would once again fulfill their ludicrous Pagliacci destiny.

It did not happen. The Bums scored two runs in nine innings and the Yankees, paralyzed by the marvelously steady bowling of a young 23-year-old left-hander from a small town in New York state, scored no runs at all. The same bowler, one Johnny Podres, had kept the Yanks from a single run in eight innings of the Monday game. The man who can prevent the Yankees from scoring a run for 17 consecutive innings has never yet been born; and it was being conceded in the delirious saloons of Brooklyn that Podres is a leprechaun.

The upshot was the impossible: the Brooklyn Dodgers, who have tolled and sobbed among themselves for 52 years, won their first championship in history. How to convey to a well-disciplined and unshockable trans-Atlantic reader the marvel and the absurdity of it? Imagine the Grenadine Islands winning the test matches. Better, imagine Mr. Philip Roth as Prime Minister and you will have a pretty accurate idea of the apotheosis of the underdog that caused Brooklyn to be put under the stern martial law of its Irish cops.

Up to this very hour on a crisp and sunny autumn day, the city surges up from Brooklyn, which is about as densely populated as Monaco, and a faint mushroom-shaped cumulus cloud is forming way to the south.

For at least one year the Brooklynites will be even more offensive than usual, but in a different way. They will straighten their bent backs, they will throw away their handkerchiefs, they will be alert and talkative and victorious—and insufferable.

Not the Strutting Type

A GERMAN OFFICER, by Serge Groussard. (6 p. Putnam's Sons, 218 pp., $3.50.)

Since the time of Frederick the Great, the German officer has traditionally been accepted as the symbol of superlative competence and ardent devotion to duty in professional military circles. This novel is a searching study of a typical German officer, Wehrmacht Col. Karl Bruckner, written by a Frenchman who served as a war correspondent with the Russian armies and had ample opportunity to observe German officers at their best as well as their worst.

The story begins at the end of World War II when Bruckner was released from a hospital in Cologne. His left sleeve was empty and his right foot crippled. With only a few reichsmarks in his pocket he went off to live in the rubble of the shattered city. Although he was sick and hungry, his pride as a German officer would not permit him to accept relief.

Most of the novel is about Bruckner's encounters with the British occupation authorities, but when he appears at the Cologne Spruchkammer or denazification tribunal his wartime activities are described in long flashbacks. Groussard's tribunal finds him culpable, despite his assertion of the classic Kesselring defense that he had been "a soldier obeying orders that were never countermanded." Bruckner is eventually cleared of war guilt, and in 1953 is restored to his rank of colonel to serve with the border police of the West German Republic.

Once more he is a German officer, wearing a tight-fitting tunic and glittering boots, but just when it appears that his wheel of fortune has come full circle he is unexpectedly required to pay with his life for a crime committed long ago during the fighting in Russia.

Those who expect to find a Teutonic barbarian in this novel, such as De Maupassant described in "Mademoiselle Fifi," will be disappointed. Groussard meticulously avoids either admiration or reproach, and though he chalks up some very black marks against his subject he is chiefly concerned with making the reader understand the character and motivation of the German officer. In this he is only moderately successful—perhaps because the flat caricature of the strutting Prussian is too familiar to be easily refuted and Col. Bruckner doesn't make enough of an impression to count as evidence one way or the other.

Up From a One-Room School

TEACHER OF TEACHERS, by Ambrose L. Sublie. (Richard B. Smith, West Ridge, N.H., 418 pp., $5.)

In 1891 Ambrose Leo Sublie, then 17, began teaching in the one-room Pennsylvania school from which he had graduated that year. He continued his schooling and his teaching alternately until 1905, when he joined the faculty of Stetson University—as administrative assistant to the president—under an agreement which included his Ph. D. degree as part of his remuneration.

From Stetson he went to the University of Pennsylvania for graduate study, after which he taught in South Carolina and at a Pennsylvania teachers' college before returning to the university as director of its training school. It was a long, devoted, and influential career—on one-room teacher at a time when six weeks' review of spelling and arithmetic was acceptable preparation, to teacher of teachers of teachers at a time when (except under the emergency pressures which nowadays have become chronic) a four-year degree is the minimum acceptable preparation. Certainly the pride with which Prof. Sublie recounts his story is amply justified by the breadth and significance of his work, the unvarying wholesomeness of his influence.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Democrats Can Make Their Own Record

WASHINGTON.

WHETHER IS THE DEMOCRATIC presidential candidate next year—and we are fully aware daily of the keen rivalry for that honor—he will be better off for having a platform on which to run. In this respect the Democrats are lucky.

Stokes

They control Congress and thus have a chance to write a platform for their candidate by their accomplishments in the legislative body, rather than relying chiefly upon criticism of Eisenhower Administration policy.

They can, in short, offer a contrast by their specific measures. This is a rare opportunity for it is seldom that the White House and Congress are split between the parties as they are now.

Harry Truman's Example.

Only once has been an exception to that rule in this century—in 1948 when President Truman was re-elected after Republicans had won Congress in 1946, two years before.

That astounding upset in 1948 was ascribed in part to the Republican management of the Eightieth Congress and the manner in which its failures, particularly in the field of social welfare, were capitalized by President Truman in his aggressive 1948 campaign.

So Democrats have a fairly recent warning that they can club their big chance for a complicating factor also when they took over control of Congress last January which makes their job more difficult. That was the continued high personal popularity of President Eisenhower despite the waning of his party in public favor as demonstrated in the 1954 congressional elections.

Bolder Tactics Needed.

Consequently the Democratic leadership in Congress proceeded warily, avoiding any attack upon the President himself. It did not offer any comprehensive legislative program of its own, declining to take the initiative.

Here and there, as occasion offered, the Democrats sought to revise the Eisenhower program to make it closer to Democratic philosophy. That was mainly in matters of domestic policy. In foreign affairs it supported the President's position by and large.

But for the second, pre-election session of the Eighty-fourth Congress that begins in January, the Democratic leadership will adopt bolder tactics.

At the outset, the House-Senate party leadership is expected to outline in broad terms a party legislative program which can serve, in effect, as a sort of platform for the coming campaign to the extent that is possible in a program in Congress.

Its emphasis will be on domestic issues, since we may expect in foreign policy a continuation of the co-operation of the first session. Democrats will, however, insist upon our keeping up our guard and will resist vigorously any weakening of our defenses in any respect. They will follow a cautious policy of watchful waiting so far as Russia is concerned.

Some Republican Help.

On domestic matters Democrats already have made a beginning in two measures affecting voters as a whole and one affecting a segment of our population that is important both economically and politically.

Both of these measures were passed by the House in the last session and are pending before the Senate. One would authorize a flat $20 across-the-board tax cut for every taxpayer, lower from 65 to 62 the age at which women become eligible for old age pensions under the Federal Social Security system.

The other would restore rigid price supports at 90 per cent of parity on five basic agricultural commodities in place of the flexible formula supported by the Administration and voted by the Eighty-third Republican Congress. The margins of Democratic victory were narrow on the tax and farm bills.

The Pay-Off Question.

In projecting these measures for Senate consideration and action, the party leadership will not be bound by the form approved by the House, but may revise them. Nor can the leadership expect 100 per cent support from the party, especially on tax and farm measures.

Here recruits will be needed from Republican ranks in the Senate. On its part, the Republican leadership will try to hold party lines in support of Administration policy with the result that we may expect hard battles and close votes.

In these and other issues, including the controversial and yet unresolved highway and federal aid-for-school-construction measures Democratic leaders are aware of the pitfalls and political risks.

But to overcome the Eisenhower influence, whether he himself is the candidate or not, they believe that a legislative record on which they can go to the people to combat the Republican party is their best possible argument.

In politics there is nothing so helpful as to be able to have a good answer to the question: "What have you done for me lately?"

'THE PAJAMA GAME' AN ENJOYABLE SHOW

Best Musical Comedy Since 'Guys and Dolls' Has Contagious Vitality.

By MYLES STANDISH

Some people make you feel good just to be around them. That's the kind of a show that "The Pajama Game," which opened a three-weeks run last night at the American Theater, happens to be. Its enormous good spirits are wonderfully contagious. I don't know when I've enjoyed myself so much. It's the best musical comedy to hit the theatrical scene since "Guys and Dolls."

All the enthusiastic reception this received when it burst on New York a year and a half ago—it's still running there—was certainly justified. As a matter of fact, it's hard to be too enthusiastic about the show. One might have wondered at first, from a thousand miles away, how such a prosaic situation as labor trouble in an Iowa factory even if it made Sleep-Tite pajamas, could even be musical comedy material, and add as an afterthought that prosperity must really be here when such things could be approached in such frolicsome fashion.

But one wouldn't wonder five minutes after the curtain went up to Buster West's blandly self-introduction as he identified himself as a time specialist in the factory, and after informing us this was a drama of deep significance and esthetic symbolism, went into a dither with the boys and girls at the work tables over something jumpy called "Racing With the Clock." The show has tremendous vitality. It has exuberance and gusto, and is chock full of clever ideas. In its jauntyness it takes off like a saucy merry-go-round and whirled faster and faster.

The hand of that old master showman, George Abbott, who was co-author of the book and co-director with Jerome Robbins, is everywhere evident in the show's raucous and explosively brilliant staging. Each number seems to be even better than the one before. If there is such a thing as sheer fun, I suppose this would be it. And at the same time, it has the result that we may expect hard battles and close votes.

In these and other issues, including the controversial and yet unresolved highway and federal aid-for-school-construction measures Democratic leaders are aware of the pitfalls and political risks.

But to overcome the Eisenhower influence, whether he himself is the candidate or not, they believe that a legislative record on which they can go to the people to combat the Republican party is their best possible argument.

In politics there is nothing so helpful as to be able to have a good answer to the question: "What have you done for me lately?"

Officials of the garden said this was the first time since the establishment of Shaw's Garden in St. Louis that a greenhouse-size collection had been moved in from Gray Summit. Individual plants and flowers have been brought here in recent years, they said, adding that many such plants could not be grown in the city before smoke control.

TESTS OPEN SEARCH FOR BEST SCHOLARS

Students in 10,000 High Schools Vie for 350 College Scholarships.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP)—A nationwide search for scholars got under way today in 10,000 American high schools. The prizes are 350 four-year college scholarships for the country's most promising seniors.

More than 50,000 youngsters are taking examinations in their high schools that will narrow the field for the scholarships. It is the official start of the biggest privately-financed scholarship program in the history of American education.

The National Merit Scholarship Corp., set up last summer with a $20,000,000 grant from the Ford Foundation and a $500,000 grant from the Carnegie Corp. of New York, is conducting the program.

Besides scholarships financed with its own money, the corporation is administering scholarships given by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation and Time, Inc., publishers of Time and Life magazines. The corporation said other business organizations are planning eventually to take part, increasing the size of the program in future years.

The students competing were picked by their principals as the most promising 5 per cent of each senior class. The 4000 seniors who survive this first test will be eligible for a second examination Jan. 14. Top scorers on the January test will be screened by a board to pick the scholarship winners.

The winners will receive from $100 to $2000 a year to attend any college of their choice. The amount depends entirely on financial need rather than on the youngsters' finish in the examinations.

All the candidates are taking the same two tests, designed to show their ability to take advantage of advanced education. The names of the 1400 next most qualified youngsters who are not among the 350 winners will be submitted to colleges and other scholarship agencies for consideration for other scholarships.

RED CHINA DEBATE BY RADIO NEWS MEN

Leon Pearson, Bill Costello Argue Question of Admission to U.N.

The question of whether Communist China should be admitted to the United Nations was debated last night by Leon Pearson, National Broadcasting Co. commentator, and Bill Costello, White House correspondent of the Columbia Broadcasting System, at Soldan-Blewett High School.

They were the speakers in the first of an annual series of lectures sponsored by the Washington University Association. Pearson argued that Red China should be admitted, saying that that would not "imply moral approval of the government."

Costello, arguing against admission, said making Communist China a member would be a violation of the U.N. charter and only serve to strengthen the country economically and in prestige.

In arguing against Pearson's contention that Communist China is undergoing a "gradual change away from misbehavior on a grand scale," Costello said the Peiping government's entry into the Korean War, holding of United States citizens as hostages and policy of creating "friction points in Asia is evidence it has no respect for the United Nations."

He called admitting Red China "an implicit abandonment of Formosa."

In reply Pearson declared the United States was "two Chinas." He denied that Communist China's admission to the U.N. would be a violation of the charter, pointing out that Russia and her satellite nations "are certainly not peace-loving."

He contended that "by admitting Communist China, we are putting her where she can best be watched."

By Z. Lee Stokely
Ozark Sportsman and Outdoors Writer.

Some 30 years ago the State Fish and Game Department attempted to restock Missouri with wild turkeys. A biologist was assigned the project and Sam A. Baker State Park was chosen as the site for raising the birds. Long runways were built and they were inclosed with woven wire fencing to prevent the turkeys from escaping their confines. Thousands of them were raised to mature birds and they were then hauled in trucks to various locations and released.

The experiment was a failure. The flocks immediately found their way to the various farm houses in the neighborhood where they were released and started "cawking" for their breakfast. This writer recalls the opening of the turkey season, and the resultant hunt just outside the confines of Big Spring State Park where a large number of these pen-reared birds had been released. We employed a guide and left Van Buren before daybreak.

The guide unerringly led us to a flock of 20 or more birds, and, pointing his finger at them laconically, said, "There they are." The turkeys were grouped together not more than 30 steps from us and looked at us with much more curiosity than fear. "How close can we get to them?" we inquired.

"Close enough to knock them in the head with a baseball bat," the guide replied. "They'll eat out of your hand if you have a little shelled corn to offer."

Needless to say, we ended the turkey hunt then and there without firing a gun.

Too Much Domestication. It is doubtful that these birds were of the pure wild strain. They also were reared in a state park and had become accustomed to constant visitors. Any animal raised to adulthood in constant association with humans loses its sense of fear. Squirrels that have made cities their habitat lose their fear of man, and in many city parks they will approach and take nuts from the hands of those who wish to feed them.

The reverse is true of domesticated animals gone wild. The ordinary house cat becomes feral when it reverts to the wild. The wild hog is another example of domestication with man. But the "wild" turkeys that were released were incapable of feeding for themselves, and although statements have been made that some of these birds adapted themselves to their new environment, it is questionable if a single bird escaped from the predators and starvation that followed their release.

At one time, nearly 100 years ago, wild turkeys were found in great abundance over the state. It has been conservatively estimated that they exceeded 250,000 in number. Old records show they sold for 25 cents in the St. Louis market.

In the Ozark hills huge oaks and pines furnished food and cover for immense flocks. The towering trees kept the sunlight from penetrating the forest floors and afforded a cleared runway for them to take off in their flight when predators approached. Sawmills soon devastated this natural turkey habitat and by 1900 this noble bird had disappeared from all but a few areas north of the Missouri river. In southern Missouri the remnant flocks were confined to remote areas relatively free from human interference.

Restocking Turkey Again.

Today the Missouri Conservation Commission is trying to bring back the wild turkey. The Peck Ranch has been designated as a management area and research center. The ranch, covering about 24,000 acres, is in northwestern Carter county about eight miles northeast of Winona. The whole area has been placed under woven wire fence, scores of ponds have been dug and fountains installed on the ridge-tops to furnish additional sustenance for the birds. Old worn-out fields were fertilized and planted to crops that provide high quality food so essential to turkey production. It is hoped that the Peck Ranch will eventually furnish a surplus of breeding stock from which birds can be trapped and removed to other areas suitable for wild turkey propagation.

Two areas in north Missouri have been stocked with semi-wild strains on an experimental basis. The first area is centered around Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge. Forty-two turkeys were released there nearly a year ago. It is said that some 20 of these birds survived. The second area where semi-wild birds were released is in the Daniel Boone forest area of southwest Warren county. Ninety-nine birds were released there. The Swan Lake birds were purchased in Maryland and those in the Daniel Boone area were from Pennsylvania.

It will be 10 years or more before the experiment will prove a success or a failure. The Peck Ranch experiment seems by far the most likely to succeed. But all three of the test projects are much more logical than the fiasco of 30 years ago. It may be that in days to come the Thanksgiving festive board again will be graced with the noblest of all American game birds—the wild turkey.

Blackhawk Goalie, Once Benched Here, Blanks Boston

Al Rollins Stars in 2-0 Game

By Harold Flachsbarth

Last December, Goalie Al Rollins of Chicago's faltering Blackhawks took an 8-goal beating in St. Louis at the hands of the Toronto Maple Leafs and soon thereafter was benched in favor of Hank Bassen and Rookie Ray Frederick.

Last night at The Arena Goalie Rollins, 29-year-old native of Vanguard, Saskatchewan, again was the center of attraction in the first National Hockey League game of the season here, but this time the opposition had nothing to show except a goose egg.

It wasn't especially an overpowering offense that the rejuvenated Hawks showed against Mill Schmidt's bruising Boston Bruins. But when a team scores a shutout, its defense is just about perfect, and that's why Rollins today was celebrating his first whitewash job since two seasons ago.

Chicago's rousing 2-0 victory over Boston moved Dick Irvin's road-weary warriors into a tie for second place in the National League standings with New York and Boston. Each has eight points, and Montreal leads with 11. This was the fourth of seven straight games away from Chicago for the Hawks, who are on their way to Montreal for a game tomorrow night with the league leaders.

A Team Effort. Irvin, however, the season said, "If that big guy in goal holds up, the Blackhawks might get to third place in the N.H.L." Rollins was terrific in making 33 saves but he needed help, too, from alert defensemen like Gus Mortson, Lee Fogelin, Benny Wolt, Allan Stanley and Frank Martin. And up front the forwards were checking the way Irvin teams at Toronto and Montreal were accustomed to check.

Goals were needed to win and the big ice-breaker was supplied by Rookie Hank Ciesla, a $15,000 draftee who led the entire Ontario Hockey Association junior scoring last season with 106 points at St. Catharines. He and another highly esteemed recruit, Hec Lalande, played catch with the disc in a beautiful passing-to-and-fro sequence before Ciesla backhanded one past All-Star Goalie Terry Sawchuk at 9:28 in the second period. It was a nifty shot, from less than six feet out. Also it won the game.

Chicago's insurance goal came with only three minutes left in the third period and 13 seconds remaining and Johnny Wilson lifted this one past the little-suspecting Sawchuk from the center zone, near the blue line. Terry stopped 30 shots in a dazzling performance that almost matched Rollins's, but this one Sawchuk didn't even see. There was only a token wave of his big stick at it bounced past him to put the game out of Boston's reach.

All This and a Fight, Too.

To make it an even more enjoyable evening for 5668 fans, there was a good, old-fashioned hockey fight spicing the tense second period in which Rollins made 14 stops. The principals in the longer-than-usual ice brawl were Mortson and the Bruins' Marcel Bonin, fiery Frenchman who formerly did his stick swinging and fist swinging for the St. Louis Flyers.

Mortson won the fight, it seemed from the lofty press box, with several telling rights that floored his opponent twice, but he lost the referee's decision. Because when they picked up the gloves and sticks and the pushing of others subsided, Mortson drew seven minutes in penalties (two for holding and five for fighting) and Bonin only five.

It was while Mortson was still in the cooler and Bonin's return had given Boston a manpower edge that Rollins danced his best for several remarkable boot saves. Later when Wolt was dug and fountains installed on the ridge-tops to furnish additional sustenance for the birds. Old worn-out fields were fertilized and planted to crops that provide high quality food so essential to turkey production. It is hoped that the Peck Ranch will eventually furnish a surplus of breeding stock from which birds can be trapped and removed to other areas suitable for wild turkey propagation.

Two areas in north Missouri have been stocked with semi-wild strains on an experimental basis. The first area is centered around Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge. Forty-two turkeys were released there nearly a year ago. It is said that some 20 of these birds survived. The second area where semi-wild birds were released is in the Daniel Boone forest area of southwest Warren county. Ninety-nine birds were released there. The Swan Lake birds were purchased in Maryland and those in the Daniel Boone area were from Pennsylvania.

Black Hawks Brewin' Trouble for Bruins

Five Games, 14 Fumbles, 12 Interceptions Later, Mizzou May Gain Use of Jim Hunter

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 26.—Coach Don Faurot is hoping, though he won't get definite word until Thursday, that he can use Jim Hunter at quarterback in the Colorado game at Boulder Saturday, giving him his starting backfield combination intact for the first time since the opening game with Maryland.

Hunter's charleyhorse, coupled with injuries to other starters, has seen the Missouri Tigers use six starting backfield combinations in as many games, a factor that is partly responsible, at least, for the 0-6 record.

These various combinations have lost the ball on 26 occasions in six games, 14 times by fumbles and 12 by interceptions, which can be blamed for at least eight of the touchdowns scored by opponents.

Hunter is taking part in football drills this week, but skipping all contact work, until X-ray examinations Thursday determine finally whether he can play this week.

Coach Faurot plans to return once-ailing Sonny Stringer as a starter at left halfback and with Gene Rott at fullback and Bill Rice at right halfback, could have his original backfield available if Hunter is able to return.

The Buffaloes, unbeaten in four starts until they ran up against Oklahoma's Sooners last week, are rated by Assistant Coach Merle Schlosser, who scouted them, as "good as any of the top teams we have played." He was particularly impressed with a good two-deep line and the veteran backs.

In the absence of Pat Fischer, reserve fullback out for the season with a charleyhorse, Faurot has shifted George Cramer from halfback to fullback, and promoted Irving Hammer, junior end, from the B-team to the varsity on the basis of his performance in the Bee's 39-19 victory over Arkansas State here Monday. The junior edition of the varsity has been beaten but once this season, and that time by Missouri freshmen.

Colorado Center Out. BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 21 (AP)—The Colorado football squad received a setback yesterday with word that Jim Uhler, 200-pound junior center, had chipped a bone in his left hand and would be lost for the Homecoming game Saturday against Missouri.

Uhler, who hails from Chicago and is Coach Dal Ward's No. 2 pivot man, turned up at practice with his hand in a cast. The first string center, Don Karnoski, also is ailing with a bruised shoulder, but the Buffs' trainers hope to have him ready for Missouri.

Colorado ran through a 30-minute scrimmage against the freshmen yesterday.

Extra Hockey Game Here a Possibility

THE next National League hockey game scheduled in St. Louis is Dec. 20 against Montreal, but Arena officials said there was a possibility a fifth game would be added Dec. 9.

That's the new date of the Sugar Robinson-Hobo Olympic lightweight title fight at Chicago Stadium. A Boston-Chicago game is slated in Chicago that night, too.

It could be that the hockey game, if it must be played that night, will be transferred to St. Louis.

Former Tennis Queen Awarded $95,000 by Jury

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 26 (UP)—Mrs. Maureen Connolly Brinker, former world's champion, today held an award of $95,000 in general damages from a cement company for accident injuries she claimed forced her to give up professional tennis plans.

A superior court jury made the award yesterday. Mrs. Brinker had sued for $265,000 damages. She charged injuries suffered when a horse she was riding collided with a truck of the Pre-Mixed Concrete Co. forced her to cancel tennis plans.

Her attorney told the jury she could have earned at least $75,000 a year as a professional. The company attorney contended she had no intention of turning pro and was responsible for the accident.

Doctors testified one of the main arteries in her leg had been severed. They said if she suffered injury to other arteries it could lead to amputation of the leg.

Polkinghorne, Siegel Leading Bears' Attack

A sophomore and a senior today are the offensive statistical leaders of Washington University's Bears, who are preparing for their Homecoming game Saturday—Washington and Lee University at Francis Field.

Don Polkinghorne, sophomore fullback, has gained the most yards rushing for the Myrtle and Maroon—346 while Mel Siegel, senior tailback, has passed for more yards than any other member of the Bears—532.

Siegel, the over-all offensive leader, has run and passed 668 yards in his advance to a third straight season with 1000 or more yards at the Hilltop.

Rushing, Polkinghorne's 346 net yards have come in 75 carries for a 4.61 average. Siegel has run for 137 and Jere Clapp for 124.

Passing, Siegel has completed 34 of 60 passes, seven of which were intercepted. Ken Miles has connected on five of 15, two of which were picked off by the foe, for 107 yards.

The Bears' punter, Don Sauer, senior end, kicked only once in the 26-14 victory over Western Michigan, but that was a 53-yard effort and boosted his season's average to a handsome 40 yards even, which would be a Washington record if maintained throughout the season.

Speaking of records, Siegel just might break two more after his three touchdowns at Kalamazoo gave him 31 points for the season and 148 for three years on the Hilltop. The Bears' career high of 181 was set by Jim Bursi in four seasons while Ted Dunn holds the three-year mark, 174 points. Siegel has four games to go.

Washington Tech Wins Cross-Country Meet From Kirkwood, Ladue

Washington Tech showed it was ready for Friday's district cross-country race at Forest Park when it defeated Kirkwood and Ladue yesterday in a triangular meet over the state course opposite the Forest Park High School.

Tech had the low score, 30, with representatives finishing second, third, fifth and fifteenth. Bruce Calder of Kirkwood finished first in 1:36 to help the Pioneers to come in second with 39 points. Ladue posted a 91, the Rams taking a fourth among the leading finishers.

Although 43 runners participated, only the first five from each school were counted.

HILLSDALE, Mich., Oct. 26 (AP)—The Hillsdale College football team is eating pretty good these days.

A restaurant on the campus gives a steak dinner to any Hillsdale player who scores a touchdown.

Halfback Nate Clark has scored 14 times this season—14 steak dinners.

Clark saved up 11 dinners, then invited Hillsdale's first-stringers to join in the feast with him.

Now he's working on a second banquet. Three down, eight to go.

Bucs in No Rush To Pick Pilot, New Boss Says

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26 (UP)

—The youth movement of the Pittsburgh Pirates spread to the front office today following the appointment of 37-year-old Joe L. Brown as the youngest general manager in the National League.

Brown, young in age, but an 18-year veteran of executive experience, takes over officially Nov. 1, replacing Branch Rickey Sr., who will remain as advisor and chairman of the club's board of directors.

Although retaining a strong hand in the operation, Rickey agreed with Pirate President John Galbreath that Brown would be in complete charge of running the team.

"Joe will run the team—he's on his own," Galbreath said after announcing Brown's appointment yesterday at a news conference.

Brown, freely admitting that he's a "Rickey man," immediately mapped plans for the Pirates' future. He said he would welcome trades with other clubs "just as long as such trades will help us."

"But we won't give up any power at the plate or trade off our best pitchers unless we get more in return," he added. "We're through experimenting. We'll go along with experienced men or bring in only players from our higher farm classifications."

Heart Attack Caused Death of 14-Year-Old Junior Grid Player

MIDWEST CITY, Okla., Oct. 26 (AP)—A heart attack was believed to have caused the death of a 14-year-old junior high school football player during a game here last night.

Monroe Garland, a 190-pound tackle on the Putnam City team, collapsed and died in a huddle after four minutes of play.

An examination disclosed no injuries.

"To the best of our knowledge he was in the best of health," said Joe Garrison, Putnam City coach.

Robinson Needs Month to Mend; Olson to Rest

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (AP)—The International Boxing Club believes it will take Sugar Ray Robinson, who suffered an ankle injury, a month to get well and back in shape for his title fight against Middleweight Champion Bobo Olson.

The I.B.C. yesterday postponed the Chicago Stadium fight scheduled for Nov. 4 to Dec. 9 because of Sugar Ray's injury.

Robinson, the I.B.C. said, sprained his ankle while training Sunday and tried to work out yesterday but couldn't because of the pain.

At his Greenwood, N.Y., camp, Robinson said "I am at a loss for words. I'm so disappointed. I was in excellent condition."

Olson broke camp and planned to go to his San Francisco home for a layoff of several weeks.

"I'm naturally disgusted," said the champion. "I've put in a lot of work for nothing."

Olson's manager, Sid Flaherty, said "There's nothing we can do about it. It's part of the business."

Truman Gibson, secretary of the I.B.C., said "We took action just as soon as we learned how seriously Robinson was hurt. This comes as a blow to us because the ticket demand was unusually heavy. Even cheaper seats were going faster than usual, indicating a near capacity crowd."

The postponement will give the I.B.C. another chance to lure Robinson to Chicago for his workouts in an effort to boost ticket sales.

Robinson came to Chicago last week for the formal contract signing and immediately left for his Eastern camp.

Gibson, however, said he would attempt to persuade Sugar Ray to shift his camp to Chicago when he resumes training.

U. S. Amateur Boxers Lose to British Squad

LONDON, Oct. 26 (AP)—A rugged British team thumped the United States 7-3 in an amateur boxing tournament last night with light middleweight Frankie Davis of Fort Wayne, Ind., knocked out in a major upset.

Roy Francis flattened Davis, a K.O. specialist himself, with a stiff right to the chin in 56 seconds of the first round. The knockout punch came as Francis had landed simultaneous rights to the head.

Most of the 10,000 fans in Wembley Stadium thought the Americans had won another bout on the card and booed the decision that sent England's Brian Jones the lightweight match over Jack Pucias of Eugene, Ore. Pucias dumped Jones for an eight-count in the first round with a terrific body punch and had the Englishman on the canvas for counts of eight and nine in the second.

It was the second defeat for the Americans within five days. They were beaten 8-4 in Ireland last week. The United States team has two stops remaining on the European tour—vs. Germany Nov. 1 and vs. Sweden Nov. 11.

Other results:
Heavyweight—Dave Rent, England, outpointed John Richmond, Brighton, Fla.
Light Heavy—John Horne, Washington, D. C., outpointed Ed Wollard, Kingston.
Middleweight—Ron Parren, England, outpointed Paul Wright, Flint, Mich.
Welterweight—Nicki Garrison, England, outpointed Walter Sabbath, Detroit.
Light Welter—Robert Gofar, Philadelphia, outpointed Rex Murray, England.
Featherweight—Arthur Davlin, England, defeated Joe Charles, Berkeley, Calif., on a foot.
Bantamweight—Don Weller, England, outpointed John Czechan, Danbury, Conn.
Flyweight—Haj Shamsi, Malaysia, scored first round TKO over Bernard Lloyd, England.

Wins at Crystal Lake.

Mrs. Carroll Street had 46 for nine holes to win the championship flight low net in the final weekly golf tournament of the Crystal Lake women. Each contestant was limited to three clubs during the round. The A flight was won by Mrs. B. M. Hatter, 47, while Mrs. A. H. Obrock, with 40, was low in the third flight.

Olympic Soccer Tryout Games Here Nov. 20

By Dent McSkimming

Plans for the selection of soccer players to represent this area in the national Olympic team trials call for a series of games to be played here Nov. 20, it was announced today by Harry Luecke, secretary of the Missouri Soccer Commission. A committee made up of representatives of all leagues and groups in the St. Louis district will meet soon to name the players who will be invited to play in the Nov. 20 games, Luecke said.

Site of the games has not yet been determined but a request has been forwarded to the City Park Department asking permission to use Grounds Two at Fairground Park.

All league and exhibition games here will be cancelled for that day, giving players and club followers a chance to see the trials.

Khoury Soccer League games scheduled for Nov. 6 have been moved forward to fill next Sunday's open date. In drafting the season schedule, Khoury officials left every fourth Sunday open to accommodate national cup matches. The first round of such matches involving Khoury clubs will be held Nov. 6 with Liberty facing Carondelet of the Municipal League and Spanish Club of Muny meeting St. Ambrose of C.Y.C. League.

Kutis soccer club has announced that its game with Nexaca club of Chicago will be played Saturday night, Nov. 5, leaving the usual Sunday date (Nov. 6) open for the playing of a high school football game. Chicago's colorful Falcons, with Center Forward Ed Murphy leading the attack, will be here Sunday. This will be the sixth intercity game of the season for Kutis including two played at Milwaukee.

Banks, Baker In Cubs' Fold

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (UP)—The one-two punch of the Chicago Cubs infield, Ernie Banks and Gene Baker, have signed their 1956 contracts, the club announced last night.

Their contracts were the second and third received by the club for the coming season. Outfielder Hank Sauer was the first to sign several days ago.

The Cubs' infield pair were the only season-long bases and shortstop to play every game of the past 1955 season.

Banks set a new home run record for shortstops with 44, set a new National League record with five grand slam home runs, and led the Cubs in hitting with a .295 average. He drove in 117 runs, and since the end of the 1953 season has played 318 consecutive games for the Chicago north side club. He led the club in fielding with a .972 percentage.

Baker led second basemen in total chances with 432 putouts, 444 assists, and 30 errors.

Mt. Olive to Meet Gillespie Eleven for South Central Title

Mount Olive's Wildcats can clinch the South Central Conference football title Friday night when they play host to Gillespie. The Gillespie club having one of its poorest seasons in history, but will probably be shooting the works against their ancient Macoupin county rivals. Gillespie has had stern competition, losing to such clubs as Collinsville, Hillsboro, Belleville and Wood River, while battling to a 6-6 tie with Duplo.

Mount Olive has whipped Carlinville, 31-14, and Bend, 7-6, in conference competition while shading Hillsboro, 7-6, and Auburn, 14-6 in outside contests. The Wildcats have been beaten by Wood River and Collinsville.

Staubert will entertain Bend in another loop tussle Friday night, while Carlinville goes outside the conference to Bethalto Saturday night.

League standings:

Mount Olive — 7 W 2 L 0 T
Gillespie — 6 3 1
Bend — 5 4 1
Carlinville — 4 5 1
Staubert — 3 6 1

M'Bride Football Award

The fifth annual McBride High "favorite football player" award will be announced at the game with St. Mary's Nov. 6. Bob Hennicke, an end who won the award last season, will make the presentation. The alumni sponsor the award and the student body does the selecting.

Other previous winners were Bob Sydlowski in 1953, Jim Wilson in 1952 and Lee Manna in 1951.

NOISY CAMPAIGN ON AS FILIPINOS PREPARE TO VOTE

Magsaysay's Reform
Administration Faces
Its First Popular Test
Nov. 8.

By ALBERT RAVENHOLT
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch
Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

MANILA, Oct. 26—Filipinos on Nov. 8 will go to the polls in the first popular test of the reform administration President Ramon Magsaysay inaugurated nearly two years ago.

The noisy campaign underway, meanwhile, is challenging the capacity of the nine-year-old Philippine republic to hold free and orderly elections. So far 10 politicians and their henchmen are officially reported killed. But tempers are rising; local issues here tend to generate more violence than a national presidential contest such as the one held in 1953 and scheduled every four years.

At stake in this election are the local offices that control political power and patronage—and incidentally government—through the Philippines. Seven chartered cities, including Manila with a population approaching 2,000,000, will elect mayors and vice mayors. The governors of 52 provinces and members of their provincial boards are to be chosen. In 1127 municipalities, mayors, vice mayors and councilors will be elected.

9 Senators to Be Picked.
At the national level Filipinos will elect nine Senators to their 24-man upper house.

These Senators who serve six-year terms are elected at large throughout the country. Congressmen here serve four years and the last House of Representatives was chosen in 1953.

The task of managing elections belongs to a fourth branch of government which Filipinos by constitutional amendment in 1940 added to the traditional American Legislative, executive, and judicial functions. This is an independent commission on elections. Its three members are appointed by the President of the republic for nine-year terms.

This commission and its staff is becoming a growing influence for stable and free government in the Philippines. Since it is a pioneer effort, the commission is slowly establishing precedents for its authority in countering lawless infringements on the franchise of citizens.

Throughout the Philippines the commission's staff, including flying teams of lawyers, is checking through the lists of about 6,000,000 registered voters. So far they have purged more than 100,000 fictitious registrations from the lists, including nearly 50,000 in sugar-rich occidental Negros which has acquired a reputation for "electoral anomalies."

Meetings in Trouble Spots.
This year the commission is holding conferences in each of the 10 provinces in each of the four regions of the Philippines. These meetings give an opportunity to air grievances, and a code of political conduct is thrashed out.

For the first time in Philippine history the provinces of Lanao, Cotabato, Sulu, Bukidnon and Mountain province are holding full-fledged elections for local officials. Mountain province is in the hinterland of northern Luzon and is inhabited largely by Igorotes and other aboriginal peoples. The other four provinces are on the big southern island of Mindanao and include the homeland of the Moros, the fierce Mohammedan tribesmen who now number nearly 1,000,000.

The extension of the franchise to these peoples is something of an experiment. Twenty years ago, in an informal election among the Moros in the mountains around Lake Lanao, two candidates for governor and three candidates for mayor of Dansalan, the largest town, were killed by the opposing factions unwilling to leave the outcome of the contest to the ballot box. This time the appointed incumbent governor of Lanao, who is running for election to the office, has been given an extra guard of constabulary troops lest some of his enemies resort to former tactics.

School teachers this year will play an important role as they have increasingly in Philippine elections. Throughout the approximately 30,000 precincts in the islands the commission has named teachers to head the local electoral boards—in many barrios or villages the public school teacher is the best educated and most public spirited citizen. In addition the Nacionalista and Liberal party each nominate a representative to the local board.

No Names on Ballots.
In the Philippines ballots do not carry the names of candidates. Instead the voter must write in the names of the officials he selects. This gives an advantage to candidates who have short names and is one of the reasons advanced for altering the present requirement that Philippine voters prove minimum literacy.

This year the literacy requirement is being used to cut down on fraud. When the voters registered they were required to sign the commission's new "voters affidavits and list of voters." On election day before a citizen may enter the polling booth he will be required to sign again and match his first signature. These efforts of the commission on elections is encouraging Filipinos to value more highly their franchise.

SPEECH PROBLEMS NEED SOLUTION BY AN EXPERT

BROOKINGS, S.D. Oct. 26 (UP)—Gayland Draegert, associate professor of speech at South Dakota State College, says the home is not the place for intensive correction of speech problems in children.

Parents tend to expect too much of the child and, as a result, often make the child feel rejected.

When a prominent speech problem is apparent, the child should be taken to a speech specialist, just as the child is taken to the doctor when he is ill, Draegert said.

SECOND YEAR CALLED VITAL IN CHILD'S MENTAL HEALTH

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (UP)—Dr. Henry Work, a child psychiatrist, says the second year of a child's life may be the most important one from the standpoint of mental health.

"It is the year of socialization," explained Work, of the University of California at Los Angeles and nationally known psychiatrist.

"During the second year the child generally learns most of the basic social patterns. He learns to feed himself and is toilet-trained. He learns to walk and thus is removed from his 'sit-down world.' He also begins to learn how to get along with other people."

Work pointed out that "mental hygiene should be part of normal child care," and urged that doctors and parents be "concerned with how early mother-child relationships are established."

"Many psychiatric problems in childhood can be prevented with a better understanding of this relationship," Work added.

Budget Switch.
SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP)—The city commission at its budget meeting did a switch: it asked the park commission to request more money. It said more park development was needed.

RUSSELL GIVES LAUSCHE BOOST AS '56 CANDIDATE

Calls Ohio Governor
'Middle of Roader'
Who Would Please Southerners.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio today was the beneficiary of the strongest boost he has yet received as a potential candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, a power among southern Democrats in Congress, propelled Lausche's name into the nominating convention picture with a personal declaration in favor of a "middle-of-the-roader" as the party's 1956 presidential candidate.

Lausche, Russell said, is a middle-of-the-roader, whereas "some of the other candidates might be a little too far to the left for the people in my part of the country."

The Ohio Governor, as Russell sized him up, would be a "formidable candidate."

"The Ancient Philosophy."

"I think that millions of old line Democrats are anxious to get back to the ancient Democratic philosophy," Russell said.

As the field now stands, he continued, Adlai E. Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee are candidates for the nomination, Russell said.

Were the convention to be held tomorrow and Stevenson to announce he would accept, he would be nominated, Russell said.

"Stevenson has an advantage over the rest," he added. "He is better known to the country because he was the nominee in 1952. He was an able candidate then even though he didn't get so many votes."

Russell hurriedly summoned Washington reporters to his office late yesterday a few hours after he was described at New York as having launched a "boom" for Lausche. He explained here that he was simply being polite when he was questioned at New York on his arrival at the end of a two-month tour of Europe.

Calls Lausche "Dark Horse."

He said he had been asked if he saw any possible "dark horse" in the Democratic presidential situation and that he replied Lausche might be one.

Russell emphasized here that he is not trying to start a boom for Lausche.

Whether Russell intended to start a boom for the Ohio Governor or not, his bracketing of Lausche's name with his own expressed favoritism toward a middle-of-the-road candidate left little doubt in the minds of his interviewers that Lausche is at the top of his list.

Gov. Lausche, now serving his fifth term, has often been talked of as a possible presidential candidate. He is a Roman Catholic, a fact that has appeared to discourage some party strategists. He is expected to go into the Democratic convention as Ohio's favorite son candidate.

Russell's Bitter Comment.

Russell, regarded as a middle-of-the-roader among his southern colleagues in the Senate, flatly stated that he would not seek the nomination. With just a touch of bitterness he commented that he was from the wrong side of the tracks, presumably meaning the Mason-Dixon line.

In the 1952 convention, Russell made a strong bid for the nomination, at one time having the votes of about one fourth of 1200 delegates. One of the factors which seasoned politicians have taken into account in failing to push him as a potential candidate next year is the bitter attack he made on the Supreme Court because of its decision outlawing segregation in the public schools.

"I am considered by some to be one of those reactionary conservatives," Russell said.

Expects Warren to Run.

He predicted that Chief Justice Earl Warren would be the Republican nominee.

"Warren has never taken himself out of the race as emphatically as did Sherman," the Georgian said. "Moreover it's a little unusual for a Chief Justice to go around making speeches and crowning queens and saying at the same time he doesn't want to be President."

He said, too, the former California Governor had visited several European countries with large minority populations in the United States.

(Supreme Court aids said the Chief Justice had traveled in Germany, Austria, France, Luxembourg, Norway, Sweden and Denmark last summer. They had no comment on the reference to beauty queens.

Still insisting "I'm not for anybody," Russell said he thought Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, would make "an excellent President." He added, however, that he did not know what effect Johnson's recent heart attack would have on his plans.

He expressed hope that the 1956 convention would boil down its platform to conform with the comparatively conservative document which came out of the 1952 convention and on which Franklin D. Roosevelt ran.

"I hope it won't have a separate section for everybody who wants to build a lockjaw dam," he said.

Russell was asked if he would refuse to support a convention nominee not entirely satisfactory to him.

"I have always supported the convention nominee," he replied, "even though sometimes

I had to take some smelling salts into the voting booth with me."

Lausche Says He Will Run For Office, Not Sure Which One.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio said today he will run for elective office in 1956, but that he hasn't decided on which one.

He declined again to comment on boosts he has had for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Boarding a plane for Columbus, he told reporters:

"There are at this time two courses open to me. These are either running for re-election as Governor of Ohio or for the United States Senate."

He said, "I am going to run for elective office in 1956, but I have not made up my mind as to which one."

Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, said Lausche might easily attract southern support if a deadlock develops at next August's Democratic convention.

Apparently in reference to these remarks, Lausche said: "It is a dream of many persons who seem to have a friendly disposition toward me."

Lausche, who had spent three days visiting New York, mentioned other possibilities for the nomination.

He listed Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee; Gov. Averell Harriman of New York; Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee; Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan; and Gov. Robert Meyner of New Jersey.

Lausche said all are "men of impeccable character, and in the past have all given great service in the public offices they have held."

The Ohioan expressed belief Williams will be "very much in the limelight as time goes on" and described Meyner as a "forceful and fine statesman."

Lausche said he had "not spoken to anyone either directly or indirectly politically while in New York City."

He said he had made no commitments to any possible Democratic presidential nominee.

The Governor repeated at La

Guardia airport a statement he made before the Ohio Society in New York Monday night that President Eisenhower "is a great military leader and an even greater civic leader, and the country needs him."

U.N. GROUP ALLOWS APPEAL
IN FIRING DAMAGE AWARDS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—At the United States' request, a United Nations General Assembly committee voted yesterday to give member governments the right to appeal against damage awards made to discharged U. N. employees.

The administrative and budgetary committee recommended 27 to 18 that rules of the U. N. Administrative Tribunal, which judges employee-employer disputes within the U. N., should be changed to authorize appeals by governments, the secretary general and aggrieved employees to a specially established committee.

The United States has been fighting to curb the tribunal ever since it awarded $179,000 in damages in 1953 to 11 American fired from the U. N. after refusing to tell Congressional investigators if they or others ever had been Communists.

Washington U. Man Re-elected. Eugene E. Seubert, Washington University admissions counselor, was re-elected president of the Missouri Association of Admissions Officers yesterday at its annual meeting at the University of Kansas City.

CITY TAVERN CLOSING ACT CONFUSES BARS IN COUNTY

The bill passed recently extending the closing hour on Saturday night for St. Louis taverns has created confusion among many St. Louis county tavern owners, Albert L. Lucas, district supervisor for the State Liquor Control Department, said today.

Lucas said his office has been flooded with telephone calls from county tavern operators wanting to know if they may remain open until 1:30 a.m. Sunday instead of closing at midnight.

The bill, which becomes effective within 30 days after it is signed by Mayor Raymond B. Tucker, applies only to St. Louis, not to the county. Lucas pointed out. He said Kansas City is the only other community in the state which permits taverns to stay open until 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

RED CHINA TELLS PORTUGUESE TO ABANDON MACAO

Claims 400-Year-Old Colony and Warns Occupation Won't Be Tolerated Longer.

HONG KONG, Oct. 26 (UP)—Communist China laid claim today to the 400-year-old Portuguese colony of Macao and warned that Portugal's "continued occupation" of the Chinese coastal territory can no longer be tolerated.

Red Chinese propaganda organs distributed and broadcast the claim and warning. They started both Western and Chinese circles here and in Macao and were seen as the possible opening shot in a Communist campaign against the Portuguese colony.

Macao is the oldest permanent European settlement in the Far East, having been leased in 1557 from China for settlement by the Portuguese.

It lies in the delta of the Canton river, 65 miles south of Canton and 40 miles west of Hong Kong across the Pearl river estuary. The colony consists of the city of Macao and three small offshore islands. Its population is listed as 374,737.

After Portugal leased it, the colony rapidly developed as a leading port for China's foreign trade and flourished through the eighteenth century. The Portuguese proclaimed its complete separation from China in 1849-49, and this was confirmed in 1887 by China.

"Have Never Forgotten." A dispatch distributed by the Communist New China news agency quoting the official Peiping Peoples Daily said: "The Chinese people have never forgotten Macao nor have they forgotten they have the right to demand the recovery of this territory from the hands of the Portuguese colonialists."

"The fact that Macao has not yet been returned to China does not mean the Chinese people can tolerate the long continuation of the occupation of Macao," it continued.

"Apparently the Portuguese authorities in Macao mistake the Chinese people's peace policy as a sign of weakness."

Radio Peiping said flatly that Macao "is Chinese territory."

The Communist broadcasts did not mention the British crown colony of Hong Kong which occupies a similar position off the south China coast. In recent years Hong Kong has become one of the principal outlets for Chinese Communist trade and demands for its "liberation" came to a halt.

Timed with London Visit. Peiping's statement was timed, however, to coincide with the arrival in London of Portuguese President Francisco Higinio Graveney Lopez on a state visit.

The Anglo-Portuguese alliance is the world's oldest and both nations are vitally concerned with Communist ambitions toward their outposts.

The Peiping broadcast warned that Red China may take Macao back with support from India. Peiping said Prime Minister Nehru of India supported its claim and "even told the Indian Parliament on Sept. 17 that Macao should be returned to China as a matter of course."

Peiping cited Red China's support of Indian demands for an end to Portuguese control of enclaves in India.

Observers in Lisbon said that the Portuguese government would refuse even to consider the Communist Chinese claim.

PARIS DESIGNERS ACCUSE AMERICAN OF STYLE PIRACY

PARIS, Oct. 26 (AP)—Four of France's leading fashion houses announced last night that they will file in a New York court today a complaint charging a New York man with style piracy and asking for $1,350,000 damages.

The Paris dressmakers—Christian Dior, Genevieve Fath, the House of Lanvin, and the House of Patou—in a written statement identified the New Yorker as Frederic Milton.

The fashion houses said that Milton sold sketches of almost the entire collections of the principle Paris coutouriers within five days after they were shown in Paris. Distribution of sketches and pictures of each season's collections is prohibited for one month after the opening showings by the Paris Designers' Institute.

In New York, Milton said there was no foundation whatever for the charges.

"I am an original designer and I show my sketches here half a year before Paris shows theirs. Their suit is merely a shot in the dark to find the reason for their slackening business, for which I am certainly not responsible," he said.

TRAIN HITS TRUCK, NO ONE IS INJURED

Driver Leaps to Safety —
Colorado Eagle Delayed
25 Minutes.

The trailer portion of a tractor-trailer truck was struck by a Missouri Pacific passenger train at the Sulphur avenue crossing near Manchester avenue yesterday. No one was injured.

Edgar S. Vessell, 2221 Huntington drive, Overland, the truck driver, told police he was going north on Sulphur intending to turn into Manchester. As he crossed the tracks, which parallel Manchester, he said the crossing signal was not flashing.

Vessell said he was forced to stop at Manchester to await a break in the heavy rush-hour traffic on that street. At this moment, the westbound Colorado Eagle, approaching at a speed of about 45 miles an hour, struck the rear end of the trailer as its rear wheels rested on the tracks.

Foreseeing the impending crash, Vessell jumped from his cab and was unhurt. The diesel locomotive, operated by engineer Mark L. Hodges, 1651 South Spring avenue, was only slightly damaged and no passenger was hurt. The train was delayed about 25 minutes.

Two bystanders were struck by flying debris, they told police, but were not injured. The truck was owned by the L. A. Tucker Truck Line of Cape Girardeau.

EX-PRISONER IN CHINA SAYS PARTNER GOT PROFITS, WIFE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (AP)—Walter Desmond says while he was interned in China his partner took not only their importing business but also his wife.

The Japanese held Desmond in 1938 and the Communists from 1947 through 1953, he asserted in a suit filed yesterday seeking to dissolve the partnership with Jack Zatulovsky and force an accounting of profits.

When Desmond returned to the United States, he said, Zatulovsky refused him a share in the firm's profits. The partner had also married Desmond's ex-wife, who had divorced Desmond in 1937 while he was in China, the suit added.

But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him,

And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

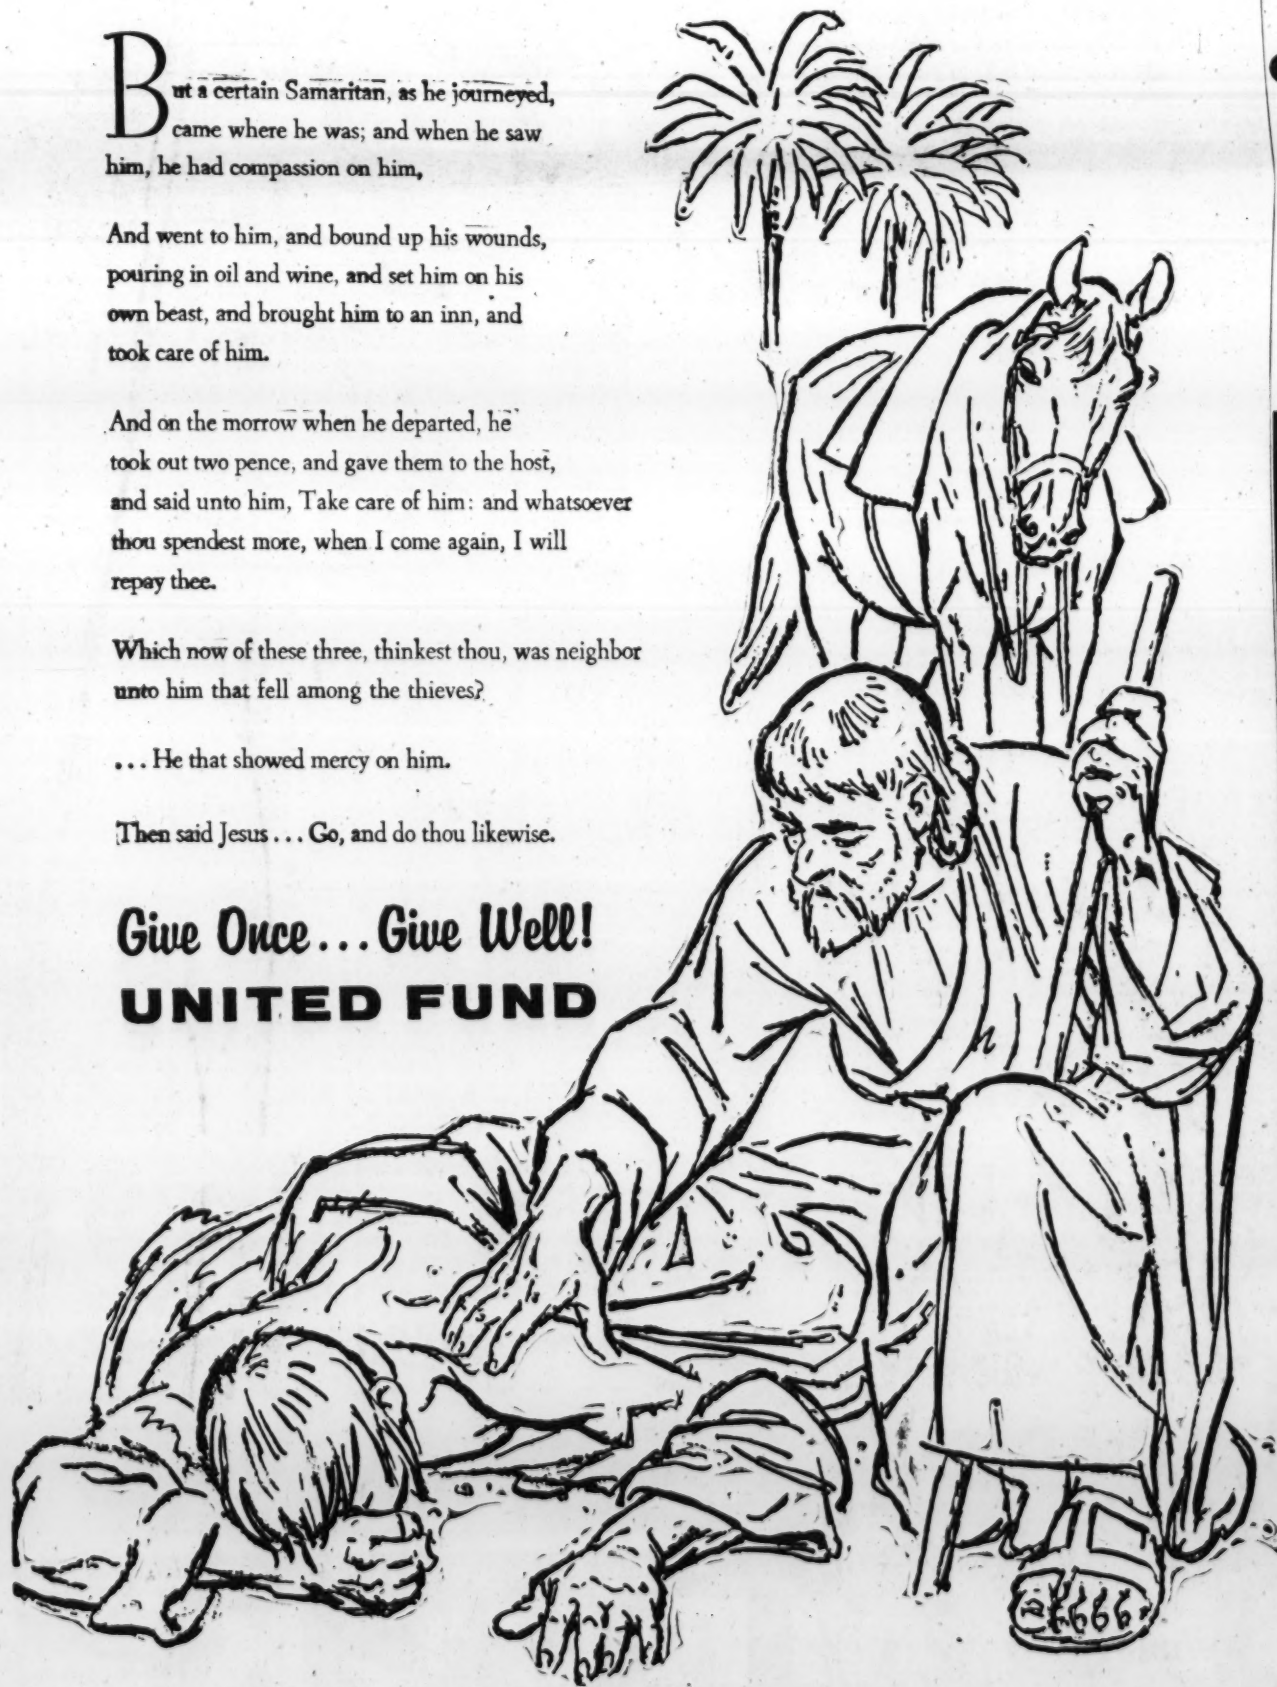

And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him: and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves?

KEFAUVER MEN TAKE HOPE IN CALIFORNIA

Leader Asserts Senator Would Beat Stevenson in June Primary.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26—The leader of the Kefauver-for-President forces here predicted today that if Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois both campaign vigorously in California, Kefauver will win in the June preferential primary next June.

Tom C. Carrell, chairman of the Kefauver - for - President Committee for Southern California, made the prediction for the first time after sounding out sentiment in this end of the state.

In 1952 Carrell, an automobile agency owner, helped organize the Kefauver campaign here which was successful in winning the California delegation in the presidential primary that year.

Also Admires Stevenson. Carrell said he also is an admirer of Stevenson, and could support the 1952 party standard-bearer "very easily" if events turn against Kefauver.

"The Senator is a very fine campaigner on the grass-roots level," Carrell said. "He knows how to get out and meet the people. He demonstrated that in 1952 when he won a whole row of primaries, starting with New Hampshire, and of course he led substantially on the first ballot at the Chicago convention."

"Stevenson, in my opinion, won't do as well as a grass-roots campaigner. He's a superb talker on television and radio, and at mass meetings, but I think it's the grass-roots campaigner who will come out on top."

Carrell said Stevenson, fearing a defeat in California at the hands of Kefauver, may duck the primary here. "But he couldn't do that in many states and still hope to win the nomination," he added.

Bandwagon Move. As of now, Carrell said, the professional politicians are turning to Stevenson so strongly that "a lot of people have been swept off their feet and are joining the bandwagon." He said he doesn't believe the "bandwagon psychology" for Stevenson will stand the test of time.

The Kefauver movement here so far, Carrell emphasized, is wholly independent. He said he had not heard a word from the Senator on the subject.

A Kefauver organization already has been established in each of the state's 58 counties, Carrell disclosed.

Most of the top Democratic politicians in the state have come out for Stevenson, including National Committeeman Paul Ziffren, State Chairman Elizabeth Snyder and Attorney General Edmund (Pat) Brown, titular head of the party in California. Their mass announcement of support for Stevenson pulled the rug from under Tammy Boss Carmine de Sapio, who was in San Francisco last week sounding out sentiment for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

One party leader, Mrs. Clara Shipper, National Committeewoman, refused to jump on the Stevenson bandwagon. She is waiting to see if Kefauver runs again. Like Carrell, she is convinced that the Senator again could garner tremendous strength in this pivotal state.

U.S. GRAND JURY ADJOURNS UNTIL NEXT MONDAY

The United States grand jury adjourned today until next Monday, when the jury will resume its investigation of tax scandals in the Truman Administration.

Adjournment resulted from efforts to quash subpoenas duces tecum issued for records of Harry I. Schwimmer, Kansas City attorney, who is expected to be called as an important witness in the inquiry. The records sought for grand jury inspection pertain to the case of Irving Sachs, president of Shustles, Inc., who pleaded guilty in an income tax case in 1951 and was fined $40,000.

Arguments on the motion to quash the subpoenas were to be heard in United States district court late today. Schwimmer is represented by Morris A. Shenker.

DALTON RULES OUT VOTE-GETTING PRIZE

Cash Awards for Workers Hiking Ballot Total Held Illegal.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26—A member of a political committee may not be rewarded with prize money for getting out the voters in an election, however effective he may be in getting voters to the polls, Attorney General John M. Dalton said in an opinion yesterday.

The Attorney General said acceptance of a money award by a committeeman or committeewoman for inducing other persons to vote in any election constituted a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment in jail for not less than a month or more than one year.

The opinion resulted from a request by State Representative Gordon S. Summers (Dem.) of Bourbon, Crawford county, as to legality of a contest in the county for Republican county committee members, in the 1954 election campaign, to get out the voters.

Summers included with his request newspaper clippings reporting that A. D. Welsh of St. Louis county, Republican national committeeman, had offered a prize of $100 to the Republican committeeman and committeewoman who got the greatest percentage of voters in their respective townships to the polls in the 1954 election. An award was made to two Republican committee members, it was said.

Summers said he had heard rumors similar prizes were to be given by Republicans in Crawford county to get out the vote in the next election.

Dalton said state laws provide that any person, whether a committee member or private individual, "who receives any money on account of having induced any other person to vote shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

It would be illegal, said Dalton, for a committeeman or committeewoman to accept an award for inducing other persons to vote in any election.

Officials of C.A.B. in Dispute Over Free Flights for Personnel

Chairman Approves Such Trips, but Former Head of Agency, Now a Member, Opposes Them.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—A dispute within the Civil Aeronautics Board about free airline rides for its personnel broke into the open today with the announcement of a new C.A.B. policy approving such flights.

The C.A.B. authorized United Air Lines to provide free transportation to Chicago, Denver and San Francisco for not more than 12 members of the Board and its staff.

C.A.B. chairman Ross Rizley said key staff members "will take to the field to study airline operations." A statement made public by his office added that Rizley wished C.A.B. personnel to have firsthand information "which they can never obtain by remaining constantly behind desks in Washington."

At the same time C.A.B. member Chan Gurney, a former chairman, expressed "serious doubts" as to the legality and wisdom of accepting free rides from carriers under C.A.B. jurisdiction.

The C.A.B. traditionally has refrained from accepting favors from airlines lest the friendships formed influence the employees in dealing with routes, rates, and mail subsidies.

A few exceptions have been made in the case of members of the five-man C.A.B. invited personally, with their wives, as guests of a particular airline president and his wife. So far as is known there had been no exceptions for subsidiary C.A.B. officials.

Earlier this year, Vice Chairman Joe Adams accepted a Delta Air Lines invitation to help inaugurate a new DC-7 service between Chicago and Caracas, Venezuela, but declined in invitation to his wife.

Twice in recent weeks, however, C.A.B. officials and their wives have been allowed to travel on plush junks to South America offered by Pan American-Grace Airways.

Panagra is second only to Pan American World Airways, among the trunk airlines, in the C.A.B. estimate of mail subsidy—$1,551,000—it will receive this year.

Rizley approved these flights in advance on the theory that the officials should get out and see how airlines operate. Gurney took a dim view of them.

Both Rizley and Gurney are Republicans. Rizley is a former Congressman from Oklahoma, Gurney a former Senator from South Dakota. Both were out of the country when their dispute became public.

ELDERLY MAN FINDS HOME AT UNITED FUND UNIT

Mr. X, a frail, elderly bachelor, was suddenly faced with the problem of finding a place to live, when his sister was no longer able to act as his housekeeper.

He wanted a home where he would have companionship with men of his own age and a chance to do some useful work in return for his room and board.

Ozanam Home for Men, 3225 Montgomery street, a United Fund agency, was able to offer him just the home he sought.

Now Mr. X faces a happy future with friends of his own age in the home. The story of his finding a place to live is told in a book of case histories compiled by the United Fund, currently conducting its annual drive for contributions.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Lt. Paul Smith as a Coast Guard helicopter pilot has lowered many a gallon of gasoline to careless fishermen whose boats ran out of fuel. The other day Smith was fishing 15 miles offshore when his boat ran out of gasoline. His co-worker and friend, Lt. John Vukic, dropped the fuel for Smith's idle boat.

Unneighborly.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An unneighborly old bachelor who runs a real estate business in his home has asked the law to protect him from his next-door neighbors—two women.

Rocco Prete filed suit against Amelia and Josephine Volpe, mother and daughter. He alleged that they threatened him and generally disturbed his peace. He asked for an injunction. Prete charged that the women threw cans and pans against the fence dividing the two properties; thumped on the fence, especially at night; heaved trash on his premises; telephoned him day and night to harass him; and shouted threats to harm him.

PORTABLE A-POWER PLANTS BEING BUILT FOR ARMY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—Construction work has begun on an atomic power reactor for the Army which can be airlifted to remote parts of the world, it was announced yesterday.

The reactor is being built by Alco Products, Inc., Schenectady, N. Y., at the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories in nearby Fort Belvoir, Va.

The reactor is designed to provide power at remote military installations or in areas where the conventional power plants have been knocked out. The plant will be made so that it can be shipped disassembled by air and put together later.

$2,350,000 SCHOOL BONDS APPROVED IN NORMANDY

A $2,350,000 bond issue was approved yesterday by voters in Normandy school district. The vote was 1963 to 458, with a two-thirds majority required for passage.

The money will be used for a $1,964,800 building at the senior high school, a $266,400 addition at Bel-Ridge elementary school and for miscellaneous items, including fireproofing work at four elementary schools.

An increase of about 20 cents in the district's tax rate will probably be necessary, starting next year, to finance the issue. This year's levy is $2.59 for each $100 of assessed valuation.

Fire of undetermined origin in room 1211 of the Park Plaza Hotel last night caused damage estimated at $500 to the contents and $1000 to the room.

A maid who smelled smoke turned in the alarm. The occupants of the suite were absent at the time and the flames were confined to the living room.

MOROCCO PASHA REPORTED TO HAVE SWITCHED

His Line-Up With Nationalists May Force Drastic Revision of French Policy.

RABAT, Morocco, Oct. 26 (UP)—The abrupt switch of the pro-French Pasha of Marrakech to the side of the nationalists may force drastic revisions of French policy in Morocco, informed sources said today.

The Pasha, Thami El Glaoui, lined up with the nationalists in demanding the return to the throne of exiled Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef—the man he helped the French depose two years ago for his nationalist sympathies.

Only Ben Youssef's restoration, a statement issued by the Pasha said yesterday, can avert bloodshed and trouble.

The Pasha's statement was read to reporters by his son outside the imperial palace. It came on the heels of a visit by the Pasha to the Council of the Throne along with Premier-designate Si Hadji Fatmi Ben Slimane.

Ben Slimane was installed as Premier by the four-man Throne Council under French Premier Faure's reform program for the protectorate.

The powerful Moroccan nationalist party, the Istiqlal, already has announced its refusal to participate in any government formed by Ben Slimane. It said it considered the Throne Council illegal.

The Pasha also made it clear that his visit to the Throne Council did not constitute recognition of its legitimacy. But a communique issued by the Throne Council quoted the Pasha as expressing his "devotion and allegiance" to the council.

Moroccan terrorists hurled a bomb into a crowded restaurant at Port Lyautey last night. Ten Europeans were injured, three of them seriously.

E. SIDE COUNCILMEN TO AID MAYOR IN LIQUOR INQUIRIES

Mayor Alvin G. Fields of East St. Louis today announced he was designating his fellow commissioners on the City Council as deputy liquor control commissioners to make investigations on enforcement of the liquor control law and to report back to him and the Council.

When the investigations have been reported to the Council, the commissioners will then help to advise Mayor Fields on the action he should take as ex-officio liquor control commissioner. Under state law the Mayor may appoint persons to assist him in discharging his liquor control function, he said.

The Mayor's action is regarded as an answer to Police Commissioner Russell Beebe's request to him to padlock the Terrace Lounge, nightclub owned by Frank (Buster) Wortman, notorious hoodlum. Beebe asked for its closing on the ground it was a public nuisance and a constant source of trouble to police.

POLICY HOLDERS MUST PAY DEFUNCT RISK FIRM'S DEBTS

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 26 (AP)—More than 15,000 persons who bought policies from an insurance firm which went broke have been ordered to help pay off the debts.

District Judge Charles O. Betts ordered the assessments against former policy holders of Pioneer Western Mutual Insurance Co., now defunct. The order specifies that the assessments will be equal to the amount of the maximum annual premium or premium deposits.

V. F. Taylor, attorney for the receiver, told a reporter the assessments would pay off $495,148 in debts if all are collected.

'COLORED FLY' THREATENING CROPS IN MEXICAN STATE

CIUDAD VICTORIA, Mexico, Oct. 26 (UP)—A plague of strange new insects known as the "colored fly" is threatening to destroy corn crops and pastures in the southern part of Tamaulipas state.

Ramon Cosio Gonzalez, president of the Ciudad Victoria Cattle Growers Association, said the insects are spreading rapidly. He asked the federal agriculture ministry to send in brigades from Mexico City to fight the invasion.

OLD CEILING ON FARM LOANS TO BE BROKEN, OFFICIAL SAYS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—A federal agriculture official Monday predicted growing grain surpluses soon will force the Government to "break through" its ten billion dollar ceiling on loans to farmers.

Earl M. Hughes, administrator of the Federal Commodity Stabilization Service, made the forecast at the state conference of county commissioners of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He said the Commodity Credit Corp. has a "little more" than seven billion dollars now invested in inventories that include 900,000,000 bushels of wheat and 600,000,000 bushels of corn.

The corporation lends money on grain crops to farmers who may take the loan as a Government purchase of their crops. This often is done because the loan or support price is higher than the market price.

"We now estimate we are likely to break through our former ten billion dollar borrowing ceiling late this year—in November or December," Hughes said. He said Congress has authorized a new ceiling of twelve billion dollars.

RUSSELL WANTS TO CLIP WINGS OF PENTAGON BRASS

Angered by Furor Over Flight of Fellow Senators, He Would Limit Use of Planes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—Senator Russell (Dem., Georgia), said today the Senate will be asked to consider limiting the use of military planes by Pentagon officials as an outgrowth of the furor over transporting three Senators home from Europe.

Russell, who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee and is a senior member of the Appropriations Committee, criticized in an interview what he said "looks like a deliberate effort to shoot at the Senate."

He said he found "no excuse" for the Defense Department's original statement that it was sending two passenger planes to Europe, at an estimated $20,000 round trip cost, to bring home Senators McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, Stennis (Dem.), Mississippi, and Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico.

The Pentagon has issued a public apology to McClellan, Stennis and Chavez. It said the Senators neither knew about nor asked for a special flight.

Russell said: "I think it is about time Congress was putting a limitation on the use of planes by those directing affairs in the Defense Department. They have got 35 fellows down there, most of whom couldn't be elected to anything, who can order up a plane and fly anywhere in the world they want to go."

"There aren't any news stories about how much these trips cost the taxpayer. I think we should consider limiting their use of these planes and publicizing every trip they make overseas and how much it cost."

Russell said the matter is certain to be laid before the Appropriations Committee, which passes on Defense Department funds.

Just Ended Trip.
The Georgia Senator himself has just completed an inspection of Air Force bases in Spain and England and a tour of Russia. He said he made the round trip across the ocean by ship and flew commercial airlines in Europe with the exception of an Air Force flight from Frankfurt, Germany, to Helsinki, Finland.

Russell said his transportation expenses would be paid by the government as the official representative of the Armed Services Committee.

Stennis, whose wife returned with him on a regular military Air transport service flight Monday, said yesterday he offered in Europe to pay the Air Force for his wife's transportation and was told there was no provision for such payment.

The Mississippi Senator said he renewed his offer here and was told "they'd look into it." He said it has been his practice to pay for his wife's transportation when she accompanies him on trips where the government pays his own expenses.

8 ST. LOUISANS ELECTED BY ASSOCIATED INDUSTRIES

Eight St. Louisans were named to offices in the Associated Industries of Missouri at its thirty-sixth annual meeting yesterday in Kansas City. F. Gano Chance, Centralia, was re-elected president.

S. Cullenbine, secretary, Gaylord Container Corp., was elected chairman of the executive committee of the association. Theodore J. Krauss was named executive vice president.

St. Louisans named directors are: W. A. Ramming Jr., George W. Brown, H. M. Ramel and F. W. Huntington.

$119,841,034 CONTRACT FOR BIG CARRIER AWARDED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (UP)—The Navy today awarded a $119,841,034 contract to the New York Shipbuilding Corp., Camden, N.J., for construction of the fifth Forrestal class super aircraft carrier.

The office of Senator Clifford P. Case (Rep.), New Jersey, reported the Navy decision to give the contract to the Camden firm.

Case's office said the contract was awarded on competitive negotiation with the Camden shipyard making a "substantially lower" offer than the only other bidder, the Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding & Drydock Co.

The contract price includes construction of a new graving dock required for building the 60,000-ton carrier.

CLAYTON BOARD OK'S BAR ON PARKING ON FORSYTH

A 90-day bar on parking on both sides of Forsyth boulevard between Jackson avenue and Hanley road between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. was approved by the Clayton Board of Aldermen last night. The prohibition against parking is intended as a test to relieve traffic congestion in the shopping area.

The board also approved a permit for construction of a seven-story hotel costing $1,750,000 to be built on a tract west of Hanley, between Bonhomme and Carondelet avenues. Indorsement of the $39,712,000 bond issue to be submitted to St. Louis county voters Nov. 22 was voted by the board.

Mayor Jule A. Schweig of Clayton urged county residents to support the eight proposals.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH 25,000,000 TREES TO BE PLANTED IN ISRAEL DESERT

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Oct. 26 (AP)—Twenty-five million trees will be planted in the barren hills of the Holy Land as part of Israel's "war against the desert."

Keren Kayemeth, the Jewish national land fund which announced the new five-year plan, estimated Israel's desert areas total 287,500 acres.

The over-all program, of which the five-year plan is only a part, envisions 56,250 acres turned to forest, 106,250 acres into grazing land and 125,000 acres into agricultural settlement areas. A separate 75,000 acres of uncultivated land are planned for new settlements.

PERON IS ACCUSED OF TORTURE ORDERS

Victim Blames Judge Also — Demands Ex-Dictator Be Tried.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 26 (AP) — Juan D. Peron, Argentina's ousted dictator, stood accused today of ordering the torture of political prisoners in his government.

A former prisoner, Dr. Alfonso Nunez Malnero, has told an Argentine court both Peron and Miguel Vignola, main Peronista judge for investigations, were responsible for Nunez Malnero's arrest and torture.

He said he had heard persons tortured on the third floor of the central police station. He said the victims declared that Peron personally ordered the tortures.

Nunez Malnero demanded that Peron be extradited from Paraguay, where he is an exile interned by the government for political statements, and be tried by Argentina on criminal charges.

An investigation commission is looking into methods used by the Peron government against political prisoners. The commission is composed of three army majors who were imprisoned for four years themselves for alleged participation in an unsuccessful revolt against Peron on Sept. 25, 1951.

The commissioners and Juan Ovidio Zabala, new director of national prisons, told a press conference that error, torture and corruption pervaded prisons in the Peron rule.

By the United Press. Lt. Gen. Juan Istarini (ret.) was arrested yesterday on charges of misappropriation of public funds while public works minister under Peron.

Government investigators accused Istarini of using public funds and materials for improvements to the Santa Maria ranch, owned formerly by Peron's brother-in-law, the late Juan Duarte.

Meanwhile, a large group of citizens petitioned President Eduardo A. Lonardi to give a "just solution to the problem of La Prensa," the newspaper confiscated by Peron.

Lonardi has said he wants the courts to decide whether La Prensa shall be returned to Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, its former director.

'HEEBIE JEEBIES' CAN'T GET PASTOR, HE WINS $32,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) — The Rev. Alvin Kershaw, a jazz-loving Episcopal minister, last night proved his knowledge of his subject by winning $32,000 on a television quiz show.

Next week, the Rev. Mr. Kershaw can take a crack at the grand prize on the CBS program, "The $64,000 Question," or he can retire with his winnings.

The Rev. Mr. Kershaw, of Oxford, O., was asked a complicated question about a 1925 recording by Louis Armstrong, the first the great cornetist made with his own group, and believed to be the first example of "scat" singing. He was asked to name the tune, the group, and each individual player and the instrument he played.

"This is a rough one," the minister said, wiping his forehead, but he forged ahead with no mistakes.

The name of the tune was "Heebie Jeebies," the band was Louis Armstrong's "Hot Five." Besides Armstrong, the other players were Kid Ory, trombone; Johnny Dodds, clarinet; Johnny St. Cyr, banjo, and Armstrong's wife, Lil Hardin Armstrong, piano.

The Rev. Mr. Kershaw said he was compelled to try for the $32,000 by many encouraging letters from bandmen and musicians all over the country.

PILOT UNION HEAD FACES AFL STRIKE-BREAK CHARGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) — Clarence N. Sayen, president of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, has been requested to appear today or tomorrow before top AFL officials to answer charges that his union is helping United Air Lines break a strike.

George Meany, president of the AFL, yesterday accused the pilots union of "collusion" with the air line to end a strike called last Sunday by the AFL Flight Engineers International Association.

Sayen's union has not supported the strike and announced its intention in this regard before the strike began.

Meany said he had learned that pilots were taking the place of striking engineers. He commented that the pilots were acting "in clear violation of all trade union principles."

ROBBER GIVES 30-MINUTE APOLOGY, RETURNS WATCH

DETROIT, Oct. 26 (AP) — A nervous robber apologized to taxicab driver Edward Grzynowicz for taking his wrist watch and $8 in cash yesterday.

For 30 minutes the robber told of his financial troubles. Then it was the cabbie's turn to talk. He would at least like to have the wrist watch back. It was a graduation present from his mother.

The robber returned the watch and also gave the cabbie 50 cents "for cigarettes and coffee because you look nervous and probably need it."

DAIRY FIRM FIGHTS
MILK PRICE RISESays There Is No Emergency and No Justification for Higher Producer Rates.Any increase in the basic price paid to milk producers in the St. Louis area for Class
I milk was opposed by St. Louis Dairy Co. yesterday at a United States Department of Agriculture hearing.Testifying at the Melbourne Hotel, Roger Laughlin, accountant for the dairy, said: "There are no conditions local to the milk shed that call for a price increase. No emergency exists in this market, and there is no justification for an increase in the Class I price."Three producers groups are seeking increases ranging from 20 to 45 cents a hundredweight, citing increased production costs that will result from a requirement in St. Louis's new milk ordinance that milk be delivered here at a temperature no greater than 50 degrees.The regulation, effective next Jan. 11, replaces the present requirement for a 70-degree maximum temperature at time of delivery. Class I milk is fluid milk for human consumption.A group of dairy farmers testified that they would have to buy additional cooling equipment, costing from $500 to $700 a unit, to comply with the St. Louis ordinance. Many of them said they also would have to enlarge buildings housing the refrigeration units.Several milk haulers said they would have to install refrigeration equipment in their trucks, necessitating a rate increase of about 10 cents a hundred pounds. The farmers pay for trucking milk to market.The farmers testified that if a price increase were not granted, they would have to curtail production to avoid outlays for new cooling units or would divert their milk to markets that do not have the 50-degree requirement.Laughlin asserted, however, that in most instances the farmers' testimony indicated they needed additional refrigeration equipment because they already had increased production beyond capacity of their present units—not because of the new ordinance.The accountant further said that his company, in co-operation with the St. Louis City Health Division, was conducting a test to determine whether changes in haulers' pick-up systems would enable them to meet the 50-degree requirement with existing equipment.A determination as to whether the federal pricing order should be changed will be made by the Secretary of Agriculture. If an increase is recommended, it will be subject to approval by the producers, who may vote in a unit through their co-operative.
Sanitary Milk Producers, a co-operative here, claims enough members to approve any increase. It seeks a 20-cent increase for April, May and June and a 25-cent hike the rest of the year. There are 46 quarts in 100 pounds of milk.
This month's price is $4.62 a hundredweight.FRANCE ASKS WEU COUNCIL TO CHECK
NEW SAAR VOTEPARIS, Oct. 26 (AP)—The French government decided to-the Saar to supervise the plebiscite held last Sunday in which Saarländers rejected European status for the industrial area on the French-German border.In the wake of this result, Saar Premier Johannes Hoffmann resigned. New elections for the Saar Parliament are expected to be held Dec. 4.Pro-German leaders in the Saar also have asked the WEU's council of ministers to give the commission control of the Saar's 2000-man police force until a new government is formed, and

DELINQUENT YOUTH COMMISSION NAMEDBoard to Enter Into Com-pacts With Other States on Juvenile Program.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26.—A three-member state commission to enter into compacts with other states, enabling Missouri to participate in a co-operative program of supervision of juvenile delinquents, was appointed yesterday afternoon by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

Members of the commission are State Senator Edward V. Long (Dem.), Clarksville, president pro tem of the State Senate, chairman; State Senator E. Gary Davidson (Rep.), Shrewsbury, one of the authors of the bill authorizing state participation in the compact plan, and State Representative Raymond B. Hopfinger (Dem.), St. Louis county.

The 1955 Legislature passed an act, sponsored by Davidson and State Senator William Orr Sawyers of St. Joseph, conferring power on the state to negotiate agreements with states having similar laws for more effective supervision of youthful delinquents. Some 15 states have adopted such laws.

Such an interstate compact, under the Missouri law, is designed to provide for the welfare and protection of juveniles and the public in co-operative supervision of delinquent juveniles on probation or parole; provision for return by one state to another of escaped delinquent juveniles; return of non-delinquent juveniles who have run away from home, and other co-operative measures.

The act would enable parents, guardians or welfare agencies entitled to legal custody of a non-delinquent juvenile who has run away to another state, to obtain through court action a requisition for his return.

All courts and departments of the state and its political subdivisions, police and other law enforcement agencies, are required by the act to co-operate with the administrators of the compact.

INCREASE IN RED ENGINEERS IS THREAT, SYMINGTON SAYS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26 (AP)—Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, told a meeting of educators last night, "No figures about defense worry me more than those which show that in 1954 the Soviet Communists graduated over twice as many engineers as the United States."

"In 1950," Symington told the Council of North Central Junior Colleges, "the United States graduated 50,000 technically trained students. The Soviets graduated 19,000. In 1954, the number of our engineering graduates had dropped to 20,000. The Soviets nearly tripled theirs, to 54,000."

"If this trend continues, with such weapons as the intercontinental ballistic missile, with its hydrogen warhead, just around the corner, we may well be signing our own death warrant."

Air Force Says It May Soon
Fly Saucer-Shaped Aircraft

Artist's conception of disc-shaped vertical rising aircraft, resembling "flying saucer," of type being developed by a Canadian firm for the Air Force.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Air Force, busy for seven years trying to scotch legends about flying saucers, wants the public to know that weird-looking aircraft which folks will see soon won't really be saucers.

They just look and act something like them. The Air Force last night issued what has become a sort of annual report on the flying saucer situation, saying again it has found no evidence of flying saucers.

But this time it attached to the new and voluminous (316-page) report a statement by Secretary Donald A. Quarles. It said some aircraft of novel form are coming along but there will be nothing "supernatural or mysterious" about them.

One will be the vertical-rising, jet-powered experimental plane built by Ryan Aeronautical Corp. of San Diego, Calif. Quarles said the craft will fly "in a matter of days."

First Jet Vertical-Riser. The plane, described as the first jet-powered vertical-rising plane, now is at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., the test center for jet aircraft. The Navy already has flown a similar aircraft, the Convair VTO, but this is powered with a conventional propeller.

Another strange plane, still in design stage, is being developed by the Canadian firm of Avro, Ltd., which has a contract with the United States Air Force. This design, Quarles said, "could result in a disk-shaped aircraft somewhat similar to the popular concept of a flying saucer."

Avro officials have insisted their product isn't a flying saucer. Gas exhausted through a system of ducts would spin an outer rim of the disc to propel the aircraft vertically into the air; the gas blast then would be diverted from the disc and to the rear to provide forward thrust, like any jet plane.

The Air Secretary also said, presumably with allusion to reports of Soviet saucers, that "we must recognize other countries also have the capability of developing vertical-rising aircraft, perhaps of unconventional shapes." But Quarles insisted, "We are satisfied at this time that none of the sightings of so-called 'flying saucers' reported in this country were in fact aircraft of foreign origin."

4834 UFO Reports. In reporting again that it has found nothing to show the existence of flying saucers, the Air Force told of investigations of 4834 reports of sightings of "unidentified flying objects" (UFO) since 1947.

Part of the new report contains a summary for the January-May period of this year, when the Air Force received 131 UFO reports.

It said evaluation of the 131 reports showed that balloons accounted for 26 per cent; planes 21 per cent; stars, meteors and other astronomical objects 23 per cent; "other" (mirages, kites, fireworks, contrails of high-flying planes) 20 per cent. Insufficient information on which to make evaluation 7 per cent; unknown 3 per cent. Quarles said he felt "certain that even the 3 per cent could have been explained as conventional phenomena or illusions if more complete observational data had been available."

19 DIVISIONS MOVED OUT OF KOREA, RED CHINA SAYS

TOKYO, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Peiping radio said today 19 Red Chinese divisions — possibly 190,000 men—have been withdrawn from Korea "but the United States has failed to take any corresponding steps."

(Actually, the United States has pulled out all but two divisions since the end of the Korean war and both are under strength. The Chinese Communists, on the other hand, are believed to have withdrawn only a fraction of around 1,000,000 men in the north at the end of the war, most of them Chinese.)

Peiping quoted Gen. Li Chih-min as saying the Chinese would continue "to strengthen the defense of their position side by side with the Korean people's army." Li spoke yesterday at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, on the fifth anniversary of Red China's entry into the Korean war.

U.N. LEADER FEARS VIOLENT ERUPTION
OVER RACIAL ROWS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—The head of a United Nations investigating committee declared yesterday pressures from peoples who feel they are subjected to racial persecution threaten to erupt on the world "with the violence of a volcano."

Hernan Santa Cruz of Chile, chairman of the U.N. commission on the racial situation in South Africa, made the statement in a report to the U.N. special political committee.

South Africa walked out of the committee Monday in protest against its insistence on debating the racial segregation policies of the nationalist government of Premier Johannes Strydom. South Africa contends this is an internal subject outside U.N. competence.

Santa Cruz indirectly rebuked the Union of South Africa for not taking part in the committee debate, but reserving its right to vote on any resolutions which may be presented.

The commission chairman said at the present stage of world affairs there is every reason to strengthen the force of the United Nations in dealing with problems of the kind presented by the racial situation in South Africa.

Office Thief Steals $10.

PHOTOGRAPHING THE PRESIDENT

The snow-covered Rocky Mountains form a distant backdrop as President Eisenhower, seated in his wheelchair, faces group of news photographers on the sun terrace of Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver yesterday. Members of the President's medical staff stand by as the cameramen, working at a distance of twelve feet from Mr. Eisenhower, make their first close-up pictures of the President since his heart attack Sept. 24. The city of Denver can be seen stretching out beyond the hospital grounds.

MISSION COMPLETED

Coast Guard helicopter rising from barge with the last of four men rescued yesterday from the vessel which was hung up off Gosier island, 60 miles southeast of New Orleans. The men, stranded since early Monday, were trying to salvage the fishing vessel Maybelle (left) when their expedition came to grief.

Richards, a Wellston (O.) engineer, standing beside his bride of less than three weeks as they looked up at a Coast Guard rescue plane yesterday after being marooned on North Cay light for two days. The honeymoon couple left Havana on Sunday to fly to Key West, Fla., but Richards was forced down on a sandy beach 90 miles southeast of his destination. They were sighted by a patrol aircraft after a widespread search, and were picked up yesterday by a Coast Guard rescue boat.

The Special World Of Noel Coward

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.

THE world of Noel Coward, if his songs are any accurate reflection of it, is a passing strange one to us mere ordinary mortals. In the Cowardian world, as it was passed on to us in the 90-minute "Together With Music" on CBS-TV Saturday night, the world is a mad, mad place where one must dance, dance, dance to while away the boredom. And never mind tomorrow.

NOEL COWARD

It was largely a song show and, while not all the songs were Coward's, he was the director and picked most of them out and they generally followed the Cowardian pattern. And what is that pattern? Well, the individuals in the songs loathe boredom, they hate most ordinary amusements and they are wickedly amused by the Milquetoasts of the world. Or to be more specific, they get no kick out of cocaine, and flying too high in the sky they consider silly. Or, like "Nina," they refuse to begin to beguile and despise everything else southern, including the southern moon and the palms. On the other hand, they are vastly entertained by the spectacle of Aunt Maude, a missionary, being eaten up while singing "Rock of Ages" or by a little tyke clenching his tiny fist and murdering his psychiatrist.

IT'S A MORDANT, perceptive, frightfully specific and precise wit, and it has entertained Coward's fellow sophisticates all over the world for something like 30 years. On Saturday night, though, it was served up to some 30,000,000 people, and whether this heterogeneous collection of people liked it or even understood it—well, I just don't know.

At the outset, Coward decided there would be nobody but himself and his fellow star, Mary Martin, on stage for the whole 90 minutes, which took some courage. Then just to show that they knew what a reckless decision this was, they sang an impudent little song called "Ninety Minutes Is a Long, Long Time," repeated several times during the show. Actually, it wasn't. If you liked Coward and his material—and I did—the 90 minutes flew past. If you didn't, it didn't matter because you probably didn't linger more than 10 minutes, anyhow. These two could very well have set a trend that a lot of other entertainers might imitate.

THERE HAS certainly been no more informal show since the beginning of television. Coward and Miss Martin simply wandered out of their dressing rooms and banded about a few insults. Insult is quite an important weapon in the Cowardian arsenal. "You always hoot when you go over E flat."

"I haven't hooted in years."
Or: "You can show you a picture of me as a tiny baby on a bearskin rug stark naked."
"How decadent."
"Oh, nonsense, I didn't become decadent until years later."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, I recall it was fashionable to poo-poo Coward's competence as a songwriter, but the very durability of these songs is, I think, proof that they are good songs. Most of the better ones were sung—"I'll See You Again," "Dance, Little Lady," "Room With a View," "Some Day I'll Find You," "I'll Follow My Secret Heart," "London Pride," and "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" (which Coward sang at such breakneck speed that much of the extraordinary witty play on words was lost to me.)

As a singer of popular songs, Miss Martin has few equals and no superiors. She has a bell-like purity of tone, wonderful control of her phrasing, and a great gift for singing at sort of half speed until the appropriate moment when she really lets fly. Coward, too, is a precisionist with a great sense of timing and a tremendous concentration on every last detail. It's most possible, though, that Cowardian style is a little exotic for just everybody. Also some of the camera shots which had the camera peering right down his throat were unfortunate.

But the showmanship and pacing and the finish when Coward and Miss Martin, after singing together to Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Shall We Dance," turned their backs to the cameras and strolled away arm in arm, were superb.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

WHAT about the high school freshman who is not allowed to have dates with boys . . . a girl who can't date until she's 16 and will have missed two years of high school fun? One of them writes:

"I am a freshman, and I have a problem. Is it possible for a girl to grow apart from her father in her teens? Lately my father and I don't get along any more. Some of this might be due to the fact that he told me I can't date until I'm 16. I resent this very much. He doesn't believe in dating in the first year of high school."

YOU REALLY HAVE A PROBLEM! Some parents—including fathers—find it hard to realize that their "little girl" has grown up enough to want to be with other people at times and have a social life that is separate from the family life you've had with your parents until now.

This might be all the more true because you are their only child and it's hard for them to "let go" . . . to let YOU go, in other words, to activities that you three cannot share as you always have in the past.

BECAUSE THIS PERIOD is also hard for your parents and a real adjustment for them, try to be patient and move toward dating gradually. Instead of "growing apart" from your father, be just as affectionate and companionable with him as ever, to show him that no matter how much you grow up or have friends, you still love him and like to be with him.

Make this first year of high school a "transition period" to help your parents get used to the date idea. Invite the boys and girls to your home together for cards, games, dancing, TV, record-playing, etc., and behave as well as if you were in public. Then your father will probably allow you to go to movies and dances with a small group or with a boy he knows—if a parent takes you and brings you home. After that, you'll gradually begin "solo" dating. Easy does it!

Color From the Cosmetic Counters

By Sylvia Stiles

THE vogue of color in apparel extends to complexions and hair. Many women are experimenting with the color palette to discover which shade of lipstick suits the mood of the moment, or whether they will be more attractive as a blonde or a brunette. Sometimes it takes two shades of makeup—one over the other—to achieve the desired effect, while one of those popular color shampoos or a color rinse highlights the hair becomingly.

The trend toward co-ordination of coiffures and makeup is as noteworthy as the trend toward co-ordination of costumes and accessories. And both of these are dependent upon the other. A harmonious ensemble is the goal of the fashion experts. Perhaps a woman has decided to wear brown rather than black as her basic wardrobe color for the winter season. This undoubtedly means that she must change her makeup, too. The complexion foundation that was flattering with her black wardrobe doesn't look as well with brown. The popularity of the brighter hues for daytime wear also is of significance from the beauty standpoint. Red, for example, requires a careful selection of all makeup items including lipstick and eye shadow. This also applies to the bright blue and the gray-green tones that are featured so extensively for suits and coats.

To be certain that she is gaining the most in attractiveness from her change of basic wardrobe shades, time spent with one's favorite cosmetic consultant at the cosmetic counter is important. Color charts are available to assist in choosing the prettiest complements and the individual's color tones taken into consideration.

Cherries à la mode is Revlon's latest shade for lipstick and matching nail polish. As the name indicates this is a rich tone that will be striking with winter costumes, and should be becoming for various complexion types.

ions. Jazz red is a Rubenstein shade that is another indication of the brilliant red shades featured this season.

Getting Set for Bad Weather.

WE HAVE no idea what sort of a winter we are going to get this year and frankly it doesn't matter much if it's mild or rugged because even a mild winter can do a lot of damage to a home if the home isn't ready. With this in mind we suggest you get busy and attend to a few odds and ends about the house before they have a chance to cause real trouble.

Dead tree branches should be removed now so that they won't fall across utility lines or do other forms of damage. Roof gutters should be carefully checked to be sure that they are clean, well supported and pitched so that the water in them will flow down the downspout and not collect in the gutter where it can freeze. TV aerials should be inspected and additional supports installed if required.

Loose shingles should be nailed securely in place for snow and ice can pull these loose ones right off the roof and cause a bad leak. Storm windows and shutters should be checked to be sure they are securely in place so that high winds won't set them to banging about. Go over the house siding to see that it's tight and caulk any open joints you might find. If you have a septic tank or cesspool, better check it or have it checked now because these underground devices when the ground is frozen or possibly covered with snow.

Any new trees you've planted should be supported with guy wires so they won't get blown over by high winds and check with your nursery to find out what shrubs about the house need a protective covering during the cold weather.

Fine Dessert
Serve chilled red apples with Gouda cheese for a fine dessert.

able in makeup and hair styling just as it is in apparel. Elizabeth Arden suggests color over color to obtain the subtle shades that typify this look. Pink plus an Oriental red, for example, is typical of her choices. Several other ideas developed by this expert include her new deodorant stick which she promises is effective for 24 hours after application, and which comes in the familiar bluegrass fragrance. Other examples of the Oriental vogue are provided by several other beauty houses. Helen Rubenstein not only has a collection of Oriental shades from which to choose but recommends an Oriental hairdo. One of the new Oriental coiffures, made especially for the medium length hair, is in two distinct parts, combining a lifted front with turned-under sides and back.

The spray mode of applying fragrance is among the popular beauty trends. To make the most of perfume and for ease of use, the atomizer is preferred. Corday has a new leak-proof atomizer that measures each spray. Scarcely larger than a lipstick case, the glass flask is designed so that the user may see how much of the extract is left. Also, this is one of the perfume sprays that may be used on the hair. The vogue of hair fragrance is increasing but care must be taken that the fragrance does not tend to dry the hair.

The items listed here are available in St. Louis shops. For information call MAIN 1-1111, Station 386, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, or mail self-addressed stamped envelope to Fashions Illustrated, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Roles That Children Play

By Fulton J. Sheen

Sacrifices now are made from the crushed out sweetness of their own two hearts.

The parents now have a feeling that their soul-love, which expressed itself in flesh-unity, now has a heavenly function. The sense of fed-up-ness and satiety vanish, as it does in the artist who finally sees completed his masterpiece. The body once led the soul but now, in the face of the newly created life, it is the soul that leads the body.

CHILDREN play another role also: Each child is a sign and promise of human liberty. Despite the rise of totalitarianism and Communism throughout the world, each babe is a little island of incipient freedom, a revolt against tyranny, a resistance to mass-civilization, a refreshed Declaration of Independence. A new area of freedom is created with each new life: "Where the spirit is, there is liberty."

The trust defenders of freedom in the world are in the home. In a certain sense, the world is born afresh with a child. Children are so free that the time of their coming cannot be exactly determined, nor their sex—they upset, in their riot of freedom, the best calculations of men. Like the love which gave them issue, they are as free as the creation of a poem.

The secret of freedom is not in throwing off the shackles of purpose and function in marriage. Freedom needs vigilance and even sacrifice—it demands submerging the ego for the sake of the non-ego; the resolve to plant seeds that they may grow, not that they may be plucked from their roots. Freedom is not in license, but in the increase of new centers of freedom, which is the child.

Vegetable Suggestion
Pretty vegetable for a company meal. Boil a whole small head of cauliflower, leaving on some of the small green leaves around the base of the vegetable, until tender-crisp. Put the cauliflower in the center of a round serving plate and surround with cooked carrots (sliced crosswise diagonally); pour a thick cheese sauce over the top of the cauliflower and sprinkle with minced parsley.

Women Can Manage Money
Margaret Thompson

IT WASN'T so many years ago that having a checking account meant carrying a good-sized balance in the bank. This tended to restrict accounts to those above a certain income level who could "afford" a large bank balance.

Then along came the no minimum balance idea. Men and women who didn't want to keep large sums of money in the bank from month to month could open a checking account with a deposit, and simply buy a book of checks to write against the bank balance.

Now Mercantile has gone a step further with its new "Satisfaction or Money Back" guarantee. It works this way. Just open your special checking account and buy your book of checks for $2.00. No minimum balance is required.

Then, instead of carrying large sums of cash for paying bills and making purchases, see how you like the ease of writing your own checks. Should you decide not to keep the account for any reason, the bank will refund the cost of all unused checks immediately, at 10¢ per check.

Checks can give you a lot of safety and convenience in money management. If you'd like more information on opening an account, or on how to write out checks and deposit slips, I'll be happy to talk with you at any time.

College Set Schedules Gay Thanksgiving Recess

By Karin Hayward

PLANS are being formulated by St. Louis debutantes in the East for festive Thanksgiving holidays. Most of the young women will remain there, to visit friends or to join groups of classmates in New York, and others will be met by their families for the first holiday weekend of the school year.

MISS BALDWIN... TO HOLIDAY IN NEW YORK.

Miss Almira Baldwin, who is at Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., will join her mother, Mrs. Richard Baldwin, in New York for her holidays. While in the East Mrs. Baldwin will also see her two sons, Edwin Baldwin, a student at Harvard University School of Law, and Richard Baldwin Jr., who attends Lawrenceville (N.J.) School. Miss Baldwin, a sophomore at Briarcliff, recently returned home to serve as maid of honor at the Velled Prophet Ball. She was presented in June at a tea for her mother's friends; while she is home for the Christmas holidays she will be guest of honor at a dance for her contemporaries.

Miss Carolyn Cone, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Cone of Woods Mill road, Chesterfield, a student at Smith College, will join her parents for a small family reunion in Bethany, Conn., where they will be the guests of Miss Cone's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. William D. Cone. Miss Cone was one of more than 100 college girls who several weeks ago attended a Princeton University football weekend and were marooned until Tuesday at Princeton by the recent heavy rains and floods. Another Smith College student in the group was Miss Elizabeth Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Holmes, 11 Ladue lane. Miss Holmes plans to accompany a Smith College contingent to New York for the Thanksgiving holidays.

After spending several days as the guest of a roommate in White Plains, N.Y., Miss Molly Goodson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McVeigh Goodson, 19 Pointer lane, Ladue, will join her parents in New York before returning to Vassar after the recess.

Parties for Miss Valerie Hardcastle.

NUMEROUS pre-wedding parties have been planned in honor of Miss Valerie Ann Hardcastle and Lester A. Schamel, who are to be married Nov. 19. Saturday Mrs. Green F. Miller, 919 Lay road, Ladue, gave a luncheon and shower at her home for the bride-elect, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Hardcastle, 715 South Price road, Ladue. Miss Barbara Gould has planned a cocktail supper for Friday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen G. Gould, 7931 Delmar boulevard, University City. Mrs. Donald George Brown (who until her marriage Oct. 14 was Miss Carolyn Ann Crego) and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Crego, will give a cocktail and dinner party Sunday, Nov. 6. The party is to take place at the Crego home, 2 Loren Woods, Ladue.

MRS. MUREN... TO BE HOSTESS.

An aunt of the bride-to-be, Mrs. J. Woodson Smith, 4 Adams lane, Kirkwood, will give a luncheon at her home Tuesday, Nov. 15. That evening Miss Niki Fisher will be hostess at the spinster dinner at her parents' home, 70 York drive, Brentwood. The rehearsal dinner, scheduled for Nov. 18, is to be given at Le Chateau by Mr. Schamel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moritz A. Schamel, 2360 Daves place, Overland.

Two more parties have been planned, although the dates have not been set. Mr. and Mrs. William A. George and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rife (Katherine George) will give a cocktail party at the George home, 39 Clermont lane, Ladue. A supper party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Clark M. Rainey (Virginia McCutcheon) at their home, 2307 Remington lane, Rock Hill.

Miss Ann Harrington was hostess Sept. 5 at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at the home of her mother, Mrs. Marie C. Harrington, 932 Dwyer avenue, Glendale. Mrs. Walter Boeger, 9 Topton way, Clayton, gave a luncheon and shower at her home Sept. 11. Friends of Miss Hardcastle were entertained at a luncheon given at the St. Louis Woman's Club Saturday, Oct. 1, by Mrs. Edward Jack Muren Jr. (Catherine Lee Bland) of Poplar Bluff, Mo., and her mother, Mrs. Si Bland, 9500 Clayton road, Ladue. Mrs. Ivan C. Nicholas, 901 South Price road, Ladue, gave a luncheon and shower at her home Oct. 15 in honor of the bride-to-be.

Mr. Schamel has asked Howard W. (Tom) Rife to serve as best man. His fiancée's brother, Airman Richard R. Hardcastle Jr., who is currently stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, O., will come to St. Louis to be an usher in the wedding. Additional ushers will include Donald R. Camien, William Gooding, A. C. Holler and Eugene Gerard.

Miss Hardcastle will have her former roommate at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., Miss Jean Whitten of Wilmette, Ill., as one of her bridesmaids. The other bridal attendants were previously listed.

The Church of the Annunciata in Ladue will be the scene of the 11 o'clock ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle will give a reception at their home.

A tour of St. Louis Children's Hospital and orientation for the hospital auxiliary's 131 new members took place this morning. Mrs. Warren B. Lammert, president of the auxiliary, introduced Mrs. Charles Speck Terry, chairman of the educational program for the volunteers. Talks were given by Miss Lilly D. Hockstra, administrator; Mrs. Dalton K. Rose, first president of the auxiliary; Miss Lola Breitenstein, director of volunteers, and Dr. Alexis F. Hartman, physician-in-chief. The speeches described the scope of volunteer work and civil service carried on by the auxiliary.

Union Housing Dedication In New York

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK I ATTENDED the dedication of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union Co-operative Village, located in New York's lower East Side, on last Saturday afternoon. There are four apartment buildings, two of which are 22 stories and two are 21 stories, and 1668 families will find new homes there soon.

From the terrace of one of the biggest apartments we looked over the whole layout, and David Dubinsky showed us with pride the latest accomplishment of his union. Incidentally, I put in an application when the next building is built for one of apartments with a terrace.

The view of the East River and the layout of the park below is really beautiful. There was light and air on every side and the rooms are of a good size.

THIS IS a slum-clearance development. So, under the National Housing Act of 1949 and the Redevelopment Companies Law of New York City, the I.L.G.W.U. was granted a 20-year, $15,800,000 mortgage. The East River Housing Corp. was formed to manage the property, and the city has granted partial tax exemption on the improvement of the land for 25 years. After that period the corporation will pay full taxes. Architecturally, the buildings are most attractive, and those responsible, George W. Springsteen and Herman J. Jessor, are to be congratulated.

The buildings are not the only consideration in a development such as this. A prior consideration concerned people living in this former slum area who had to be relocated. Eight hundred and seventy-five families had to be moved and 110 substandard tenements were demolished. This was really a great achievement, made possible only by co-operation between labor, business and government, and much real value has been achieved for the citizens of New York City.

I RECEIVED not long ago a most-delightful book, which should be in every family's library. It is "The American Treasury—1455 to 1955" selected and commented upon by Clifton Fadiman, assisted by Charles Van Doren. You couldn't ask for two better people to select from five centuries of prose, poetry and song and turn out a treasury. I think almost anyone will find things in this collection that they are glad to be reminded of and new things they never before had read as they turn the pages.

I also have been reading here and there in John Gunther's "Inside Africa." There is so much research back of this book and, though it is easy reading, it is so packed with facts that I think many people will find themselves doing what I did. I found myself looking up in the index certain points of interest and reading those particular parts and hoping later to read it all consecutively.

Returning home last week after a six-weeks' absence was Mrs. A. Erroll Honey, 211 East Jefferson avenue. With Mr. Honey, she spent part of the late summer visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. W. France of Highland, N.C. The Frances formerly lived here. From North Carolina Mrs. Honey went to New York to see their son, A. Erroll Jr., and relatives in New England. The latter part of her holiday was spent with her mother, Mrs. L. W. Chipman, of Bridgetown, Nova Scotia.

Preparing for Church Bazaar

By Fay Profilet

THE Guild of the Church of the Holy Communion will give its annual bazaar tomorrow in an unusual setting in the church's undercroft, 7401 Delmar boulevard, University City. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Luncheon will be served from noon to 1:30 p.m. and dinner at 5:30, 6:00 and 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Robert J. Richardson Jr., is general chairman and Mrs. Gerald L. Beebe is co-chairman. The Rev. W. W. S. Hohenschild is rector of the church.

The theme for this year, "A Color-Happy World," has been produced under the direction of Mrs. Victor S. Holm, art instructor at Washington University School of Fine Arts. Mobiles will float from the ceiling and backgrounds for booths will resemble modern paintings showing the articles offered for sale in each particular booth.

Mrs. Clinton Kimball, 84 years old, makes her contribution to the bazaar a year-long project. At her booth will be a collection of children's clothes and beautifully dressed dolls as the result of her work this year. Last Monday she and Mr. Kimball celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary at their home, 7450 Maryland avenue, Clayton.

The booth at which plants will be sold will feature African violets in many varieties and colors. One of the largest booths is arranged for the sale of aprons. Home-baked cakes and candy, white elephant gifts, books and records, jewelry and a wide selection of hand-made articles suitable for Christmas gifts will also be offered.

Mrs. Alexander MacLean will be in charge of the luncheon and Mrs. Harley Van Nepper will serve as chairman for the dinner.

MRS. VICTOR S. HOLM, LEFT, MRS. ALEXANDER MACLEAN AND MRS. ROBERT J. RICHARDSON JR. DECORATING THE UNDERCROFT OF THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY COMMUNION FOR THE ANNUAL BAZAAR TO BE HELD THERE TOMORROW.

William E. Gallagher will speak on "Financial Statements," at a dinner meeting of the Credit Women's Club of St. Louis tomorrow at 6:15 p.m. at the Sheraton Hotel. The following club members will participate in a panel discussion on credit problems: Miss Virginia Fischer, Mrs. Hazel Burnes and Mrs. Gertrude Salomo. Miss Fanny Klein will be moderator. The president, Mrs. Evelyn L. Meints, will preside.

Southwest High School P.T.A. will give a card party Saturday at 8 p.m. in Epiphany Church hall, 3164 Ivanhoe avenue.

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Dear Martha:

MY MOTHER has been a widow since we were small children. She had a tough time rearing us and I am grateful for everything and love her very much. But I am 24 years old and she still treats me as though I were in high school. I have to be in at a certain hour. She doesn't like my friends or want me to have dates. My brother and sister waited until they married to leave home and think I should also. But I have worked for several years, have a good job and want to leave now and share an apartment with another girl. But I don't want to hurt Mother. She hardly speaks to me anymore and looks so sad and reproachful. It makes me feel terrible. But don't you think I have a right to start living my own life and making my own decisions? How can I help her understand?

UNDECIDED

This is one of the hardest decisions ever to face a young person. Of course, you have an obligation to your mother, but no more than do your sister and brother. And also, I might add, no more than she has to you. It is natural, I know, for a mother to cling to the one unmarried child and to fear the future alone. But the other two married and have their own homes. Whether you actually move or not, I think you should have the same right to lead your own life. Perhaps, though, you should take one step at a time. Talk with your mother about how she is treating you. Insist on more independence—and on a pleasant home atmosphere. Take her out occasionally. Urge her to bring her friends in for dinner or cards. Take her to church. Help her to enrich her own life so she won't keep trying to lead yours. Then, as she becomes better able to stand on her own feet, you can consider moving out.

Dear Martha:

MY SISTER AND I live together. She is very attractive and personable and makes friends easily. I am quiet and not nearly as pretty as she is. I don't like to appear jealous but, Martha, every time I bring a friend home—either a man or woman—she monopolizes the conversation and I'm left out completely. She likes everyone she meets, and everyone likes her, so she always just appropriates my friends. She is two years older than I am and I have always looked up to her. But I'm getting tired of this.

BABY SISTER.

Why place yourself in competition with her? Remember, they didn't come to your home because they liked her. They came because you invited them and they liked you. The fact that they also enjoy her company shouldn't make them any less interested in you. You can be grateful that she is courteous and pleasant and makes them feel at home. Don't ruin the good qualities you have by letting yourself mope and brood. If you admire your sister's appearance and personality, take a few hints from her. You don't have to change from a quiet person to a boisterous one, but you can bring yourself to enter more into the conversation and thus contribute as much to the occasion as she does.

IN ANSWER to Marie: At a home wedding there is no recessional unless a formal receiving line is to form elsewhere in the house. In a simple ceremony, such as you are planning, it is customary for the bride and groom merely to turn around at the improvised altar and receive informally with the bridal attendants.

Don't Neglect Eyes

By Josephine Lowman

MANY men, women and children need glasses long before they go for help. By that time much damage may have been done. Often persons suffer from eye strain and do not realize it. Even though they can see fairly well they may have a headache or irritated or swollen lids, chronic fatigue or the habit of squinting. Any one of these may come from eye strain. Usually the only thing which sends them to an oculist is the fact that their arms seem to be too short when reading or the telephone numbers begin to blur.

Our eyes are so valuable to us that if there is any symptom which could possibly come from eye strain we should immediately go to an expert for help. Even without symptoms it would be wise if everyone had periodic eye check-ups just as they do general physical examinations. Many women are loathe to wear glasses because they feel that it makes them look older or detracts from their appearance. Actually nothing makes a woman look older than squinting or groping her way about. Some women who need glasses just to recognize their friends fail to wear them. What a loss not to be able to see people and the wonderful world about clearly!

This is especially foolish today when glasses are so good looking that they actually are becoming if you choose a flattering shape and color. There are lovely glasses for all occasions, stunning ones for work or sports and dainty or decorative ones for dressier times.

Take care of your eyes!

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

"I AM 50 with gray hair and fair skin. My best dress is blue because I find it my most becoming color, but my husband has brought me a gift from Europe, a handsome costume jewelry necklace of violet colored stones. Can I wear it with my pale blue dress?—H.Z."

Violet and blue tones make a beautiful combination. Why not try a touch of violet eye shadow and a pale blue rinse for your hair. Choose lipstick in a red with fuchsia undertones. Really turn on the glamour, and if you want to go into this a little more, spray yourself with violet perfume.

"Is a white orchid in good taste for a grandmother to wear at a dinner party?—Anna D."

Perfect taste. Just be sure to wear it head up, as the flower grows. Why not wear a black velvet dress and give yourself an orchidaceous background.

"Do you think it necessary and proper for a really mature woman to sit 'in the corner' when at large gatherings?—A.B."

Of course not—neither should a mature woman try to be the "life of the party." She should take her place at any social gathering and be as charming as her years of experience enable her to be.

Little Chocolate Spice Cakes

By Edith M. Barber

LITTLE CHOCOLATE SPICE CAKES. MADE FROM AN ADAPTATION OF AN OLD WILLIAMSBURG, VA. RECIPE, ARE STILL JUST AS TEMPTING AS WHEN THEY FIRST APPEARED ON SOUTHERN TABLES MANY GENERATIONS AGO.

MOST spices kept in every household as staple ingredients for seasoning and flavoring come from the Orient as they did in colonial days.

The development of trade with far-distant countries was stimulated by the demand for spices, a highly esteemed luxury in those days. William Byrd, one of the first planters of Virginia, noted in his diary, as an important event, the arrival of sailing ships loaded with spices and wines for the tables of the gentry.

The ladies of the manor trained their slaves, perhaps only a generation from the jungle, to become fine cooks after learning to use our own native foods and those imported from Europe and the East.

At the annual dinner staged by the American Spice Association to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary, it was gratifying to have introduced in more or less authentic style a meal that we would call a banquet, but which the residents of Virginia, and especially Williamsburg, would probably call daily fare.

The little chocolate spice cakes, the recipe for which is given here today, were featured at dessert as adapted from original Williamsburg recipes. They were just as good and probably better than those served in colonial times. They would be a good choice for that Halloween party that you may be planning to stage during the weekend.

Little Chocolate Spice Cakes.

One and one-fourth cups sifted all-purpose flour, one teaspoon double-acting baking powder, three-fourths cup brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon ground nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon ground cinnamon, one egg yolk, one whole egg, one-half cup sour milk, chocolate frosting, blanched almonds and glazed cherries, for decoration. Sift flour with baking powder and set aside for later use. Soften butter or margarine and blend with sugar, soda, salt and spices. Beat in eggs. Add flour mixture alternately with sour milk. Fill well greased, lightly floured one and one-half inch cupcake pans two-thirds full with batter. Bake 15 minutes or until done in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) Cool five minutes. Remove from pan. Cool on wire cooler. Frost tops with chocolate frosting. Decorate, as desired, with slivers of almonds and pieces of glazed cherries. Yield: 40 cupcakes.

Chocolate Frosting.

Eight teaspoons water*, two cups sifted confectioners' sugar, one square unsweetened chocolate, melted; two tablespoons softened butter or margarine, dash of ground cloves, one-half teaspoon pure vanilla extract. Gradually mix water with confectioners' sugar. Stir in remaining ingredients. Beat until fluffy and of spreading consistency. Yield: Sufficient frosting to ice 40 small cupcakes.

*If this frosting stiffens on standing, stir in a few drops of water to thin to spreading consistency.

Neighborliness Isn't Always Friendship

By Mary Margaret McBride

JEAN, after three months of suburban living in the custom-built house which contains everything she including a fireplace in the kitchen, is about ready to sell the place and go back to a city apartment. She's lonely and hurt.

"Not one person," she told me ruefully, "has come to call. Oh yes, the bell has rung a few times. There's been considerable competition for my milk order and a bakery route man has been here twice. So has a little fellow who wanted my husband and me to sign a petition for or against something. But I haven't met a single neighborhood family."

I know from experience that visiting new neighbors certainly isn't done by apartment dwellers in the big city. Most of us live for years in tall buildings with at most only a nodding acquaintance with dwellers on the same floor. Usually, we don't even know one another's names. Jean lived like that for years but I suppose she has heard romantic stories about small-town neighborliness and built up a picture that simply hasn't materialized.

AFTER her LONG apprenticeship in indifference to the unknowns around her, she'd really enjoy having women turn up at her front door with plates of cookies and pots of soup. Probably she would enjoy the cookies and soup, but what if the donors turned out to be the drop-in-frequently-unannounced kind or the constant borrowing-of-a-cup-of-sugar or enough-eggs-for-breakfast type?

My mother, whom people rightly took to be a gentle and sentimental woman, had some stout and practical ideas about neighbors. She was always ready to carry light rolls and fried chicken to the families of the sick, to sit up with the dead, to comfort the bereaved. But she didn't hold with the loose tongue that too much intimacy encouraged.

"The silly woman talked her head off," I once heard her saying to my father. "I tried to stop her, for she'll be sorry tomorrow that she told me what she did."

I picked up my ears, longing to hear what secrets the silly woman had spilled, but my mother just added, "Even if they were true, I'd be ashamed to say the things about you to anybody that she told me about Jim."

ANOTHER TIME she assured me that the best way to think about anything you lend is that you've given it.

"Don't lend what you're unwilling to give," she warned, "for usually you won't get it back and a bit of butter or a little flour is not worth being bitter about."

I've found that her words apply to money as well as flour. Whatever I lend, I immediately write off and this has saved me several times from wrecking a friendship.

Which is not at all to say that I don't believe in neighborliness. I do, but it may be just as well for Jean to have a

Don't Lose Ability To Listen

By Ruth Millett

AMAN was describing with amusement a group of older women whose conversation he couldn't help but overhear as he sat near them in a public waiting room.

"They all talked as fast as they could and each one talked about herself. But the funny part was that not one of them listened to the others. Each just waited impatiently for a chance to interrupt and start talking. I kept wondering why they wanted so badly to talk when it was obvious no one was going to listen."

IT SEEMS to me he has hit upon one of the main reasons why many older women seem to get so little real pleasure out of each other's company. This includes those who make a habit of crowding together in an effort to keep from being lonely.

All too often the older woman is interested only in herself and is determined to talk about herself at all costs.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Jones may be in the same boat, both lonely, both eager to keep busy, both wanting to brag a little about their children who are grown and gone from home, both with health problems, etc.

BUT if neither will really listen with sympathy and understanding when the other talks, if neither will try to build the other up or be impressed with the other they are really almost as lonely together as they would be apart.

Any woman who is heading from middle age to old age ought to watch carefully to see that she doesn't lose her ability to listen to others and really hear what they have to say.

For when a woman loses her ability to listen because of her determination to talk she is cutting herself off from all real companionship.

By for and about Women Star Pattern

YOUR new autumn fashion portrait reflects you in this gracefully uncluttered sophisticated that has the polished good manner to see you through your day-into-evening activities. Fitted, flared and favored with precise skirt darting and flattering new collar that does the most for a youthful throatline... you'll wear it alone now, under wraps later on.

FABRIC SUGGESTIONS: Rustling taffeta, gabardine, textured cotton or new plaid tweed in black, brown, moss green, bright red, or black, brown and beige blendings.

Star Pattern No. 231 is cut in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20.

REDHEAD from TEXAS

by Anne Allison

CHAPTER ELEVEN

DEBRA SYMINGTON's apartment had been chosen for the expensive elegance which Debra insisted upon in every phase of her life. Its huge windows commanded a sweeping view of Manhattan. The color scheme and furniture had been co-ordinated by one of New York's finest decorators. Thick, beige carpets, severely modern furniture, upholstered in reds and bright blues was a becoming background for Walter's sister.

It was impossible to tell whether she was really surprised as she opened the door. Debra was such an actress. But her blond eyebrows shot up in a gesture of astonishment. "If it isn't little brother," she remarked, "and his gold-plated girl friend from Texas."

She wore striped satin thorax pants and flat heeled rhinestone-studded slippers. She was smoking a cigarette, biting on her ivory holder, a nervous habit which her brother noted at once.

SHE sat down on an oversized stool and as Molly looked at the bizarre figure it seemed MOLLY BRADLEY determined to marry WALTER SYMINGTON whom she has met in the East, and leave her father, H. J. BRADLEY, who bitterly protests the marriage. He orders Walter's sister, DEBRA, out of his house when they come for a visit. H. J. obviously is in trouble and Molly thinks he is being blackmailed. However, when she offers to help, he tells her to keep out of his private affairs. MATT BRADLEY, manager of her father's ranch, also is concerned about H. J. When she goes to Dallas to buy her wedding gown, she gets a letter from a woman having charged a milk coat to her father and that H. J. had said the milk coat was a letter the woman had dropped. The salesgirl identifies the woman as Debra Symington. H. J. suffers a heart attack. Promising not to marry, and leaving her father with MATT, WONG and a trained nurse, she goes to New York, tells Walter his sister, Debra, has learned her father's secret and is blackmailing him, she insists they learn from Debra what she knows.

to her that Debra's eyes held all the cunning of an animal. "I'll get right to the point," Walter said, standing before her with cold disapproval stamped on his face. "Molly tells me you charged a milk coat to her father when you were in Dallas."

Debra inhaled slowly. She looked amused. "Is that all?"

"I think it deserves an explanation," Molly cried hotly.

"Why should H. J. buy you a milk coat?"

"Why don't you ask H. J.?" Debra challenged.

"I can't. He had a heart attack. The doctor has forbidden us to say anything which might upset him."

Debra rose, unmistakably interested in this piece of news. "I didn't imagine the great H. J. Braden was so vulnerable—even to ill health."

"I'm not interested in what you think," Molly cried, trying to control her temper, "but I do want to know the truth. Why did he buy you that coat?"

"Why not? I bought it—he paid for it. The reasons are between us."

The apartment was oppressive with summer heat, a humid little breeze stirred the fragile draperies at the window. Molly's head was throbbing.

"I know you found out H. J.'s secret when you were at El Rancho," she accused. "Someone is blackmailing him. You discovered why and decided to do a little blackmailing yourself."

"What nasty language. Not

More Indian Summer on Way

U.S. WEATHER BUREAU
Department of Commerce

FORECAST
Associated Press Wirephoto
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Indian summer is letting out a vigorous war whoop, Chief Harry F. Wahlgren of the St. Louis Weather Bureau declared today, when he forecast a high temperature tomorrow near 80, almost 15 degrees above normal for the date.

The bright, sunny weather, besides being good for those who want to develop a case of "fall fever" to match spring fever, is especially good for farmers wanting to get in their harvests, he pointed out.

The warm weather is the result of a low pressure area coming from the west. Yesterday, this same pressure pushed thermometers near the 80 mark in Montana and Wyoming, setting records for the date in many communities.

The low pressure area has pushed eastward the high pressure area that had St. Louisans shivering on their way to work in temperatures as low as 39 degrees Monday. This same high pressure area is now bundling Southerners into their overcoats, for it brought readings below freezing in parts of Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama this morning.

All good things must come to an end, Wahlgren observed, forecasting somewhat cooler weather for Friday and occasional showers beginning tomorrow night and continuing through Friday.

Vitamin Kraft Cocktail
Ingredients: One can (12 ounces) vegetable juice cocktail, one can (one pint and two ounces) sauerkraut juice, one-fourth teaspoon dried dill weed. Method: Mix vegetable juice cocktail, sauerkraut juice and dill weed. Chill to allow flavors to blend. Makes six servings. Note: This cocktail is attractive served in Pilsner glasses.

Let her get away with it. Darling, would you mind taking a cab back to your hotel—alone?"

"Of course not, but what are you going to do?"

Walter drained his glass. "I'm going back there and make her talk. I think I know of a way, after all."

RECENTLY I received a letter from a reader asking: "In what ways do the Indians of Asia and the Indians of the New World differ?"

The Indians of Asia (sometimes called the "true Indians") are natives of India. They have brown skins, often dark brown, but in some cases light brown. The Indians of Asia look back to an ancient civilization. Their country (India) was a center for poetry and philosophy.

Religions of world importance arose in India. These include Buddhism, which dates back 25 centuries, and Hinduism. Hinduism is even older, and is the faith of most people in India today.

THE INDIANS of the New World (commonly called "American Indians" or simply "Indians") have brown skins, but a yellowish tinge may run through the brown, or has been observed in some tribes (not all) and it explains the old name of "red men." An Indian with a strawberry red complexion appears never to have been seen, but some Indians have applied bright red paint to their skins.

The general belief of experts on race is that the American Indians came from Asia. Most of the tribesmen seem to have sprung from Mongolian tribes which wandered to the Asiatic edge of the Bering seas, and then crossed to Alaska. Very likely Bering Strait was used commonly for the crossing. The chain of Aleutian Islands may have served for others, who started on the great adventure from the Kamchatka peninsula.

Caesar said, "An army travels on its stomach," and all Roman soldiers were to be given a regular ration of milk and other milk products. Military historians call the Roman army the healthiest in the world, up to the 20th century.
